Mr. Lee was born in Jackson, Minn., September 22, 1870. He lived for a time in Canada before coming to Salem 19 years ago.

Survivors include the widow, Mrs. Mary J. Lee; son, Clarke E. Lee of Salem; brother, Herbert Lee of Jackson, Minn.; granddaughters, Joan Barbara and Carol Jane Lee of Salem.

West's Support of Wage Act Lauded

In San Francisco recently for a speech before the national convention of the American Newspaper Guild, Elmer F. Andrews, national wage-hour administrator, took time out to talk about revisions in the fair labor standards act that would apply to the west, particularly to California. Said he: "Good wages are already paid here to agriculture and cannery workers. Employers argue that because of the seasonal nature of the work longer hours should be permitted. It seems a reasonable position." California is generally a "white spot" on the wage-hour map, Andrews said.—(IIN).

Glances into the future, most of them pleasant; but all of them useful, are provided for eight persons who submitted questions to Miss Katherine Ellis, psychic now appearing at the Grand theatre.

Future Events Revealed by Psychic
In Answer to Questions Asked Daily As She Appears on Stage of Theatre

Q. Will I succeed in getting my songs published and before the public and if so, how, when and where? P.S.

A. Yes, you will get your songs published by a N.Y. publishing company, but they will not be put forth with any real success until 1940. 1941 is a highlight for receiving money through your song writing. This will be a move and a change to the state of California in the next six months.

Q. Is my apartment house recently completed going to be a success? C.A.A.

A. Yes, it will be very successful. You will get a little more money into additional improvements. You will be rather disgruntled about this. It will come up in February. Do not sign, or trade, or sell until 1942, because there will be much money derived up to that time.

Q. When will I sell my home in another city? M.M.

A. You will sell about the 15th of October, for almost all cash, but not get quite the price you are asking. I advise you to take the offer, as you can put the money to much better advantage. Be careful of an injury to your right leg.

Q. Will my right knee ever get better? C.D.

A. It will be necessary for an operation on your right knee in order to overcome the condition. Also, you will sign some legal papers with a sale or trade. You will receive some money in return that you will use for good advantage for a new business.

Q. Shall I dispose of a farm in the near future? S.C.

A. Yes, you will have to hang on to the farm until 1940 as you will get more money for the same. I would advise you to keep a portion of it—the NE corner facing the highway. It will prove very valuable in 1942.

Q. Will my girl that I am going to marry me some day? E.B.

A. Yes, she will fall in love with you, but you will be the one who will be fickle, as you will meet a redheaded girl that you will find more interesting, and there will be a hasty marriage in 1940.

Q. Will we settle in or near Salem or return east? Which is the best move. W.H.D.

A. You will make a trip back east again, but you will not be content. You will find yourself returning here, buying property, and being very successful with a business here in Salem. A trip east will be an unnecessary expense, and I advise you not to go.

Q. Is my sister going to have a baby? N.H.

A. Yes, there will be a baby boy in 1940. Three children later, two girls and a boy. You should study nursing or chemistry, at which you would be very successful.

Pine Residents Given Surprise

Woman Moves in and Gets in Bed, Surprising All Concerned

Whether Thursday night's moon had an effect as baleful as its appearance is an open question, but it is clear that events of a peculiar nature occurred in the 900 block on Pine street at that time.

The first surprise was when residents, whose names were not reported, living on Pine street called the city first aid car and reported that a strange woman had entered their house and had started to go to bed. Attendants of the first aid car, when it arrived, offered to take the woman to her home in West Salem, but she asked to be dropped at a corner. The only hitch was that she failed to know which corner.

The people who had called the car then reported that her automobile was on the next street. Inspection of the vehicle revealed a male companion drunk and asleep. Both were thereupon taken to the police station, where they were questioned and then released. No charges were filed.

On the same night the first aid car played tag with a man whose head was reported cut and bleeding. He was first reported from 639 North Liberty, but had disappeared by the time the car arrived. A second call from the 200 block on North Commercial brought both police and first aid, and the latter unit treated Jack Beckman for cuts on the forehead. He refused to discuss the origin of his injuries.

William Mitchell, 70, was dead from a heart attack at Route 7, Box 507 by the time the first aid car responded to a call earlier in the evening. He had been living with his brother, F. E. Mitchell.

Hood County PUD May Be Attacked

Hydro Commission Makes no Answer to Rumor of Impending Suit

Members of the state hydro-electric commission declared Friday that they would make no external statement in reply to reports that a legal attack was to be made on the recent action of the commission in creating the Hood River county people's utility district.

Charles E. Stricklin, secretary of the commission, said the people's utility law, like any new act, was subject to legal interpretation by the courts.

It originally was proposed to create a people's utility district in Hood River county including virtually all of the Hood River valley and the city of Hood River. At the special election the rural districts favored the district while the city of Hood River voted against.

The commission later approved a proclamation creating the district embracing only the rural area included in the original proposal. The majority vote at the election favored the project.

