March of Dimes Begins Drive For Funds

Ten cents sounds very small to most of us, but last year, Eddie Cantor's radio campaign, "The March of Dimes" brought $85,000 to the White House to aid in the fight against the "maiming death." This year the campaign will be conducted in even closer connection with the celebration of the president's birthday, planned to benefit the fight against infantile paralysis.

A brand new dime, coined in 1882, the year of President Roosevelt's birth, will be sold to swell the flow of more recent dimes. The coin was donated for auction by Frank Selmer of North Vernon, Indiana, from his private collection. It is a proof piece, never used and in perfect condition. According to the US mint it is one of 1100 that were struck off in 1882. Mr. Selmer sent the dime to the White House with the suggestion that its sale could provide funds to aid sufferers from the crippling disease. President Roosevelt forwarded it to Keith Morgan, chairman of the committee for celebration of the president's birthday.
