Grasshoppers Peril San Joaquin Valley Crops
 Multiplying each hour, a vast army of grasshoppers threatens rich crops of irrigated grapes, sugar beets, barley, cotton and flax in central California valley farming districts. The area widely known as the San Joaquin valley, was the scene of federal and civil action as poison bran was being spread to head off the insect scourge. Photo shows myriads of devastating grasshoppers swarmed over the highway near Coalinga, Cal.—IIN photo.

Ad Club to View Film on Plastics
 Today's luncheon meeting of the Salem Ad club at the Quella will feature the showing of the sound and color plastics movie entitled "Modern Plastics Preferred," produced by Modern Plastics magazine. The public is invited.

This film gives the first and most educational picture of America's youngest and fastest growing industry—plastics. It pictures the origin of the various plastic materials in the laboratory, their production in steel molds with pressure and heat, and also other processes. It shows their application for products used in every conceivable industry, which are better looking and better functioning.
