Specialties Grow

PORTLAND, Ore., Aug. 15-(AP) -A major development in the specialty crop industry of Oregon has been the expanding of turkeys and farm seeds, an Oregon State college extension bulletin showed today.

The cash farm income from turkeys in 1938 was $4,235,000, an increase of $491,600 over 1937. Linn county had the high income last year with $652,000. Douglas county was second and Yamhill fourth. The value of specialty forage crop seed decreased last year, but the tonnage was greater. The 1938 output of 66,345,500 pounds was valued at $3,496,400 compared to the $4,430,800 value of 54,360,-500 pounds in 1937.

Other specialty enterprises ranking high are greenhouse, flower and nursery crops, $2,-742,600; small fruits, $2,659,000; hops, $2,553,000 and nuts, $1,-568,000.

Farm Chemurgy Subject Tonight

Dr. J. H. Hale, member of the United States farm chemurgical council and one of the nation's eminent farm scientists, will speak Wednesday night at 8 o'clock at the McMinnville chamber of commerce.

He will speak about new outlets for farm products and possibilities for farmers in the Willamette valley. The appearance is sponsored by the state farmers union. Dr. Hale is with the Dow Chemical company.
