Closes 1/8 to 5/8 Cents Under Wednesday as Selling Heavy

CHICAGO, June 1-(AP)-Cooler weather with showers promised brought out more selling in the wheat market today.

Early price gains of almost a reports indicating crop deterioration has been checked and conditions improved in some districts selling started after wheat had advanced to a level at which July for the US grain belt and official contracts equaled the previous seasonal high of 70 % as a result of buying inspired by pessimistic private crop production estimates. The more optimistic government and private weather reports after mid-session encouraged profit takmuch as 1% cents from early highs and wheat closed 14-% lower than yesterday, July 78 %-78, September 77%-%.

While many traders preferred to await additional private crop reports scheduled for tomorrow. some took a pessimistic view of conditions on the basis of the Santa Fe railroad summary which was similar to the estimates of Mrs. E. H. Miller released yesterday. The usually optimistic railroad indicated Kansas harvest may not exceed 90,000,000 bushels compared with the government

The concern in her mother's stage whisper, her wildly flapping dishtowel, stopped Bee short.

"What's happened? Is Pop sick? Those kide get in a wreck coming up from L. A.? Oh, Mom! What HAPPENED!"

"Sh.h—come in the kitchen!" With the door carefully shut behind her, she pointed upward. "Be careful! They're up there. In Eddie's room. He-he-"

"He WHAT? Oh, Mom—what HAPPENED!"

"What happened? He's married, that's what. He's gone and got married. They-"

"MARRIED? Ed?—MAR-RIED!"

"De and dewn jerked Mrs. Wilson with the leight that is what. He's gone and got married. They-"

"MARRIED? Ed?—MAR-RIED!"

"Jou were the leilow with the made gave off a soft amber light. In the big chair by the radio his father sat reading the evening paper, occasionally putting a question to him, or reading a headline aloud:

"Another hold-up in east Oak-land. It says, chain store thieves net six hundred in cash, leave clerk tied to counter. I tell you in my day we didn't have that kind of monkey business. It's dirty politics and corveybody said you did fine!"

A door banged. Another voice—aman's—probably Edward's father.

MARRIED? Ed?—MAR-CHED!"

"MARRIED? Ed?—MAR-Wilson Wilson was getting to him, or reading a headline aloud:

"Another hold-up in east Oak-land. It says, chain store thieves net six hundred in cash, leave clerk tied to counter. I tell you in my day we didn't have that kind of monkey business. It's dirty politicians. I'd take the lot of 'em and deport 'em. Send 'em back where they came from—"

"That's right," Edward murmured. At times his father's antiqued dides and proposition of 'em and deport 'em. Send 'em back where they came from—"
