

High School Program Is Thursday

The junior class of Salem high school and the vocal music department will present an interesting program on Thursday night at the high school. "Peter Forgets Himself" is a one-act comedy directed by Miss Margaret Burroughs which will be presented. Mrs. Agnes Derry is class advisor. The play deals with small town affairs, where everybody's business is known. The characters are funny, the lines appropriate to the Thanksgiving season. On the cast are: Emogene Russell as Grandma, Ruth McFarlane as Miss Diantha Abel, David Olson as Ezra Williams, Jack White as Peter, Gladys Crawford as Inez, Helen McKay as Miss Elmina Mora, Lenore Mann as Miss Trotter and Jean Holtzman as Miss Carry Ellisworth.

Jo Ann Donaldson, Alma Merk and Josephine Sexton are in charge of properties and costumes. Lester Jones, Jack White, Schuyler Gile and Donald Baker are directing the advertising and tickets; thirty students are assisting with publicity.

Following the play, a musical program will be given by the advanced chorus and by smaller groups.

"Laura must be head over heels in love with Ken. Did you notice how she constantly ignored him?"
A self-appointed psychologist is the blonde on the right. And shades of corset and cascade days, her black chiffon sets these old-timers to modern swing and adds fuchsia accents in the lacing at the front. Mauve satin shimmers like silver as the light hits it, on the left. Strapless, the horizontal folds of the bodice curve down to the extremely low back décolletage. Lines are long and slim, though the skirt is very, very full.—Copyright, 1933, Esquire Features, Inc.
