Auto Accident Claims Denied

Both Sides Lack Redress; Objections Heard in Flatman Estate

Claims and counter-claims for accident damages to automobiles of the parties were both denied by Circuit Judge L. G. Lewelling yesterday after hearing the appealed case yesterday of World War Veterans State Aid commission against John M. Miller. The plaintiff was asking for $160 damages done to a commission automobile and Miller maintained he should be paid $116 for damages to his car.

Judge Lewelling also heard objections to the final account of G. D. Flatman as administrator of the Arthur Flatman estate and announced he was ready to announce his decision but gave the objectors 10 days in which to submit a brief on points of law. Parts of the account objected to included $1080 paid by the administrator to himself personally for care and services given Arthur Flatman, $61.50 for medical services, a credit listed on a cemetery lot and a recording fee on the lot.

Chinese Spread Picketing of War Material Ships

In San Francisco Chinese-American women and children not only are continuing their picketing of the Greek steamer Syros—loaded with scrapiron for Japan—but have spread their lines to the British freighter Beckingham, which arrived for a similar cargo. Longshoremen have refused to pass through picket lines and have shut down the two ships. Heavy shipments of scrapiron have been under way to Japan for years—supplying war materials for their undeclared war with China.—(Acme Telephoto.)

Fruit Planting Is Circular's Theme

Varieties, Climate, Soils Among Items Given Consideration

Fruit planting problems are discussed in a new Circular of information No. 191, issued by the agricultural experiment station, and now available at the county agent's office in Salem, announces Robert E. Reider, assistant county agent and county horticultural inspector.

W. S. Brown, horticulturist at the state college discusses in this bulletin many of the problems incident to fruit planting, such as varieties, climate, soils and pollination.

Climatic conditions are one of the most important factors to consider when contemplating setting out fruit varieties. Oregon is divided roughly into nine different climatic sections, each one varying somewhat from the others in its requirements, and in the varieties that will succeed best.

Soils and exposure should be carefully chosen. North and eastern exposures warm up slowest in the spring, and are least apt to suffer from damage from late spring frosts, while south and west exposures give somewhat better color.

Air drainage is an important factor to consider when planting. There should be enough slope to the land to allow cold air to drain off readily during winter and spring.

Soil types should be understood and classified before fruit varieties are set out. Generally speaking, stone fruits do better upon rather sandy or silty soils that are not too heavy.

Time of planting nursery stock will depend upon variety, soil and climatic conditions. In the Willamette valley most fruits and nuts can safely be planted anytime during late fall, winter or early spring, whenever the plants are completely dormant, and the soil is in good working condition.

Growers who are expecting to plant fruit of any kind should avail themselves of this valuable source of information and use it for reference before planting fruits, advises Reider.

Timberline Lodge Traffic Regulated

Regulated use of Timberline road leading from the Mount Hood Loop highway to Timberline lodge, authorized by Regional Forester C. F. Buck, was announced by C. C. Wahne, supervisor of the Mount Hood national forest.

A permit has been issued to Timberline lodge to operate half-hour bus service between the highway and the lodge on Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays for the accommodation of all who may wish to use that area, regardless of whether or not they are guests of the lodge. There will be a charge of 50 cents each way. School children will be transported on Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays for 30 cents each way.

Except for Saturdays, Sundays, and holidays when the busses have exclusive use of the road, private automobiles will be permitted to use the road without charge, limited only by the parking space available at the lodge.

Tax Distribution Made by Sheriff

A $112,954.09 distribution of taxes to Marion county and its subdivisions was made yesterday out of recent collections, a report to County Clerk V. G. Boyer by Sheriff A. C. Burk's tax department showed. Another turnover of approximately $100,000 will be made next week.

Tabernacle Church Services Planned

Evangelistic Tabernacle Sunday school and church will commemorate the birth of Christ with two special services Friday and Sunday nights at 7:30 o'clock. The junior department of the school will present a variety program tonight assisted by the junior church orchestra and choir. The program will include numbers by the orchestra and the choir, a pantomime interpretation with musical background, instrumental and vocal solos, recitations, group numbers and the always-delightful bits of cheer from the little tots. Beautiful souvenir programs will be given to all attending.

Sunday night the regular church choir and orchestra will present "That Wonderful Night," a musical commemoration of the birth of Christ. The presentation will comprise the entire service. The orchestra will present a prelude of appropriate numbers.

Evangelistic Tabernacle is on Ferry street at 13th, one block east and one south from the state supreme court building.

