"Spec" Keene, Bearcat athletic department headman, once said Harold Hauk, who played two years of football and four years of basketball and baseball under him from 1927 to 1930 inclusively: "Harold was one of the best competitors we ever had in school. He hated to take a licking and wouldn't take a licking."

And, it is now pretty definitely proved that the Viking mentor has plenty of ability to instill into his teams that same "you can't beat me, fellah" competitive instinct of which he himself had an abundance.

For it was pure fight more than anything else that carried Sebern, Page, Gosser, McRae and Quackenbush to the championship of the 20th state high school hoop tourney last week. The Viking team was a competitive standout among the 16 entries, a scrappy outfit that put the heat on from start to finish in each of its four tournament appearances.

Last fall Hauk's football team won 8 out of 10 and the year was undefeated in Oregon competition. Last week his basketball team, beaten five times in 23 starts during the regular season, added four more victories and the state championship to make its record read 22 wins and five losses for the season.

That is an .815 batting average, and would indicate Mr. Hauk has done an exceptionally excellent job. It would seem a job has been well done—well enough done that Salem for once should do more about recognizing it than sitting back with a self-satisfied smirk.

Great Hoop Gang.

While the big credit goes to Harold Hauk, for accomplishing a state title within his first three seasons of high school coaching, the fine fivesome that carried out the pattern cut for it deserves more than a cupful of commendation.

It's a fine bunch of kids, each one of 'em, and each earned every bit of recognition he received. One, in fact—and I'm referring to Allen McRae, deserved a good deal more than he received. Big Allen, although experiencing his first and only year of varsity competition, blossomed from just a gangly kid at the outset of the season to a potent cog in the Hauk machine during the tournament. His defensive work in the championship game was a standout.

As for Frankie Page, the worry wart who worked his way up from assistant manager in 1937 to manager in 1938 and to first line varsity man this year, too much can't be said. A Medford player just about summed up Frankie's phenomenal playing when he said: "My gosh, that ball was heavy! Everytime we'd get hold of it, we'd look underneath and there would be Page on the under side."

A fan summed up Frankie's playing in another way. Said the fan: "There was no trouble keeping track of the ball when Salem was playing, for all you had to do was watch Page. Where the ball was, he was."

Probably a harder working hooper never played in an Oregon state tournament that Scottie Sebern, whose defensive work was even better than his offensive drive. Page and Sebern made a great pair in the point of the fast-shifting zone defense, with both of them worrying the daylights out of opposition guards who attempted to handle the ball out in front.

There was not a game in which Page and Sebern did not accomplish at least one deliberate steal and break-away each—not even in the championship fray with Medford. A great little pair.

While "General" Jack Gosser didn't scintillate as an individual in the tournament, in the offensive manner he has done in many games through the regular season, Gosser should be given a big share of the credit for holding his club together. In the Astoria game especially, when the rest of the club had a bad case of tournament jitters, it was "General" Jack who pulled it together. And, it was his southpaw plunks, helped by Sebern's firing, that enabled the Vikings to win despite their very evident first-half case of nerves.

Roger "Ducky" Quackenbush played the best ball of his high school career in the last two tourney games. While the "Ducky" one didn't score as much as he sometimes does, he was a sawed-off bundle of aggression in both tilts. No one took the apple away from "Ducky" in either one of those final two games.

1940 Prospect Bright.

Although only Sebern is left from that championship quint, with McRae, Gosser, Page and Quackenbush all graduating, don't for a minute think Salem will be out of championship contention next year. Hauk and Garney Cranor have as capable a band coming up from the junior varsity as you've laid peepers on in many a moon.

There's "Lefty" Barnick and "Red" Kernes, both of whom did themselves proud in tournament appearances; there's tall "Skeeter" McKee, who missed the tourney boat because of an injury; and there's Russ Satter, Eddie Salstrom, Mason, Ling, Bower and Henery—the sophomore bunch who salted down the No-Name B league championship in easy fashion.

In Salstrom the Vikings of 1940 will probably have the best scoring unit they've had for many years. In Satter, the 6-foot-4 pivoter, they'll have the tallest center they've had for many years. Satter just began to develop in the latter part of this season, and is definitely on the way.

To sum up potentialities for 1940, I think even Coach Hauk will tell you that next year's team should be even better than this year's titular troop.

Coast Playoffs Hurt.

In round figures the 1939 state hoop meet grossed $4250, about $400 less than the 1938 meet which was the lowest since 1933, according to figures released by Lestle Sparks, tournament manager for the Oregon State High School Athletic association.

Because The Statesman received 300 telephone inquiries within 20 minutes Saturday night, and better than 500 calls during the night, and because the Willamette office also answered many more telephone inquiries than ever before, it was believed that many Salem folks forsook the tournament to listen to the Oregon-California playoffs and used the telephone to keep in touch with Salem's tourney progress.

