Flooring Unique In Army Citadel

One of the unique features of slated Saturday, is the pecan wood floors in both the auditorium and the educational department. Through a set of fortunate and unusual circumstances Lyle Bartholomew, the architect, was able to purchase this flooring, which comes from Louisiana, at a very nominal cost. The pecan flooring is said to be equally as durable as oak, much more beautiful, and was less expensive. The floors were being finished today and Leo Cailds, chairman of the building committee, declared that the floors are as beautiful as any in
