Launching Begins new Coast Boom

With gaily flying pennants and an American flag on her bow, the US Maritime commission's new C-8 type ship Sea Arrow is pictured as she was about to take to the water for the first time recently at Oakland, Cal. She was the first large vessel to be launched on the Pacific coast in 17 years. Jobs for 1,500 coast shipbuilding workers were assured as seven additional vessels were ordered built in San Francisco bay yards at a cost of some $16,000,000. (IIN photo.)

Salem Centennial Fete Broached by Governor

Preparations for an extensive celebration of Salem's centennial in 1940 were foreseen following Monday's season-opening luncheon of the Salem chamber of commerce, at which the matter was broached by Governor Charles A. Sprague who was the speaker.

The governor pointed out that the Lee mission mills were built here in 1840, first buildings on the present site of Salem. His suggestion was endorsed in a talk by Carl Hoge, who urged a "modernistic" celebration which would attract large numbers of visitors.

Governor Sprague also suggested that the Salem community, in recognition of the benefits the city derived from construction of the new capitol here, raise by public subscription the funds necessary for erecting suitable flagpoles in front of the statehouse.

In a mood for pointing out community tasks, the governor outlined the North Santiam highway situation and after pointing out that the fortuitous Niagara dam project had solved for the most part the problem of the Gates-Detroit relocation, there would remain 4.7 miles of old, narrow road from Gates to Niagara which Marion county should relocate and build according to modern standards at an approximate cost of $250,000.

Those attending were Mr. and Mrs. Charles Norton, Mr. and Mrs. Fred Egelus, Mr. and Mrs. Paul Tharalson, Mrs. James Hartley, Mrs. Lillian Williams and Mrs. Leon Hanson. Accompanying the party were State Commander Merritt B. Huntley and Mrs. Huntley of Eugene. Commander and Mrs. Huntley were the weekend guests of Mr. and Mrs. Walter McPheerson of Salem.

Bad Times "Wearing Out"
The depression seems to have "worn out" so far as Oregon is concerned, the governor said, cited reasons for optimism here in spite of world uncertainties.

State Industrial Payroll Gaining

Oregon's industrial payrolls during July and August aggregated $27,418,243, as against $25,346,809 during the same period in 1938, the state industrial accident commission reported Monday.

The total was approximately $1,200,000 less than for the corresponding months in 1937, which was a depression high.

The number of men employed during August was 116,144, an increase of 9000 over August a year ago. The average daily wage in August was $4.51, highest in two years and seven cents above the average daily wage a year ago.

Albany-Bend Road Opened to Traffic

The South Santiam highway, between Albany and Bend, was opened for through traffic Sunday, September 17, by state department officials announced.

State Engineer R. H. Baldoek said no attempt would be made to keep the highway open during the winter months and it might be necessary to close it within the next few weeks in event of heavy rains.

The highway engineer said heavy rains would make the road slippery and dangerous.
