

Ripe Olives Add Gaiety To Luncheon Dish

A dressy sounding salad mold that's suitable for parties takes the luxurious sounding ingredient—ripe olives—that always adds a gala note to any dish. The recipe is easy to make, the ingredients rather inexpensive for such an elegant dish.

HAM SALAD MOLD WITH RIPE OLIVES

- 2 cups water
3 tablespoons cider vinegar
2 tablespoons sugar
1 teaspoon salt
2 tablespoons prepared mustard
1/4 cup salad oil
3 tablespoons granulated gelatin
5 tablespoons cold water for gelatin
2 eggs
Few drops tabasco sauce
3 tablespoons tomato catsup
1 cup mayonnaise
4 cups cubed cooked ham
1 cup finely cut celery
2 cups sliced ripe olives
1/2 cup sliced sweet pickle
1/2 cup cooked carrot strips

Combine water, vinegar, sugar, salt, mustard, and salad oil and heat to boiling; remove from fire. If vinegar is strong use proportionately less. Moisten gelatin in cold water, add to hot mixture and stir until dissolved. Whip into beaten eggs and cool. Add tabasco sauce, catsup, and mayonnaise and beat until well blended. Four sufficient dressing into a pan or mold (about 10 1/2 x 7 1/2 inches) to cover bottom. Arrange sliced pickle and cooked carrot strips in bottom of pan in any desired design and place in refrigerator until firm enough to hold design in place.

Combine ham, celery, olives, and remaining sliced pickle and cooked carrots, add remaining dressing, and blend thoroughly but lightly. Four into pan and place in refrigerator. When firm, unmold onto salad platter and garnish with whole ripe olives, lettuce, and tomato wedges. Slice to serve. Serves 12 to 14.

Cooked Lamb Rolled For Dinner

Cooked lamb left from yesterday's roast will make a roll that's served with fresh peas.

LAMB ROLL WITH GREEN PEA SAUCE

- 3/4 cup butter
1/2 cup flour
1/2 cups all-bran
1 teaspoon baking powder
1/2 teaspoon soda
1 teaspoon salt
1 cup shortening
2 cups ground cooked lamb
1/2 cup tomato catsup
1 teaspoon salt

Soak all-bran in buttermilk. Sift flour, baking powder, soda and 1 teaspoon salt together. Cut in shortening until mixture is like coarse corn meal. Add soaked all-bran, stir until dough follows fork around bowl. Turn onto floured board; knead lightly; roll or pat into rectangle 1 1/2-inch thick.

Combine lamb, catsup and remaining teaspoon salt; spread 1/2-inch thick layer over dough. Roll like jelly roll; place in baking pan and bake in moderately hot oven (425 degrees) about 30 minutes. Serve with green pea sauce.

GREEN PEA SAUCE

Make white sauce of 2 tablespoons butter, 2 tablespoons flour, and 1 cup milk. Add 2 tablespoons minced pimientos, 1/2 cup cooked peas, 1/2 teaspoon salt and 1/4 teaspoon pepper.

Alive and Glad of It

Durham Closes Teaching Life

Retiring Parrish School Principal Says He Is Sorry to Retire

By STEPHEN C. MERRILL H. F. Durham, 45-year old principal of Parrish junior high school, will conclude 45 years as a schoolmaster today when his 1000 pupils are dismissed for the summer, but he will not relinquish his Parrish position without thought of remaining in the educational field.

"I am only too sorry to have to retire," Principal Durham said early this week, in referring to his becoming subject to the compulsory state retirement act. "I am in good physical condition and I think I am a better school man than ever before in my life."

So he will probably take a year's vacation, then run for county school superintendent at the 1940 election, he said.

"The salient points, the fundamentals of education" have not changed since Durham as a high school graduate of 19 took his first rural school teachership in his native Polk county, Missouri, he feels and he believes "we will never be able to get very far away from them" because "verities don't change."

Reading, writing and arithmetic with their supplementary studies remain fundamental, in Durham's opinion, and only the accessories of education—the media through which these subjects are implanted in students, change.

Some people call manual training and health programs frills but to Durham's way of thinking they are valuable accessories to the school program and enable children to gain more of real value from the fundamentals than they used to. The socialized recitation method of instruction of today, in which teachers seek cooperation of students, is far superior to the old-time straight recitation system, he believes.

But extra-curricular activities as such have no place in any public school program, Durham declared. Student activities should all be intra-curricular, interlocked with the direct educational program, beginning and ending in the classroom, in his view of the question.

Principal Durham has spent the greater part of his past 45 years in the school room or administrative office but his summer vacations have been divided between his hobby, fishing, and selling such wares as real estate, water heaters and school supplies. He lives on a 40-acre ranch east of Salem acquired by the proceeds of his ventures in trading.

The retiring principal's educational record goes back to 1894 when he first taught a rural school. After being graduated from Warrensburg, Mo., normal school in 1907, he came to Salem to serve as principal of Grant school for a few days and of Yew Park school for the remainder of the year 1908-9. The following year he served as city superintendent at Woodburn, then returned to Crane, Mo., where he was city superintendent for two years.

Although he was elected city superintendent at Houston, Mo., in 1913, Durham came back to Salem to hold the principalship of Park school from 1913 to 1915. In the latter year he became principal of the old Lincoln junior high school, in 1917 was transferred to the same position at the time he was elected city superintendent at Woodburn, then returned to Crane, Mo., where he was city superintendent for two years.
