

Hospital Resident Missing Six Days

Karl Lanke, 67, Who Left on Walk Saturday Is Still Unreported

Karl Lanke, 67, resident of Salem route 6 for the past 25 years, has been missing from the Deaconess hospital here since before the breakfast hour last Saturday morning. His son, H. W. Lanke, reported yesterday in a further effort to find his whereabouts. State and city police were notified earlier.

Lanke, in ill health, had spent time at the hospital off and on the past winter and he had indicated that he would make that his home. Mrs. Lanke died a year ago. While at the Deaconess, he was in the habit of going for a walk when the weather was good, and from this walk Saturday morning he failed to return, though attendants who saw him earlier said he was in good spirits.

Description is given: The missing man was 5 feet 10 inches tall, weighed 135 pounds, grey hair, quite bald, wore a brown wool suit coat, brown sweater, grey wool trousers, light tan hat and was minus his teeth when he disappeared. Money he was known to have was found in the trunk in his room.

H. W. Lanke, phone 6627, would appreciate any information anyone might have on the whereabouts of his father. The best information he has is that the elderly man left the hospital from the west, going down past the old city auto park.

More Employment Is Felt by UCC

Pickup of Spring Work Drops Jobless Pay to $458,610

Improved employment conditions caused a 26 per cent drop in distribution of job insurance benefits in Oregon during April, the state unemployment compensation commission reported Thursday.

The back-to-work movement in the state slack payment of benefit checks to $458,610, distributed in 42,432 checks. This brought the cumulative disbursements since January 1 to $2,110,326 and the total distribution of job insurance to $8,026,725.

Headed by Washington and California, out-state demands on the Oregon fund totaled 8 1/2 per cent of the total amount. This was the highest ratio since inauguration of the multi-state benefit payment plan.

The Portland metropolitan district which includes Multnomah, Columbia and Washington counties, accounted for 43 per cent of the April checks.

Marshfield, Klamath Falls, Eugene and Salem maintained the same relative positions in the state lineup.

Social Workers Here May 18-20

Interesting Program Due for State Conference of Three Days

Program developments for the Oregon state conference of social work indicate that well rounded material is being planned to meet the interests of the social workers attending the state conference May 18, 19 and 20 in Salem, according to Ralph J. Reed, president of the Oregon council of social work.

Thursday morning will be given over to the conferences which will run simultaneously. These include the Salvation Army, led by Major Ronald M. Eberhart, chairman; community chest state conference, led by W. M. Hamilton, chairman and the Catholic Charities, Inc., led by Rev. V. L. Mollenbaker, chairman.

Oregon public health nurses are holding their annual state institute at the same time and will be in session all day Thursday, meeting jointly with the Oregon Mental Hygiene society.

Their program starts at 9:30 with a conference on "Community Relationships," led by Ethel Mealey, RN, followed by a section led by Elnora E. Thomson on "Functions of Various Professions as Related to Psychiatry." Afternoon session will be a demonstration mental clinic at the state hospital and a talk by Judge Donald E. Long, Multnomah county court of domestic relations.

Friday morning, simultaneous conferences will be in session under the direction of the Oregon Mental Hygiene society, the county administrators of public welfare, the probation officers, the psychiatric social workers, the state old age assistance, county public health and public recreation groups. Friday afternoon will be an extension of the morning conference sessions.

Friday night Governor Charles A. Sprague will speak at the general conference dinner meeting on the subject, "Welfare Services as Seen from the State House."

The sessions will be held at the chamber of commerce rooms where registration will begin at 8 o'clock Thursday morning. C. A. Kells is general chairman for the local arrangements.

50th Anniversary Of CE Is Sunday

The 50th anniversary of Christian Endeavor in the United Brethren church will be observed by the young people of the Englewood church Sunday night at 7:30 o'clock with a special program. Ray Hutchinson, son of Dr. R. A. Hutchinson, will be the speaker, giving an account of his recent travels in European countries. Others on the program are Eldon Newberry, Margaret Couchor, Virginia Hagan, Vivian Hagan and Lola Koerner. Miss Alice Erickson is the leader.
