

Lionesses Are Honored at Affairs

One of the most important social events of the Lionesses convention was the breakfast given yesterday morning at the Salem Indian school at Chemawa when almost 300 Lionesses, their wives and guests dined in the large dining room of the school.

Mr. Barkley Newman, in charge of the breakfast, was also master of ceremonies and introduced the young Indian students who gave typical tribal dances and songs. One of the most amusing participants was tiny Elizabeth Jean A. Rickard, who appeared in several of the dances and remained afterwards to entertain guests informally.

The Lionesses met at noon at the Marion hotel for luncheon with over a hundred attending. The following participated in the musical program: Miriam Becke, Jack Wilbur, Bobby Bartges and Bob Mealy. Mrs. Graham Killam was toastmistress. Mrs. A. C. Haag gave the address of welcome. Mrs. Harry Scott introduced guests and Rev. David Ferguson gave the address.

Monday afternoon the Salem Lionesses auxiliary entertained with a beautifully appointed tea at the Fairmount Hill home of Mr. and Mrs. Earl Snell in compliment to the visitors.

Mrs. Harry Scott introduced to the receiving line which included Mrs. George P. Davis, Mrs. Graham Killam, Mrs. Oscar Shepherd and Mrs. Fred Heilbroner. Greeting guests at the door were Miss Helen Blundell.

Bouquets of summer flowers were arranged about the rooms and the tea table was covered with an Italian cut work cloth and bouquet of roses, snapdragons and delphinium flanked by blue and pink tapers in silver candelabra.

Presiding at the urns were Mrs. George Rossmann, Mrs. Walter Dry, Mrs. A. C. Haag and Mrs. Orval Longwell. Assisting in the serving were Mrs. B. M. Donaldson, Mrs. Oscar Olson, Mrs. Jacob Fahner, Mrs. Harold Pruitt, Mrs. Edward Majek, Mrs. E. M. Mett Welling, Mrs. Bruce Coley, Mrs. Dwight Lear, Mrs. Lester Wilcox, Mrs. Virgil Golden and Mrs. W. A varied and interesting program was given during the afternoon. Among the numbers was a violin solo by Miss Maxine Goodenough accompanied by Miss Olive Clemes, vocal solo by Miss Jewell Miner and a group of dance numbers by students from the Barbara Barnes school of the dance.

The governor's banquet was held last night at the Marion hotel with a number of distinguished guests present. A breakfast for the Lionesses will be held at the Marion hotel this morning with a steak dinner to follow the business session at Silver Creek Falls.

National Head of Auxiliary Guest Here

It's a real occasion when an organization as large and important as the American Legion auxiliary entertains its national president. But such is the case with the local auxiliary which will be host to Mrs. James Morris, national president from Bismarck, North Dakota, at luncheon in the Marion hotel next Monday noon.

Some 300 guests are expected to be present at the festive occasion, and reservations are being made with Mrs. Austin Wilson at 3369, and Mrs. Mem Pearce at 5174.

The leader of this organization of almost 500,000 women was elected at the national convention at Los Angeles last year. Mrs. Morris was organizing chairman of the Carrington, North Dakota, unit and its president for two years. She is eligible to auxiliary membership through the war service of her husband, Judge James Morris of the North Dakota supreme court. In 1931 she was the first president of her district and a delegate to the convention which organized the department of North Dakota. She served in various capacities and in 1926 was elected department vice-president, followed by two years as department rehabilitation chairman and then as department president. After leading her state organization during the year 1929-1930, she represented North Dakota on the national executive committee.

Mrs. Morris' service to the national organization began as area chairman of rehabilitation in 1930. The following year she was elected national vice-president of the northern division and from 1932 to 1934 served as chairman of the national poppy committee. For the past two years she has been chairman of the auxiliary's banquets and the Legion's national rehabilitation committee.

The Woman's Missionary society of the First Evangelical church will meet in the church parlors today at 2 o'clock. Mrs. George Selforth will lead the devotions and Mrs. James E. Campbell will conduct the lesson study. Special features will be given by the Mission band and the Little Herald children.

Ideas Given to Family Cook For Menus

HOUSEHOLD HINTS—For a new sandwich idea, consider this combination: cottage cheese, mashed small sardines, chives and dill pickle chopped. Fruit pars and wide jelly glasses are simplest of all refrigerator dishes and handy because there's an unlimited supply. Cover them with waxed paper and fasten with rubber band. Gingerbread, baked in a dripping pan and frosted before cutting in long bars, will give a new way to serve this popular dessert. Adding sardines to potato salad is another suggestion, offered by the canners of this delightful little fish. The combination smacks of the Scandinavian favorite. To increase the demand for filberts or walnuts, suggest putting them on salads, in bread puddings and eating them between meal snacks to your eastern and midwestern friends. There's been a swing to American foods for Americans, and even the Roosevelts included such typically American foods in the menus of the King and Queen of England, as hot dogs and strawberry shortcake. Mashed bananas and dried prunes are combined by one good cook in muffins. She uses half cup of dried prunes and 1 cup mashed banana in a muffin recipe that takes 2 cups flour. 1/4 teaspoon soda compensates for the banana. Your favorite French dressing, heated in a pan and poured over cooked greens will make the best ever sauce, and in a jiffy, too. Strawberry preserved or jam, or better yet, some of the surplus of fresh strawberry syrup from the preserves, makes good flavor for family drinks when a siphon bottle is in the equipment. For a good summer drink, freeze the contents of a can of grapefruit juice and any other you like, in the refrigerator tray until mushy, garnish with a maraschino cherry and you've a professional looking and elegant tasting concoction. Vegetables this year, remember that every season is a planting season, even if early spring is the best one. Fortunately, most flowers and vegetables have their early varieties (plants which mature in a short period). Radishes, lettuce, peas, beans, many of the annuals, and most of the half-hardy annuals may be planted right up to the first of July. Get your ground in shape and your seeds in now, and you have time for a near full season.

Cold Storage Vegetables Practical

We in the Willamette valley are quite unique in the number of cold storage lockers we are using for putting down fruits and vegetables. It's probably because fresh picked products are so available to us. In the cities it's hard to get the fruits and vegetables without having them stand for a day or two first, and freshness is a satisfactory method for old fruits and vegetables. Peas are a practical vegetable to put down, and should be blanched in slightly salty water just for a minute, packed in jars and frozen as soon as possible. Any unsatisfactory flavor in the peas when eaten can be traceable to the wrong varieties, for experimentation will tell you that some varieties of peas are far better frozen than others. While strawberries should be sliced and the cup of sugar per quart, sprinkled through the berries so that all will be covered, blackberries, boysenberries and others need not require such care. Green beans, while good in cold storage, require long cooking afterwards anyway, and are not so practical if there's a pressure cooker in the family that can be used for canning. Many women believe that beans are not enough better in cold storage to warrant the storage expense. Sour cherries, pitted and put down with 1 cup sugar to the quart make wonderful winter pies. Raspberries require the same amount of sugar per quart and prove one of the most satisfactory of foods to put in cold storage.
