

No Rap Meant At Mrs. FDR

Governor Dickinson Says He Had no Thought of Criticism

LANSING, Mich., July 20.—(AP)—Gov. Luren D. Dickinson said tonight he had no "thought of criticizing" Mrs. Eleanor Roosevelt, wife of the president, when he quoted her in a radio address last night.

In his broadcast the 80-year-old republican governor, who also is president of the Michigan anti-liquor league, repeated the first lady's seven-year-old admonition to young women concerning the amount of liquor they drink.

Gov. Dickinson expressed astonishment at newspaper headlines saying "Dickinson raps first lady" and "Governor criticizes Mrs. Roosevelt." He asked also how US Frank Murphy, former Michigan democratic governor who called Dickinson's remarks "intense and absolutely unjust," knew he was referring to Mrs. Roosevelt.

Name Not Mentioned

"I mentioned her name nowhere in my address," the governor said, "and told only two people outside of my family that the words I quoted were hers."

Gov. Dickinson said he had "analyzed" Mrs. Roosevelt's statement on lecture platforms after its publication on Dec. 9, 1932, but that he did this "locally" and without critical intent although he "went into the question of just how young people are going to know when to stop" drinking.

"I even said she couldn't be blamed," Dickinson elaborated, "when her husband had gone into a presidential campaign and called a special session of congress with repeal the objective in both cases."

With a slight movement of his shoulders, the frail executive expressed his unconcern over a statement by Murphy that Dickinson was being "used" by a combination of reactionary politicians and bigots.

"No politician has influenced me on this," Dickinson said.

His lone-handed fight against "high life" customs and drinking began after Dickinson resigned from the national conference of governors and was based on his observations at New York parties.

Alaska Town Hit By Conflagration

JUNEAU, Alaska, July 20.—(AP)—First authentic reports from Haines received here tonight said flames, starting about 6:15 a.m. today when a cigarette ignited some grass, spread to the storage shed of the Haines Light & Power company, and shot quickly over the entire plant, cutting off the city's water supply.

Before firemen could get the water turned on again the flames had spread to the Coliseum theatre and the postoffice building adjoining.

Ten companies of soldiers and fire equipment from nearby Chilkoot barracks rushed to the assistance of townfolk and prevented the blaze from spreading further.

The light plant was destroyed at an estimated loss of $20,000. The theatre was partially destroyed at a loss estimated by W. D. Gross, of Juneau, at $25,000.

700 Battle Blaze In National Park

YELLOWSTONE PARK, Wyo., July 20.—(AP)—Fourteen pumps drenched away today as 700 weary firefighters struggled to bring under control a 2,500 acre forest fire ravaging the densely-wooded, remote Mirror plateau sector of Yellowstone national park.

Thousands of gallons of water were poured on smouldering logs and flaming underbrush.

Fire parties hunted down and stamped out scores of spot blazes kindled by flaming embers carried by high winds yesterday and located by aerial scouting parties.

The big fire, started last Friday by lightning, was considered virtually corralled yesterday afternoon when the wind whipped it completely out of hand and more than doubled the denuded area.

Vista Water Will Come From Salem

About 55 residents of the Vista Heights water district decided Wednesday night in favor of obtaining their water from the city of Salem mains at a mass meeting held at the Weddie garage on the Pacific highway. The rejected alternative was to obtain the water from the Salem Supply company well southeast of Salem.

The meeting also approved purchase of a superior grade of pipe for the lines yet to be installed. A session of the Vista Heights water commission, of which W. R. Newmyer is chairman, was held last night but failed to make a final decision on the firm to furnish the necessary pipe. Six bids are under consideration three of them from out of the state.

Oddities in the News

MADISON, Wis., July 20.—(AP)—A half grown yearling bear took over the baggage car on a northwestern train near La Crosse today and had things well in hand until the train reached Madison.

He escaped from a wooden cage by chewing through the bars. The express messenger and a baggage man fled.

The baggage car was detached from the train here and Policeman Lester Shore, who formerly was employed at a zoo, solved the situation by inducing the bear into another cage.

The animal was one of three being shipped from Rochester, Minn., to a state park at Peoria, Ill.

READING, Pa., July 20.—(AP)—For more than a year employees of the law firm of Matten, Matten & Rick have been hunting a key to open an old safe. Last night burglars broke into the firm's offices, "cracked" the safe and left its valuable contents strewn over the floor.

