Mt. Angel Bright With Decorations

MT. ANGEL.—The city of Mt. Angel is taking on a festive air as business firms and streets are decked out in bright flags, heralding the approach of the fourth annual Flax Festival here August 11 to 20.

The first flax festival was held in 1936 as a community harvest celebration, but the affair has increased in size yearly until it now draws the interest of a number of surrounding counties. Out of the staging of the festival has grown the organization known as the Flaxarians, a line-clad, uniformed marching group which numbers over 80 members. The Flaxarians, in charge of the three-day fete this year, have added several new features to the program, chief among which is Children's day, Saturday, August 19, when a kiddies' pet parade will headline the day's attractions, to be followed by a pony polo game, bicycle and other races, and a three-act play which will complete the day's festivities.

Mt. Angel Will Open Seminary

Benedictines Will Send out Four Monks to Lead new Institutions

MT. ANGEL.—The monks of St. Benedict at Mt. Angel, have accepted the urgent appeal of His Excellency William Mark Duke, D. D., archbishop of Vancouver, B. C., to open in September his archdiocesan seminary of Christ the King located at Ladner, B. C. This is the preliminary step toward the establishment of a new benedictine monastery. Repeated invitations have come to the benedictines of Mt. Angel from Vancouver diocese as well as others to establish houses of the order, but circumstances have hitherto made it impossible to comply. The present archbishop duke began negotiations with Mt. Angel in 1932.

Rt. Rev. Thomas Meier, Abbot of St. Benedict's abbey here, pointed out that making the new foundation at the present time entails great sacrifices on the part of his comparatively young community. He wishes to go. Very Rev. Cyril Lebold, O. S. B., as religious superior, and four other monks of Mt. Angel will be sent at once to become professors at the new institution. Abbot Thomas has appointed Rev. Eugene Medved, O. S. B., as rector of the Ladner seminary. The seminary of Christ the King is located at Ladner, B. C., ten miles from Vancouver. The benedictines of Mt. Angel are familiar with the Canadian west coast having built and conducted the Christie residential school for Indian children on Vancouver Island and administered to outlying missions since 1900. This will be the first daughter house of St. Benedict's abbey which was itself founded in Oregon in 1882, taking its origin from Engelberg, Switzerland, an abbey having a continuous existence of over 900 years. Rt. Rev. Adelhelm Odermatt, O. S. B., was the founder of Mt. Angel abbey 55 years ago. The community now number 49 priests, monks, 15 clerics and novices and 17 lay-brothers.
