The city will lay about 3000 feet of tile leading from the septic tanks. From there on the ditch will be open and from 4 to 6 feet wide at the bottom and eight feet at the top. The ditch will widen as it reaches the Pad-ding river, into which it will empty, to an estimated 16 or 12 feet at the bottom and 18 feet at the top. The length of the ditch will be almost three miles.

Formerly the overflow from the tanks emptied into a small creek which proved very unsatisfactory. The proposed ditch is expected to solve the sewage problem for the present and is the first step towards the up-to-date sewerage system proposed to the city council by Portland engineers last spring.
