Bad Passes Costly.

What really got the Bearcat daubers down was no less than four bad passes from Francis Schmidt, substitute center, that cost the 'Cats 20 yards. Schmidt, the hero of the Linfield game in which he played an end position to snag two touchdown passes, was used by Coach Keene against the Pilots to replace Bruce Williams in the pivot slot, a position he played last year. This season, however,, Schmidt has hardly been over a ball and his inability to spiral it back to his backfield mates made him look more of the goat than he should be adjudged by spectators who knew not the circumstances. Williams, who played a whale of a game for himself in the absence of big Leighton Blake, regular pivoter who was benched in street clothes because of a bad knee injury, had to have some rest. Schmidt was called into give him that.

'Cats Held Advantage.

. Up until the time the Pilots swung into that fast tempo touchdown parade in the final quarter, the advantage had been with the Bearcats. Not only in the score, which was 7-6 for Willamette, but in all the vital statistics. Willamette had nine first downs at that point and Jim Nicholson and Gebhardt led Portland but six. 15 Seconds per!

When the secondary did move up to attempt to stop the tornado that was howling at its forward wall, presto! Maloney tossed Murray, the end who caught his secondperiod pass for a touchdown, for a fat 16-yard gain to place the Pilots on the Bearcat fouryard line. From which place it was but a matter of three more left tackle smashes and the Pilots had six more points and victory. When I remind you it took but three minutes for the Cliffdwellers to bang those 78 yards, actual playing time, I mean that each one of those 12 plays took but an average of 15 seconds each. From that you can get an idea of what this "fast tempo" timing of Mathews' dual-control is like. It's fast! -0-

Bennett, Shaffer Shine.

Little Bunny Bennett, who set off the spark that gave Willamette its only touchdown and about the only really intense spark displayed by the local collegians as a whole, played beautiful ball. The stocky little mite gave the crowd no few "gaspacious" moments as he took the opening second-half kickoff on a 54-yard jaunt that landed him on the Pilot 41 and on which he nearly got clear away. Big Neil Shaffer, whose pappy was custodian of the Bearcat water wagon for the game, also turned in a football game for himself. Shaffer showed more power on his plunges than he has ever revealed hitherto in his collegiate grid career.

Beautiful Booting. Beautiful quick boots were ordinary in that game. Willamette quick-kicked seven times for an average per kick of 45 yards with Bennett's 56yard thump the longest. The Pilots got off five fast ones, with Maloney's 58-yard boot the furthest. This boy Maloney, he's the Pilot football team-with no little help from Enzler and a pair of excellent wingmen in O'Hagen and Murray. Maloney gained 57 yards in 15 carries for a 3.8 per carry average; punted six times for an average of 45 yards per kick, including his four quick kicks of 36, 56, and 58 yards each; tossed one touchdown pass; and flipped one pass that was a big factor in the other touchdown drive.

LOS ANGELES, Oct. 1 -(AP)-University of Southern California opened its Pacific Coast conference football drive today, mar- Sound 0. shalling enough force late in the third quarter to squeeze out a 7 ot 0 triumph over Oregon State The invading Beaver eleven spent the afternoon on the defensive, but finally gave in before a procession of running plays, spotted with a few sharp passes, that gathered $1 yards before the Trojan machine crossed the goal line. Troy Offense Better

Southern California, its offense battered to nothing a week ago by Alabama, functioned better this afternoon as 40,000 or so looked on, and rolled up a total of 271 yards by air and ground to a mere 19 accumulated by Oregon State.

Twice, nowever, Southern California reached a distance less than a yard from Oregon State's goal, and twice the Trojans were thrown back by the beefy line from the north.

Beaver Passing Poor Oregon State, once a passing threat, tried four passes. Three were intercepted, the other was good for a six-yard gain, Mickey Anderson, tiny Trojan quarterback, bore the brunt of the attack, but it was a reserve,

Oliver Day, who got the lone touchdown credit by smacking the middle of the line. The thrust was good, but barely by inches. Phil Gaspar's novel 'kicking toe' booted the extra point. Starting from their own 19, Southern California's Anderson and Bob Peoples, sophomore fullback, dug down the field. Oregon State fought all the way, but could not hold them back.

First Tie Since '07 It was the greatest achievement for an Idaho team against Washington in 31 years. Back in 1907 the Vandals held the Huskies to a scoreless tie, and only twice have they emerged victoriousin 1900 and 1905.

Ray Smith, a rangy end, was the hero of the fracas when he fought his way through a maze of sewed up their third National tacklers to score the final touchdown on a 17-yard end around maneuver by Idaho. Roise missed to 3, in the second game of a wildthe try for point that would have eyed doubleheader here today given Idaho victory.

Nevertheless, the Vandals were jubilant and they fought off Washington's last desperate longrange passing attack and wound up by intercepting the final aerial heave as the gun sounded. Gordon Price, substitute halfback, was the lad who plucked the pigskin out of the waiting arms of a Husky on the Idaho 12-yard

Error Brings Scores

Washington capitalized on two Idaho errors for its touchdowns. Early in the second period the Huskies recovered Wilson's fumble on the Idaho 28-yard line and Joe Dubsky, a substitute halfbackromped unmolested to the goal behind a four-man interference.

Husky supporters had no more than settled back with that "I told you so" look, when Idaho began a big push that carried it 55 yards to the tying touchdown. Roise fired long passes to Tony Knap and Merle Stoddard and Knap finished the parade to the Washington's Sudetenland with a 17-yard end-around dash.

Ruda Mucha missed Washington's extra point and Roise did no better for the Vandals and the half ended 6 to 6.

After Chrape stopped a long Washington drive by intercepting a pass by Johnston in the third period, the Huskies bounced right back at the outset of the fourth, recovering Chrape's fumble on the Idaho 43, and shooting a 45-yard pass, Johnston to McDowell, to the Vandal 12. Cruver plunged twice to the three and Johnston went over for the touchdown. Mizen failed at the extra point.
