Windsor, I have been given to understand, although not at liberty to divulge the terms of his contract, was given the best deal ever offered a busher by the Hawks. He received a nice piece of cash for signing, and, like Billy Beard, gets an opportunity with the Seattle Rainiers in their spring camp near Los Angeles.

Windsor was the third local youngster to affix his monicker to a Spokane agreement. Preceding him were Billy Beard and Phil Salstrom. Yesterday Howard Maple, the rolypoly Bearcat basketball mentor, who is a full-fledged, full-time Spokane scout, announced he had signed Enas Korb, Jefferson southpaw who pitched for Toledo in the State league in '36

Korb, 22, is a 6-foot-1, 180pound portsider whom Maple thinks is big enough, and strong enough to make the grade. He'll be sent to Twin Falls, where the salary range is between $80 and $100 per month.

"Monty" Montgomery and his boss, Bill Ulrich, are heartily anxious to give the northwest boys every possible opportunity in organized baseball. This desire "Monty" voiced to me on his recent trip, and is again manifest in words of a letter he pens in regard to Windsor: "I think we are very fortunate in having this fine young player and we will do everything we can to help him go up higher-just as long as he can keep his feet on the ground, his head in his hat and stay in there and pitch. Appalling Marksmanship Is Feature of 21 to 12 Court Battle

While the Vikings dumped the Spartans of Corvallis 21 to 12 here last night in a swift, hardplayed No-Name loop tilt, the lack of marksmanship shown by both clubs was nearly beyond belief.

Salem's men of the mapleboards hit only 7 buckets in 64 wild Oregon called time, talked flings and Corvallis' tossers, who things over, and promptly chopped didn't get a single field goal throughout the second half, hit the grand total of 3 in ?2 shots. Shots Rim Basket

Four full minutes went by before anything looked like it was going in, despite the Vikings already having taken 11 shots. Gosser broke the ice with a southpaw drift-in, that was matched at the five-minute mark by Waterman's cripple. Scottie Sebern, who didn't less cripple attempts, bagged a pair of gifters to give the Vikings a 4-2 first-quarter lead.

Foul conversions by Dehning and Kielblock knotted the count at 6-6, and Dehning shoved the points were made in the decisive Spartans ahead with a rebound shot shortly after, but Taylor came right back to tip in a rebound and the Vikings were never headed from there.

Second Opens Scorelessly Six and one-half minutes went by in the second half, with the Fg Ft Pf Vikings again missing 11 shots, before Gosser once more broke through to can a cripple. That was was the sum and total of the third-quarter scoring.

McKee, in for Sebern, opened the third quarter with a lay-in, converted on Whippo foul, McKee tossed a one-pointer on Lemon's foul, Gosser tripped in another southpaw two-pointer. and Quackenbush converted on Cole's infraction as the final whistle sounded to complete Salem's lack of scoring. In that quarter two free throws by Warren and one by Hand was the best the Spartans could manage. Jack Gosser gathered 8 points for high honors, Howard Hand who led the No-Name scorers up 1 until last night, got but a single point. Salem 21
