Record Rain Follows Record Drought at LA

Clear skies were recently forecast for Los Angeles and vicinity after a 49 year record downpour of rain. The record-breaking rain broke a record-breaking dry season, which was primarily the cause of the disastrous canyon fire at Santa Monica. With natural retainers buried from the sides of the canyons, water swept down the sides and became turbulent rivers, carrying mud and debris over highways, en route to the sea. Photo shows an automobile stranded in mud up to the hub caps on the Roosevelt highway.—LIN photo.
