

Senate Passes Dentistry Bills

Citizenship Section Under Fire; new Initiative Setup Approved

Three bills relating to the practice of dentistry were passed by the senate Saturday, despite objection raised to a section in one of the measures which would limit the practice of the profession to United States citizens.

"If we proceed on this theory, we might as well pass legislation providing that persons who are not citizens of the United States shall be barred from all of the professions and prevented from engaging in other activities," said Sen. W. H. Strayer, who opposed the bill together with Sen. Harry Keim.

A bill by Sen. F. M. Franciscovich of Clatsop, requiring that five per cent of the total vote cast for candidates for the state supreme court be the required number of signatures on initiative petitions, received unanimous approval. Affidavits under the bill would be made by the county clerk rather than by the circulators of petitions.

Further provision is made that suits to enjoin the secretary of state from placing initiative measures on the ballot shall be launched within 20 days after the initiative petitions are filed. Temporary injunctions would be eliminated.

Approval also was given a bill by the capitol reconstruction committee abolishing the state capitol reconstruction commission on April 1. A previous bill provided that the operations of the commission should terminate August. This bill later was amended by the committee.

A memorial introduced by Senator Eyles, Multnomah county, urges congress to amend the neutrality laws so that the president will be enabled to declare an embargo upon the shipment of war materials to any aggressor country, regardless of whether a formal declaration of war has been issued.

Senator Ashby Dickson's resolution providing for the abolishment of capital punishment was made a special order of business Monday afternoon.

Burke PUD Bill's Foes Get Hearing

Opponents of the Burke public utility district bill will be heard Monday night by the senate railroads and utilities committee.

Proponents of the measure received a hearing last Wednesday night. The bill was introduced after other similar measures by Senators Lyman Ross, Washington county, and Burke had been side-tracked.

Sponsors of the power legislation said they hoped that the new bill would be reported out of committee not later than Wednesday or Thursday.

Names of Schools Changes Approved

A bill to change the names of the state normal schools was passed by the senate Saturday and sent to the governor.

The Oregon normal school at Monmouth would be known as the Oregon college of education while the southern Oregon normal school at Ashland would be known as the southern Oregon college of education. The name of the eastern Oregon normal school at La Grande would be changed to the eastern Oregon college of education.

Police Bills Are Voted in Senate

Two companion measures designed to make more certain the tenure of state police officials were approved by the senate Saturday.

One bill, by Rep. Hall, provides that members of the state police may be removed only for cause and by order of a board comprised of three superior officers, after a hearing.

The other bill relates to the tenure of the superintendent of state police and his chief assistant.

Under Guard

Patricia Taurag (above), six-year-old daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Norman Taurag of Beverly Hills, Calif., was being guarded after her parents had received threats by telephone that she would be kidnaped. Taurag is a noted director of child motion pictures.

Borah Recovers; Back on Job

Borah was paid a visit on the desk of Sen. William E. Borah (R-Idaho) when he returned to his office in Washington, D. C., after a spell in the hospital fighting the grippe. Sen. Borah is shown making the papers fly as he catches up on correspondence.

passed to the consumer; the former may be absorbed by the merchant if he so desires. Business men are afraid their competitors will absorb such a tax while they insist that a flat 2 per cent addition to the cost of doing business would destroy most merchants' profits.

Second, a gross income tax, unless it were earmarked for an offset against real property taxes in the counties, would add to the aggregate taxes raised in the state. If it were so earmarked, the problem of county relief assistance would not be solved; the counties would only be swapping a gross income tax return for a property levy; the aggregate raised would be the same.

Third, this legislative session is not new-tax minded. The governor is on record against new levies; the relief problem has been met in every "crisis" of the past without them and should the legislature depart from a no-new-tax policy, the people are a little around the corner with a referendum which would probably bring defeat of any gross income or sales tax measure.

There will be passed some basic amendments to the tax structure; intangibles income will go into the regular brackets with a three per cent surtax added and corporate excise taxes will be raised. But the total taxes thus raised are not to exceed the income from taxes on income in former years.

Education Bills Coming out Soon

Aside from one public hearing, the very important House Bills 321 and 343, providing for educational reorganization, have stayed in committee and been discussed in executive session. The committee which has them—administration and reorganization—is to report them out this week. The first measure sets up a compulsory reorganization plan for small districts; the second provides for a partial equalization of revenues for all districts in the county. Certain smaller districts are sending many letters to their legislators protesting particularly against House Bill 321 which they believe would lose them local autonomy. The second bill is opposed by rich districts who now run their schools without special levies or with small extra taxes. However school administrators and teachers are back of the bill, the city districts as a whole favor them and the program bears the governor's approval.

Tomorrow night opponents of PUD legislation will have their time to howl before the senate committee on railroads and utilities. The PUD crowd is still fighting among its own membership and the governor may find it necessary to intervene to straighten out the tangle. Pledged to support of amendments to existing laws to make PUD bonds possible, he is apparently desirous of amending legislation at this session but has not taken the lead in putting it through, believing that was the task of the PUD leaders themselves.

