Be $1320 in Repairs on State Street

Change Is Again Put on Table

Willamette university, or contractor employed, will be asked to pay 25 per cent, or an estimated $1320, for resurfacing a 39-foot center strip of State street from Church to 12th streets, made necessary by moving the old postoffice building, according to the city council's action last night in adopting a report made by Assistant City Engineer J. H. Davis.

Davis' report, made from a cross-section analysis of the damage done to the street in moving the building, was adopted after Aldermen E. B. Perrine and Frank Marshall voiced opinions that the 25 per cent was inadequate.

Okehed The Salem 20-30 organization was given permission to go ahead with a proposal to place warning signals, consisting of a five-foot high life-like portrait of a school girl carrying a slate, in all city school zones. Purpose of these signs, as explained by Alderman L. N. Brown, is to minimize danger to school children by causing motorists to drive more slowly.

The council received a communication from the Christian Civic Brotherhood, asking curtailment of wine and beer licenses. The letter advised there is an excessive number of these licenses in Salem and requested that no further licenses be approved by the council, either new or renewals, until there is a substantial reduction

KING GEORGE HONORS PRIME MINISTER

In one of the most unusual tributes ever paid by royalty to a commoner, King George VI of Great Britain recently stepped into the background and gave precedence to Prime Minister Neville Chamberlain at Buckingham Palace. The incident occurred when Chamberlain called at the palace after his return from Munich. With his wife, King George and Queen Elizabeth, Chamberlain stepped out on a bal-cony to receive the ovation of thousands in the street below. The king, smiling, motioned Chamber-lain forward and then stood behind him. Old timers could not recall any occasion when a king of England allowed anyone to stand in front of him.
