Duncan Campbell Billed to Speak

AFL Representative Will Give Main Talk at Unions' Outing

The main speaker at the annual Union Labor picnic, to be held this year at Pat's Acres, between Aurora and Canby on August 20, will be Duncan Campbell, AF of L representative in the northwest, according to announcement yesterday by C. W. Cray of the central labor council. Selection of another speaker is not yet complete, though it is known that he will come from the label trades section of the AF of L.

Committee chairmen for the picnic were announced recently by Wilbur Duncan, assistant business manager of the building trades council and general chairman for the event. They include Otto A. Krueger, grounds; Earl Sharp, publicity; Ralph Hornaday, finances; Lloyd McFarlane, police; Leo DuBois, music; C. E. Lounsbury, parade; Walter Chambers, label; Herbert Barker, speakers; L. Winklenwerder, program; and C. W. Cray and Frank Boehringer, tickets. A meeting of the general committee for the picnic has been announced for tonight.

Committee members for the picnic have urged that it is not limited to the membership of trade unions and their families, but in rather open to the general public. A parade through Salem streets has been announced for August 18th to precede the picnic. Surrounding communities have been urged to participate both in the parade and the picnic.

Attention Called To Selling Scheme

Attention of the Salem public was called to a "promotion scheme" operated by out-of-town salesmen, Thursday by the Salem Better Business bureau, which reported that although the promoters have a tieup with a local welfare organization, the percentage that organization receives is exceedingly small. The selling is being carried on by telephone, the business bureau, affiliated with the Salem Merchants association, explained. The bureau raised a question as to the values represented by some of the merchandise.

Oregon Insurance Figures Released

Over 43 Millions Paid by Oregonians Upon Premiums in '38

During the calendar year 1938 the people of Oregon paid out $43,526,444 in insurance premiums upon all classes of insurance, the annual report of Hugh Earle, state insurance commissioner, released here Thursday revealed.

Protection against the loss of life and property totalled $1,795,273,046, excluding such types of coverage as ocean marine and that carried by casualty and reciprocal lines.

Stock fire companies reported a total of $814,778,027 insurance in force, 70 per cent of which constituted indemnification against fire loss.

474,664 Life Policies

The life group reported 471,664 policies in force with total coverage amounting to $701,076,648, while the fraternal benefit societies showed a total of 52,101 certificates and $49,873,519 of insurance.

Domestic company investments in Oregon represented 27.2 per cent of their total admitted assets, those of the fire companies being $690,934, fraternal $789,246, life $3,934,409 and miscellaneous companies $2,052,612.

Revenues of the insurance department for 1938 aggregated $845,891.11, an increase of $67,058.24 over 1937 and $73,019.04 over the 10-year average.

Total expenditures for the operation of the department amounted to $43,691.61, leaving an unexpended balance of $302,184.50 available to the general fund of the state.

Many Go to Bat For Police Chief

Messages Flood Offices of Governor Urging Pray's Retention

Many telegrams and letters continued to arrive at the executive department Thursday urging Governor Charles A. Sprague to reappoint Charles P. Pray as superintendent of the state police department.

A number of these telegrams came from organizations while others were signed by individuals. Several of the authors said they were not acquainted with Pray but were interested in the future of the state police organization.

Pray's second term as superintendent of state police expires at midnight Monday. He originally was appointed superintendent of state police at the time the department was created under the Julius L. Meier administration and was reappointed for a four-year term by ex-Governor Charles H. Martin.

Governor Is Mum

Governor Sprague again refused to comment on the appointment Thursday.

Rumors have been in circulation here for several days that Pray would not be reappointed.

Under the law creating the Oregon state police department the term of the superintendent is definite and he does not continue to serve until his successor has been appointed and qualified.