DeMolays Slate Degree Meeting

Two activities are planned before the year's end by Chemeketa chapter, Order of DeMolay. Wednesday, December 28, the chapter will hold second degree ceremonies at the Masonic temple. This will be a reunion of all former members and Masons residing in Salem.

Floods of Mail Decrease Little

Outgoing mail at the local post-office slackened yesterday, but that brought no relief to the hard working postal employees, for incoming mail began to reach the peak.

Two full carloads of mail were set down here yesterday morning from Portland, representing northern and eastern gifts and greetings. Postmaster H. R. Crawford reported. In all probability this heavy mail on the incoming end will be duplicated or bettered today.

Photostat Device Is at Courthouse

Recording Equipment Will Be Set up Next Week; Location Settled

Setting up of Marion county's new photostat document recording equipment, which arrived at the courthouse yesterday, will be started early next week, C. C. Ward, deputy county clerk, reported. The photographic camera itself weighed 2347 pounds in its crate and the entire shipment more than two tons.

The photostat room probably will be located in the county recorder's office, it was indicated yesterday after placing the new department on the third floor had been discussed and tentatively discarded.

First records to be recorded photographically will be those which have accumulated in the probate court clerk's files since November 15, when the last volume of typewritten recordings was filed. Gradually circuit court and recorder's office records will be changed over to the new system, as volumes now in use in those departments are filled.

Rural Medical Plans Mapped

Low Income Farm Family Offered Service by FSA Loan Fund

Plans of the farm security administration for medical care of low-income farmers in Oregon, Idaho and Washington, now being worked out with state and county medical societies, are not to be confused with "socialized" "state" medicine, but are based on simple payment of medical, dental and hospital services with the aid of FSA loans, Walter A. Duffy, regional director, Portland, announced.

"Good health is even more necessary to economic rehabilitation than approved farm and home plans for the 12,000 financially handicapped farm families who have been assisted by rehabilitation loans for necessary operating goods and cooperative facilities in this region," Duffy said. "Instead of allowing farm families unable to secure adequate commercial credit to drift toward relief rolls, FSA seeks to get them back on their feet so they can become independent, self-sustaining units in the social and economic life in the community."

Provisions Explained

Duffy explained that agreements being reached with medical societies provide:

1. Loans to FSA borrowers providing funds in advance for one year of medical, dental and hospital services for that family in event the family does not have the cash on hand.
2. That the amount the borrower is to spend for medical care for a given period will be on an agreed schedule based on the ability of the family to pay.
3. That funds set aside for compensation of doctors shall be paid at the beginning of the operating period and put in the hands of a trustee and put in a common fund with local physicians being paid as they submit their statements for services at the first of every month.
4. That every family have free choice of physician.

Due to Start Soon

"Preliminary negotiations and agreement on the general principles of the plan have been completed with the officers of the Oregon and Washington State Medical Societies. The medical care program should get under way early in the new year," said Duffy. "Several services, based on negotiations with county medical societies have been in operation in Idaho during the past year. Negotiations with the Idaho State Medical Society are expected to get under way shortly."

Miss Flynn merely walked into the prosecutor's office, asked for the job and got it.

Farm Matters Before Board

Semi-Yearly Meeting of Agricultural Board Hears Sprague

Proposed farm legislation and matters of policy were discussed at the semi-annual meeting of the state board of agriculture here Thursday.

Governor-elect Charles A. Sprague and George Potts, president of the Oregon Farmers Union, were special guests of the board at a noon luncheon.

Sprague referred to the condition of diversified farming which is found in Oregon. This gives rise to hundreds of perplexing marketing problems unlike those found in other states, he said.

He stressed the need for economical operation of the state agricultural department but said the agency should not abate its activities in protecting both the buyer and seller of agricultural products.

J. D. Mickle, state agricultural director, discussed a number of enforcement problems. The group inspected the state fair grounds in the afternoon.

Mae Hoke, Pendleton, is president of the board.

Industry Program Is Urged for State

THE DALLES, Dec. 22.—(AP)—A "super-public agency" to expedite industrial development was proposed by the chamber of commerce today. Participating groups would include the city and port of The Dalles and Wasco county.

"We have achieved low cost power and low cost transportation, our two main objectives, during the past few years," W. W. Nelson, chamber manager, said.

"We need a central agency empowered to act, to formulate and adopt an industrial plan, to establish proper zoning, to provide ample water, sewage and truckage facilities and construct adequate streets and highways."