As more than 300 fewer adult season tickets were sold than in normal years, it is probably true that many of those who generally procure week-long tickets refused this year in favor of a fireside audition of the Eugene series via the radio. Although there was no game in Eugene Saturday night, those people who didn't procure their customary tournament season tickets stayed away Saturday night also, under the belief good seats were not available

Texans Routed By Duck Host

UO Plays Strong Oklahoma Quint in Finals Set for Tonight

SAN FRANCISCO, March 20.—(AP)—University of Oregon scored a 56 to 41 victory over University of Texas tonight in the semi-finals of the western regional basketball championship of the National Collegiate Athletic association.

As a result of the win, Oregon will meet University of Oklahoma in the finals tomorrow night. The victor will go to Chicago to meet Ohio State March 27 for the NCAA title.

Oklahoma whipped the Utah Aggies 50 to 39 in the opening semi-final tonight.

Oregon, Pacific coast conference champ, held a 19 to 16 lead at half-time but came back to pile up points with a rush in the last part of the contest.

"Slim" Wintermute, six foot, 8 inch center for the Oregonians, led his team to victory. He scored 14 points to take individual honors for the game and was outstanding in the tight defensive play that held Texas to a single field goal in the first 12 minutes.

Bowser Appointed Pittsburgh Coach

PITTSBURGH, March 20.—(AP)—The University of Pittsburgh's trustees tonight named Charles W. Bowser, an honor student and gridiron star at the institution from 1920 to 1923, to succeed Dr. John Bain (Jock) Sutherland as football coach.

Bowser, quarterback and center on the great Warner teams of 1920 and 1923, started his coaching career in 1923 as an assistant at Grove City College, Grove City, Pa., and became head coach there the following year.

Three years later he returned to Pitt as an assistant and stayed there until 1930 when he became head coach at Bowdoin. He remained there until 1935 and then returned for the second time to Pitt.

Armory's Show Appears Rough

Bulldog Jackson Will Meet Equally Wicked Clark on Mat Tonight

Bulldog 'Square Deal" Jackson may have a troublesome time getting a "deal" of any kind tonight as he tangles with Florida Vern Clark in the main event of Promoter Herb Owen's rasslin' show at the armory.

The Yukon Yazoo probably has never met a mat hombre any nearer his equal in the rougher phases of the grappling act than Clark, the scrupleless crusher from Florida. Jackson may have foreseen a meeting with Clark when last week in the role of a referee he cleaned house on all the meanies showing, and may ask tonight's third man to reciprocate in his favor.

Tonight's 45-minute tussle will introduce Russ Riley, an Alabama contribution to mat conflict. Riley, a rough-and-ready ruffian, will be tossed at Felepi Romano, the tall Mexican.

Jack Kiser, nimble St. Johns scuffler, will open the show again scuffler, will open the show against Tony Garibaldi, Italian bad man.

Basketball Tilts Will Raise Fund

Eight basketball tilts, concentrated in two nights play, will be used to procure funds with which to send Don Douris to the world's youth congress in Amsterdam, Gus Moore, YMCA boys secretary, said yesterday.

The games will be played March 27 and April 1, with this lineup:

March 27—Jason Lee Midgets vs. Leslie Methodists; Jason Lee Scouts vs. First ME; Jason Lee C's vs. Presbyterian Bees; and Nazarene vs. First Christian, (for the B church league championship).

April 1—Jason Lee Junior vs. First Baptist; Jason Lee Aces vs. United Brethern (for the Junior-Pony championship); Jason Lee A's vs. Congregational; and Nazarene vs. First Christian (for B church league title).

Price Calls UO All-Around Club

SAN FRANCISCO, March 20—(AP)—"Nibs" Price, California basketball coach, said when he returned to the Berkeley campus today the little fellows on the University of Oregon Pacific Coast conference championship basketball team—Wally Johansen and Bob Anet, guards—"really beat us."

"This Oregon crew isn't a one-man or a two-man or even a three-man team, but a great five-man club. When we stopped Gale, Dick and Wintermute ruined us while Johansen came through with three long ones in the pinch and Anet kept driving in and spoiling our plays."

Viking Victory Is Celebrated

Students Drop Classes to Honor State Champion Basketball Squad

Celebration of Salem's first state high school hoop championship since 1933 continued yesterday as the Viking villa out at 14th and D streets took a half-day holiday, by consent of a board member and the superintendency, and staged a rip-roaring downtown parade and a two-hour jig in the school gym.

Praise and hardware were passed around freely during the school assembly, with Superitendent Silas Gaiser, Principal Fred Wolf, Student Body President Merlin Nelson, Coach Harold Hauk and the gallant team that carted off the title all taking part.

Locals Get 144 Total

Hauk's hoopers, in mowing down Astoria, Baker, Oakridge and Medford, in that order, accumulated a total of 144 points to 100 scored against them. They averaged 36 tallies a tiff, while holding four opponents to an average of just a shade over 25 each.

Pendleton Scores Most

Only Pendleton, the team most railbirds thought would have given the Vikings their toughest competition if they'd met, outscored them. The Bucks bucketed 153 points, while University high, by dint of their free-scoring romp over Baker, posted exactly the same number of tallies, 144, as did the Haukmen.

Of the eight teams that played four games Salem was easily a defensive standout. Only Medford, Oakridge, University and North Bend came close to keeping opponents as closely in check as did the Vikings.
