Snow Damage, Tension in Europe Held Boost to Chicago Market

CHICAGO, Dec. 27-(P)-Like lihood of damage to winter crops that have not had necessar/ snow covering to protect them from sudden Arctic temperature hoisted wheat one cent today.

Tending also to push prices up was reported increased European political tension, especially word that Italy was massing troops on the frontier of French Somaliland. Other stimulating factors included advices of violent winds carrying dust over portions of Kansas, Nebraska and Oklahoma.

A restraining influence, how ever, was talk that ill effects on crops could not be determined at present, and that growth conditions in the spring must be awaited to estimate losses, if

Close % Higher At the close, Chicago wheat futures were %-% higher compared with Saturday's finish, May 68 1/4-68, July 67 1/4-1/8.

Much of the day's fairly liberal buying of wheat futures was credited to eastern sources, and was suspected in some quarters to have been done for United States government agencies. A decrease of 1,154,000 bushels in the domestic visible supply total was likewise given considerable Manufacturers and topmakers were engaged in taking year-end inventories and consequently restricted buying operations to covering only the most urgent requirements. Under these conditions, most holders of wool in Boston were not mak-ing any effort to push sales.

George Menkenmaier of Fort Rock Passes Away; Two Children Survive

UNIONVALE - Relatives here received word of the death Friday morning at a hospital in Portland of George Menkenmaier, 45, of Fort Rock, following an operation about a week previous. He spent his childhood in the Philippine Islands, his father was a soldier. He was united in marriage 25 years ago to Miss Hazel Penrose of this locality who met death in a haying accident on their farm last August.

Surviving are two children: George, 12, and Miss Beatrice, also a brother in Utah. Funeral services and burial will be held at Bend early this week.

Industrials & Suffer Loss

Last Minute Tax-Selling Is too Much for Rally; Average off .5

NEW YORK, Dec. 27-(AP)-Thé recess, slapped down leading ina point. A few rails, aircrafts and specialties managed to contest the trend for small advances, but industrials generally put up only mild resistance.

Makes Good Start

The list got off to a fairly good start on the upside, but soon wavered as more last-min ute tax selling made its appearance. Profit selling on last week's late run-up was also factor in the early decline. The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off .5 of a point at 51.4. Transfers amount ed to 1,236,280 shares compare. with 1,216,637 Friday.

He pulled off his hat and looked down on her, almost forgetting for a moment why he had come. Then, frowning, he asked, "Don't you read the morning paper, Constance?"

Kosalind cried, "No, no, please to me. And a lot of the stree."

He looked at Constance. "A lot of good it did me to settle down and work hard! I stopped drinking and the morning paper, Constance?"

Kosalind cried, "No, no, please to me. And a lot of the stree."

Constance, sick with shame, held Rosalind all the way home. Gordon said, "I'll have a talk with Nina and Van tonight and see what can do. Rosalind is still his wife." Rosalind, her head against her sister's shoulder, did not speak. There was no fight left in her. All she could think of was Van walking away . . . Ruth was waiting on the porch. Seeing Rosalind without Van, she knew she had come home to stay. In the hall she kissed her and smiled a twisted smile and said, "It's all right, dear. You're home.'

All day Rosalind stayed in the little bedroom that had once been hers. Downstairs Constance and her mother heard her walk back and forth. Before dinner the footsteps ceased and Constance went upstairs. Wearing Constance's old blue satin negligee, Rosalind was sitting on the window ledge, staring out the window. "Feeling better?" The younger girl shook her head.

"Will I ever feel better than this?" Her mouth tightened. "All over a new dress I wanted to wear last night. I met him at the Red Slipper and I lost him at the Red Slipper.
