

Telling Shots From Cameramen on the European War Fronts

Rail Center in Poland Wrecked

This radiophoto sent from Berlin shows wreckage of the railway station at Tarnowitz, Poland, demolished in the German-Polish warfare. German sources said the station was destroyed by retreating Polish soldiers.

Germans Advance as Great Britain Comes

This Radiophoto from Berlin shows German soldiers on motorcycles to throw her military forces into the fight to hold back Adolf Hitler and in tanks advancing through Poland as Great Britain decided.

Londoners Jam Underground Shelter as War Comes

Many of the Londoners shown entering the underground shelter in St. James' park were still smiling as they walked down the steps after the state of war between Britain and Germany became known. Note some of the Britishers waving their gas mask canisters. Picture sent by radio to New York from London.

Latest Radiophotos From European War Area!

who said in San Francisco, learning that Nazi planes had bombed Warsaw: "Twenty thousand Poles on the Pacific coast are shocked by the action, but are confident the European democracies will fight for a just cause."

Hitler Signs Army Orders

Adolf Hitler is shown in this picture radioed from Berlin to New York signing a proclamation to Germany's eastern army in which he announced his intention of joining his forces invading Poland. Hitler's aide stands at right.

Soviet Envoy Reaches Berlin

Alexander Shkvarzeff (left), new Soviet ambassador to Germany, was greeted by Germany's Secretary of State Ernst Weizsacker (center), upon arrival at Tempelhof airfield, Berlin. At right is Baron von Doernberg, chief of protocol of the German foreign office. (This picture radioed from Berlin to New York.)

British Troops Await War Move

While statesmen of France and Britain debated what action to take regarding Germany's military activity in Poland, these British Tommies lolled about at London railroad station wondering what was to be their destination. (Picture radioed from London to New York.)