Man Succumbs as Operation Starts

J. L. Bell, 32, of 930 Broadway, died yesterday in a dental chair at the office of Dr. C. W. Clifford in the First National bank when he had come for treatment for a throat infection resulting from a tooth extraction made by another dentist.

A minor operation had been ordered by Dr. Frank E. Brown, who at Clifford's request called as consultant, and Bell was placed under an anesthetic. Shortly after, before surgical work could commence, he was seized by a heart attack and succumbed before he could be taken to a hospital.

Dr. H. B. Barlow came into the office and gave what assistance was possible, and the Salem first aid car was called, though it arrived too late to be of assistance.

Bell is survived by his widow, Cora, and a son, Steve, aged 7.

Cafe Price Rise For Legion Denied

Visiting Legionnaires and the general public may expect a rise in restaurant menu prices during the coming state American Legion convention here next week.

That was the announcement yesterday by the Salem Cafe and Restaurant Owners, affiliate of the Merchants' association, to halt rumors that the prices of cafes would be raised during the convalescence from the prevailing rates.

State Deficit Is Held Beneficial

A small deficit in state funds sometimes operates to the advantage of the taxpayer, David Eccles, state budget director, declared here Friday.

Eccles said that when the state has a large cash balance certain officials are eager to increase their expenditures. When there is a deficit in the state coffers the same officials whittle their costs to stay within their appropriations, Eccles said.

The budget director said he was now preparing a statement showing the financial condition of the state as of July 1, 1939.

Celebrated Case of Lessards' Whale Revived, Owners Allowed to Keep It

Oregon's celebrated whale case, originating in Multnomah county in 1931, took a new angle Friday when the state board of control sent a letter to Edward O. Lessard and Joseph T. Lessard, authorizing them to keep the carcass of the whale, provided they pay the court costs amounting to $103.90.

The Lessards, after killing the whale in Columbia slough, were arrested on warrants issued in both the federal and state courts. The state, through Attorney General VanWinkle, later brought suit to revivify the whale and the case was tried before Circuit Judge Crawford in Multnomah county. Judge Crawford held for the Lessards. The supreme court reversed Judge Crawford's decision.

State Refuses Carcass
Subsequent to the supreme court opinion the Lessards offered to surrender the whale to the state, but he refused to accept it. A few months ago Governor Martin wrote the board of control that the interests of the state would be best served by dropping further legal action and allowing the whale to remain in the Lessards' custody.

This was followed by the offer of the board of control to allow the Lessards to keep the whale at their Columbia county ranch, upon payment of the court costs.

What will become of the whale, provided the Lessards refused to pay the court costs, is a matter yet to be determined by state officials.

Legion Session Events Varied

When You've Seen One You May not Have Seen Them All

Even though the American Legion has been holding state conventions in Oregon for 20 years and there may be some tendency to remark "When you've seen one, you've seen 'em all," there are going to be some wholly new features—among them the "Streets of Paris."

On the west side of Liberty street between State and Ferry convention visitors will observe a neat row of sandbags, reminiscent of wartime air-raid precautions. Salem residents may get a vague notion that about here, in pre-convention days, the Eiker garage was situated.

After purchasing a ticket at the ornate box office—which now is the general convention ticket office on the corner of State and Liberty—and passing in through the aperture between the rows of sandbags, the patron will be in the "Streets of Paris," fitted out in such manner as to stir memories of those who were in Paris at Uncle Sam's expense 21 years ago.

And there'll be something doing at the time from 1 p. m. to 1 a. m., under the direction of Monte Brooks, master of ceremonies. Sometimes it will be the Five Mountain Jennies, sometimes it will be Curt Ferguson's cowboy band, and every now and then it will be the Argentine tango dancers, the three Dixie hoopers, or Pauline, song and dance artist—or perhaps it will be Mile. Pitt, from Paris.

Also there will be refreshments. The "Streets of Paris" will welcome all convention visitors.

Minneman Funeral Is Slated Monday

Funeral services for Mrs. Stella Minneman, 49, who was fatally injured in an automobile accident Thursday, will be held Monday, August 7, at 2 p. m. at Christ's Lutheran church. Rev. O. T. Just and Rev. L. Ludwig will officiate.

Her husband, Rev. Amos E. Minneman, pastor of Christ Evangelical Lutheran church, and friends yesterday requested that contributions to a memorial fund be devoted to church mission work be substituted for flowers at the services, since Mrs. Minneman was especially interested in that branch of the church program. Friends were asked to place any money gifts for missions in sealed envelopes and deposit them at the Clough-Barrick mortuary.

The condition of Stella Minneman, 17, who was riding in the car with her mother at the time of the accident, is considered serious. Ruth, 15, and Margaret, 10, however, are showing improvement, according to the Salem General hospital, where all three were taken for treatment. Leona Busch, another passenger, was released from the hospital after x-rays were taken.
