

Efficiency of Mattress Due To Spring

Despite the fact that the first wire bedspring came from a buggy seat, they have long since grown out of the horse and buggy era.

Many people are under the impression that the comfort of a bed is due mostly to the mattress, with the result that they get modern mattresses to use on top of out-moded bedsprings, but modern mattresses and springs are designed to be used together. The right bedspring will supply one-third of the bed's resilience when used with an innerspring mattress, and two-thirds with a solid mattress.

An old-fashioned bedspring used with a new innerspring mattress lacks efficiency because it is too soft to provide adequate support, and in a short time will break down even the best mattress.

During the past ten years, bed-springs have been greatly improved to keep pace with mattress innovations. To provide the proper foundation for the popular innerspring models, manufacturers have devised coil springs that have specially constructed top features. Some of these have platform tops consisting of flexible, horizontal steel bands, and others have different looking coils, called convolute, that form a flat surface when in use.

Boxsprings are as popular as ever, but they have been redesigned since grandmother's day when they served as the foundation for her feather bed. The new boxsprings are lighter in weight, and those sold with innerspring mattresses are firmer than they were in years gone by.

Mrs. Johnson Dies, Was Pioneer Here

Funeral Services Today for Salem Native at Portland

PORTLAND, Sept. 12.—(P)—A long illness was fatal here today to Mrs. Edith Waldo Johnson, member of a pioneer Oregon family and wife of Folger Johnson, prominent Portland architect.

The daughter of the late Judge and Mrs. John Waldo, Mrs. Johnson was born at Salem, Sept. 23, 1885. Surviving are her widower and a son, Folger.

Waldo Hills, near Salem, were named for the family, and Waldo Hall at Oregon State college, Corvallis, commemorates her mother.

Mrs. Johnson gained recognition as a civic leader and a playwright. She was a board member of the Portland Civic theatre, past official of the League of Women Voters, active in the American Red Cross during the World war, member of the repeal convention and the child welfare commission at one time. She was co-author with Susie Aubrey Smith of two prize plays.

In addition to attending Miss Fenton's school, San Francisco, and St. Helen's Hall, Portland, she studied at the Sorbonne in Paris. Edith H. Waldo was married to Folger Johnson, then of Atlanta, Ga., January 7, 1914.

Funeral services will be held Wednesday at 4 p. m. at Portland from Finley's chapel.

Women Fight for Poland, too

Women as well as the men are fighting for Poland these days. Here is a group of officers of the Polish women's legion admiring a new flag presented to them by Marshal Edward Smigly-Rydz, director general of the Polish army. These women are veterans of the Russo-Polish independence fight 20 years ago. They are shown at Lwow.

Reclamation Law Aids Farms Here

CLATSkanie, Sept. 12.—(P)—Farming areas have been aided by the new reclamation law passed by congress, John C. Page, bureau of reclamation commissioner, told the Oregon Reclamation congress last night.

The statute, Page said, provides for supplemental water supplies or construction of storage dams for districts, individuals or municipalities where water shortages are experienced.

Simple Methods of Quints' Births Can Save Thousands of Other Lives

By STEPHEN J. McDONOUGH

Associated Press Science Writer

CLEVELAND, Sept. 12.—The lives of thousands of babies could be saved by using the same simple methods that kept the Dionne quintuplets alive, Dr. Allan Roy Dafeo declared today.

He reminded the American Congress of Obstetrics and Gynecology that babies born prematurely, as the quintuplets were, should be put immediately under blankets or kept warm in any crude incubator, fed only with breast milk, protected from infection, and handled as little as possible.

"The eternal vigilance of well-trained nurses overshadows almost every other essential in the care of the premature infant," he added. "Premature babies should be under the care of such nurses throughout every minute of the 24 hours."

The quintuplets are well into their sixth year as normal girls. Their care after the first year of life "has been no different from that ordinarily supplied to any well-cared for infant." Only during the first year of life, and particularly the first few weeks do premature or "fragile babies" require special care.

Birth of the quintuplets was an emergency in which the best use had to be made of materials at hand. One of Dr. Dafeo's assistants sat in front of an open heating blanket to wrap around each of the little girls immediately after she was born. Each was handled as little as possible and then only in front of the open oven door. Later they were put in baskets surrounded by hot water bottles and kept warm until individual incubators were rushed to Callender, Ont., from the United States.

War Eclipses all Political Issues, Mahoney Believes

KLAMATH FALLS, Sept. 12.—(P)—Willis Mahoney, democratic political leader, said today he would not make a political speech when he appears before the Willamette democratic society at Portland September 20.

"This is a time to adjourn politics," he explained. In consequence, he added, he will speak on "America's position in the world war crisis."

Mahoney has been identified with a movement to push President Roosevelt's candidacy for a third term.

Curfew for Jews

BERLIN, Sept. 12.—(P)—The government today ordered all Jews henceforth to be off the streets at 8 p. m. The Jewish community was advised privately of the curfew order and told to inform all Jews.
