Long Baseline, Pitching Box to Be Utilized in Historie Tilt

Determined to prove that Kip-ling was wrong, at least with respect to games played with a bat and a horsehide-covered ball, Salem's Old Timers will take to Di Maggio Clouts No. 27 the softball diamond at Sweetland field tonight at 8 o'clock against the state champion Pade-Barrick

And, demonstrating that they are asking no undue advantages, the girls have asked that the 60foot bases and the pitching distance of 37 feet, 8 inches, which they encountered on their successful jaunt into California, be marked out for this game.

Yocom Probable Pitcher The girls' team will be at full strength with Rae Yocom probably on the mound. The Old Timers, who have vowed they are going to play "for keeps," will include Les Sparks, pitcher; Ben Pade, catcher; Dr. L. E. Barrick, first base; Don Hendrie, second base; Nile Hilborn, third base; Cliff Parker, shortstop: Ray Moon, Hollis Huntington, R. L. Hooper, Van Wieder, Les Pearmine and Carl Gabrielson, outfield and utility.

Even aside from the fundamental issues involved, the game should attract a big crowd for the reason that it is a benefit for Juanita Moe, Pade-Barrick catcher who was injured in a game shortly before the state tournament. The admission prices that were charged during the regular season will prevail.

"Play-for-Play" Pros Are Peers of Collegians in Eastern Game

NEW YORK, Sept. 7-(AP)-The well-balanced power of the New York Giants, champions of the National league, put the clincher tonight on the professionals' argument that a good "play-forplay" team has it all over a crack collegiate football combination. Before 38,667 fans in the polo grounds, they belted the Eastern college all stars, who boasted virtually the entire Pittsburgh powerhouse of 1938, 10 to 0 in the fourth annual game for the Tribune fresh air fund. In the actual statistics, the stars led with ten first downs to seven and a total of 171 yards gained by rushing and passing to 155. And with Luckman, who goes for the Chicago pro Bears this season, a large ball of fire in the final quarter, they almost made it.

Luchman spear-headed a 59yard drive in the closing minutes with his ball-carrying and passing, only to see the alert Dale Burnett intercept a pass on the pros' nine-yard line.

Gleason was hurt in spring practice, a fact not very widely published. None of the scribes around Portland were aware of it until Coach Jimmy Phelan disclosed that Gleason's injury had not responded to a course of treatment, an operation presumably would be necessary and anyway William would not play this autumn.

Gleason, who supplied most of the limited offensive spark shown by Washington last season, injured his back.

What with the loss of two ends, one guard, one tackle and one center, Oregon State College's great line that carried the Beavers to third place in the coast conference last fall, will need a good deal of reconstruction but both Coach Lon Stiner and his subaltern, Jim Dixon, they think have the proper nucleus for the rebuilding.