The past week saw knock-out blows administered to the much-discussed tax reallocation plan asked by the League of Oregon Cities. The perennial chain stores tax was killed. Representative Chapman sustained another defeat on his closed shop proposal and the firemen's pension bill was slugged for the long count for this session.

Speed Up Because Pay Days Are Over

The controversial pilots' bill went through the two houses and is before the governor for action. Tomorrow is the deadline for decision. Should Governor Sprague veto the measure it will be his first disapproval of legislative action in his administration.

The motivating force for a hurry-up policy at the session is the payless days ahead for the members. Their expenses continue; the initial pay they have received is hardly sustenance for the 40 days thus far spent, and the mood is growing to clean up the appropriation bills and get home. So many measures may take lethal gas in committee and the important appropriation bills can be shoved through both houses as fast as the clerks can take the roll calls.

It's off to home in another two weeks unless this observer misses his guess.

Accused of Meeks' Kidnaping

Robert (left), and Ollen Grimes, brothers, arrested in Louisville, Ky., and brought to Sacramento, Cal., by federal authorities were arraigned in federal court on charges of "fleeing across state lines from prosecution on criminal charges." They pleaded innocent and were released on their own recognizance and immediately re-arrested by Sutter county (Calif.) authorities on a warrant for kidnaping in connection with the abduction of Mrs. Norma Meeks, Rio Oso, Calif., farmer's wife.

This information was not disclosed in detail, but it was understood to relate to possible renewed demands from totalitarian countries. The demands, it was said, were likely to be pushed through use of fear of aggression instead of through normal diplomatic channels.

Prematurely Born Infant Is Tossed Into Wastebasket

BOISE, Idaho, Feb. 18.—(AP)—A prematurely born baby was found in a wastebasket in the women's restroom of a downtown department store today.

Dr. A. J. Coats said "it was prematurely born by about two months and was found 30 or 35 minutes after birth by employees of the store."

"It is rather small but perfectly formed, and I will take care of it until we can find the mother."

The baby, a girl, rested in an incubator at a hospital while police sought her mother.

"It's a mystery that's rare to this department," said Police Captain A. E. Uley. "No one saw the mother come or leave, but there's no doubt about what happened in that room."

Cupid Boosted By Legislators

House Votes 52 to 2 for Free Blood Tests for License Aspirants

The legislature sought to give a helping hand to romance Saturday with house passage of a bill to provide blood tests free for marriage license applicants.

The vote was 52 to 2 on a measure which would amend the law passed by the voters last November requiring men and women to submit to physical examinations before being granted licenses to wed. Only Gov. Charles A. Sprague's signature is needed now to incorporate the amendment in the marriage law.

The blood tests would be given by the state board of health. Even though the procedure costs more money, Rep. Hannah Martin (R-Salem), predicted it would actually be an economy because it would increase the fees obtained from licenses.

License applications have fallen off sharply since passage of the examination law and many attributed this to the costs and the availability of licenses in neighboring states without the restrictions of Oregon.

Objection to the bill was voiced by Rep. Coe McKenna (R-Portland), who termed it another step on the path toward socialized medicine, and invasion of private business.

The house sent to the governor a bill to make the office of state superintendent of public instruction non-partisan, as are judges. The house killed by indefinite postponement a bill to reduce county relief committee membership from seven to five.

Threatens FDR

Lester D. O'Dell (above), 37, was sentenced to from six months to three years imprisonment by a New York court for writing annoying and threatening letters to President Roosevelt. A public hearing on Senator William Dickson's bill providing for the administration and control of Oregon's wildlife resources, will be held Wednesday night by the senate game committee.

'FOOT HAPPINESS' COMES BACK TO THIS CITY BY POPULAR REQUEST

"Foot happiness"... one of Dr. Scholl's fleet of trailers bringing relief from foot and shoe troubles to thousands of people.

Do you recall the recent visit of this traveling unit to this city? An interesting foot relief and shoe demonstration was conducted at the Price Shoe Store, 135 N. Liberty street. That this method of bringing foot happiness to this city was popular is evidenced by the fact that the many persons in this community who have foot troubles and shoe problems and who did not get the opportunity of attending the last demonstration have asked for the return of this caravan of foot happiness to the Price Shoe Store. Therefore, a complete foot relief demonstration will be conducted at this store by Dr. Scholl's factory experts direct from Chicago, on Monday and Tuesday, Feb. 20 and 21. Dr. Scholl's Scientific Shoes will be on display and fitted by X-ray and other scientific devices. These shoes are designed by the world famous foot authority, Dr. Wm. M. Scholl, to keep normal feet healthy and to provide ease for tired, aching feet. There will be included—for the relief of foot troubles—all of the Dr. Scholl's Foot Comfort Appliances and Remedies. This undoubtedly will afford everybody the opportunity of obtaining relief from foot troubles and to be fitted with the type of shoe best suited for the individual's foot. Many people have an unusually long, thin foot, others have a high arch, bunion or a flat foot. These feet present difficulties with ordinary shoe fitting methods. (Paid Adv.)
