Defending a Hemisphere

On the eve of the important Pan-American conference in Lima, Peru, and in the midst of the furor over persecution of Jews in Nazi Germany, President Roosevelt invited 21 nations of the Western Hemisphere to join with the United States in a program to defend the New World against the inroads of fascism and the possible aggression of empire-minded European nations.

Some of the Latin-American nations have already responded favorably to the proposal. There is no denying that it is timely. Never has the world been witneses to so convincing a demonstration of the evils of Europe's apparently in and then was relieved from duty curable ailment of international and inter-racial hatred as on his request. has transpired within recent months. In addition to the present nazi pogrom and the dismemberment of Czechoslovakia. several South American nations have recently had the peril brought home to them more intimately in the upsurge of fas- a brigadier general in the regucism within their borders.

In contrast to the evident desirability of President Roosevelt's objective, two practical difficulties arise. One is the suspicion with which some of the Latin-American peoples have looked upon past gestures of the United States in similar directions, and their jealousy of this nation's wealth, in Washington, D. C., June 7, power and culture. They may in fact be excused for suspecting our motives, in the light of world events, and there is no 1844, seventh in 25, and assigned reasoning with national pride. In the present endeavor, any to the 2nd Dragoons as a brevet hint of a paternalistic attitude must be avoided.

The second difficulty is the insidious nature of these foreign "isms." How can we cooperate with other nations to bar them from the Western Hemisphere's shores, when the United States itself is not immune to their inculcation and spread? Both fascism and communism are here and must be acting assistant adjutant general battled in the interior, not off the coast. Several of the Latin-American nations are already dictatorships and in truth are not fitted for any other type of government. The dividing line Kansas, Oregon and Washington between a military dictatorship and fascism is exceedingly thin. The dictators now ruling these countries must be tempted at times to resort to fascist devices to entrench their power, even though they are disposed to repel proffers of alliance with Europe's Rome-Berlin axis. In those nations the same difficulty that we encounter here must be immeasurably at least in the part of Washinggreater—that of locating and recognizing the enemy.

Drawing Conclusions
Within limits, it's possible to draw almost diametrically opposite conclusions from the recent election. For instance, mand was engaged at Culpepper from the column of Franklyn Waltman, publicity director of Court House, Brandy Station and the republican national committee:

'Results of last week's elections have altered completely the American political picture. The new deal no longer is the dominant power in our lives. The republican party, electing cenators and governors in 20 states, has been restored as a numerically strong and effective opposition that must be respected. Thus once again the two-party system in this country has been firmly entrenched. Threats of third party movements have evaporated like the morning dew under the rising sun. Third term prospects again become only of academic interest, "More important, the country has put its foot down, with crunching sounds, on radicalism, the shameless effort to control elections with relief funds, governmental corruption, the flagrant flouting of constitutional forms and experimental paternalism in the field of economic action.'

Whereas the bureau of publicity of the democratic national committee has this to say:

"The congressional elections of November 8 smashed all political precedents in definitely establishing the fact that the people approve the Roosevelt administration of national affairs and desire its continuance. The result not only guarantees a democratic majority in the senate until 1943, regardless of the outcome in 1940 and 1942, More significant, it was the first time any party in the nation's history ever carried the house of representatives by enormous majorities, four times in a row.' No, Oswald, they are not talking about two different
