Declines Mostly for Small Fractions; Transfer

Bit to Rear

Total Is Light NEW YORK, Feb. 14-(A)-Stocks shifted slightly to the rear in today's market but the move was at such a slow rate that financial quarters were not particularly disheartened. Declines of small fractions were in the majority at the close, with a few set-backs of 1 to 2 or so. Extreme losses were reduced in many cases. Transfers for the five hours amounted to only 418,390 shares, the lightest turnover for a full session since Sept. 6, last year. The volume compared with 444,638 last Friday. The Associated Press average of 60 issues was off .1 of a point at Despite continuance of a fairly good brand of business news, traders came back from their lengthy holiday with a notable lack of buying ardor. Brokers thought international affairs again were a market handicap.

Make Inventory

Marion and Polk county farm families cooperating with the farm security administration are beginning the year right checking inventories and budgets in their farm and home record books and resolving to keep current accounts of receipts and expenditures this year, explains T. R. Hobart county supervisor, Oregon building, Salem. Complete account books supplied with each rehabilitation loan as an aid to working out farm and home plans. Although the farm and home record books are easy to keep current where everyone in the family cooperates, county FSA offices extend assistance whereever knotty problems are encountered and in making the yearly summaries and analysis. Families are free at all times to bring the record books to the county offices for help or in-

"Answer me this then," you Behring and invitation than a beggar."

"Answer me this then," you Behring with folded arms, stood perfectly still for nearly a minute; then he turned on his heel and, escorted by his two guards, left the room. You Helm, whose eyes had followed his every movement, turned away with a frown.

"Unless you obey my orders, they suitors. He felt his hold upon her, already so precariously established, already so precariously established, alipping away.

Matresser rose to his feet a little chilled by the falling mists. The brown dog kept her nose within an inch or two of his legs. Arrived at the entrance to the lodge, he paused and then picked her up in his arms. Her little body squirmed with delight. She tried her best to cover his face with kisses. He made his way had followed his every movement, turned away with a frown. a huge wood fire was burning and the foresters were seated around a table at one end of which was a barrel of beer. With one accord they rose to their feet at his entrance. He waved them back.
"A word with you, Fritz," he little dog settled herself more closely still in Matresser's arms. "Fritz, I want this dog," he said. The man hesitated, but only for

"She is a favorite," he acknowledged, "but she belongs from now on to the Guddiger Herr." "It is permitted," was the grave response.

"Having seen and heard the Prince, I accept the report presented to us by our colleague, Lord Matres"Magda," the man replied.