BRIELLE, N. J., July 20.—(AP)—A fish identified by local experts as a long-finned albacore, strictly a native of the Pacific ocean, was caught 25 miles southeast of Manasquan today by Fred Fallon of Jersey City.

Weighing 40 pounds, the catch resembled a school tuna except that on each side of the 33-inch body was a fin 20 inches long and two inches broad.

Fallon played the albacore for 20 minutes before bringing it to the deck of the fishing boat. Fishermen said the only other specimens of that variety ever caught in the Atlantic seaboard were two taken 135 miles out in the Gulf Stream three years ago.

was a communist. He said Cannilonga once told him he had "met a party" who had told Cannilonga to feel Howard out in joining. Howard asked who the "party" was, and a few days later was informed by Cannilonga it was Bridges.

Howard said he told Cannilonga he did not intend to join the "party," and Shoemaker asked him what he understood the "party" to mean.

"It was distinctly understood," Howard replied, that when a maritime man says the "party" he means the communist party.

Prior to the calling of Howard, Marcus, now catering manager in San Francisco, occupied the stand.

He testified that in the summer of 1934 he worked at a restaurant at 501 Baker street called Pierre's Chateau, operated by Joseph Margolis, Arthur, his son, and Sam Goodman.

He said after working there for a time he discovered the place was communist headquarters for San Francisco. He said the elder Margolis frequently disagreed with his son and told the dining room help "we were sitting on a keg of dynamite."

Asked whether he ever saw Bridges there, Marcus said he had seen him as a guest in the cocktail lounge and bar.

This was just prior to the 1934 maritime strike, he said, and added, "During the strike I saw him quite frequently late at night. Sometimes I was an invited guest at his table myself."

Wage Act Change Quit by Andrews

WASHINGTON, July 20.—(AP)—Elmer F. Andrews, chief of the wage-hour administration, bowed to the opposition of organized labor today and withdrew his support from a proposal which would exempt from the wage-hour law "white collar" workers getting a guaranteed monthly income of $200 or more.

Exemption of this class of workers was among the amendments recommended to this session of congress by Andrews.

"I put that in as a thing that would make the act administratively easier," he said at a press conference.

"It was opposed by organized labor and now that organized labor has done such a swell job of helping me fight my battles, I think it would be unethical for me to press for that amendment if they object to it."

An American Federation of Labor spokesman said the AFL never had announced its position on the "white collar" exemption but considered that $200 a month was too low.

"CIO spokesmen said they were opposed to all wage-hour amendments unless the act could be made stronger."

Kuhn Pays $5 Rap And Says He Was Sober as a Judge

WEBSTER, Mass., July 20.—(AP)—Fritz Kuhn, German-American band leader, pleaded guilty today to being drunk and profane, but reversed his field after paying a $5 fine and declared he was sober linguistically as well as personally during his recent argument with a Webster cop.

But before he spoke, Henry Plasse, the motorcycle policeman who arrested Kuhn Sunday morning, got in a word for himself.

Plasse, a former professional boxer, accepted the hand shake Kuhn offered directly after the arraignment, but said:

"I'll tell you something, mister, if I had been in plain clothes, I would have fixed you so your mother wouldn't know you. No man could call me the things you said."

ly the next morning to return to Jerusalem.

"After about 45 minutes of easy riding," he said, "we were accosted by an armed Arab rebel who spoke a little English informed me I would be able to return to Jerusalem but my son must remain until $5,000 was paid."

I was escorted to the outskirts of Jerusalem by two rebels.

(Dr. Goldner telegraphed relatives in Cleveland that "Gerould is safe. The Goldners left the United States June 10 on an 11-weeks tour of the Holy Land.")

The Arab leader took a Koran from his cloak and swore on it that if the money were paid, he would not harm a hair of the minister's head.

Danzig Situation Gets More Tense

stoutly defended Stein's conduct and said the incident "is renewed evidence of the danger brought about by the artificially stimulated psychosis of nervousness in Poland."

"But it is questionable if one may still speak of nervousness—it is more rightly that we are confronted with deliberate Polish provocation."

The semi-official Polish explanation of the shooting said the Pole, who belonged to special border troops administered by the finance ministry, was killed by a rifle bullet on Polish territory about 300 feet from Danzig soil.
