Marker Will Be Placed Sunday

On Sunday afternoon, Chemeketa chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, and the Polk county court will place a bronze marker on the site of the old Jefferson institute between Rickreall and Dallas.

The program, which begins at 2:30 in the afternoon, will open with a greeting by Mrs. Herbert Ostlund of Salem, regent of the Chemeketa chapter. DAR; invocation by Rev. Walter Duff; an address by Arthur Vease; a talk by Oscar Hayter; dedication of the marker by Mrs. Ostlund, group singing and several appropriate songs by Paul Launer and James Leitch.

The public is invited to the dedication which will take place on the La Creole, just west of Rickreall.

Mrs. H. C. Eaken of Dallas, a member of Chemeketa chapter, worked out the plan to place a permanent marker on the site of the Jefferson institute, pioneer educational institution. The school was founded in 1846 by John E. Lyle on the donation claim of Carey Embree. A log cabin was erected and Mr. Lyle, who had left his position in Illinois, became its teacher. Jefferson institute has been located by Eugene Hayter, grandson of Carey Embree, at a point along the little-used county road between Bowersville and the main highway.

Mrs. Grant, Daughter Going Away

Mrs. Irene Grant and her daughter, Wanda, have been the inspiration of several parties the last few weeks. Mrs. Grant and Wanda are leaving the first of next week for Honolulu where they will make their home.

Miss Charolette Alexander entertained Wednesday night with a shower and dinner for Miss Wanda Grant. The table was set with fall flowers and bright favors for a few of Wanda's close friends.

Guests were Miss Margaret Cooley, Miss Mary Ann Croston and Miss Joan Leheat.

Mr. and Mrs. Warren Keeney have just returned to Salem to live, after spending almost a year in Oakland, Cal. Mr. Keeney is connected with Montgomery Ward company.

Club Meals on List for Winter

Comes winter, and with it the usually pleasant task of planning one's part in the covered dish menu. Often it's a case of making money at a PTA or church dinner.

Behind the scenes of every well served, satisfying club meal are careful planning, wise buying and good management. These plans include something different, not too hard to prepare, and foods that may be served with the available equipment (if any). So the story goes.

In choosing the meat around which to plan the luncheon, consider the ease of carving. If you decide on ham, order a boned and rolled ham and allow an extra five minutes per pound on the baking time given for bone-in ham. Estimate three to four servings per pound. It is always wise to have one or two small cans of ham on hand in case your guest numbers swell beyond the "stretchability" of the baked ham.

Another ham possibility is one of the several types of table-ready cooked or baked ham. Have the meat dealer slice this for you, then tie the loaf into shape. A 10-pound boneless ham roll or ham loaf will cut into 50 good-sized slices. This ham may be reheated in a moderate oven about one hour before serving if you want a hot meat.

We'll pass by the proverbial meat loaf of church supper fame with but a word. If you solicit the loaves, give a standard recipe to each maker so that the loaves will simulate uniformity.

Today's Menu

Oysters have been rather neglected in our Friday menus, so we'll have a dish that includes this delicate seafood.

- Cabbage-pepper salad
- Oyster casserole
- Baked Italian squash
- Buttered carrots
- Popovers
- Graham cracker pie.

OYSTER CASSEROLE

- 24 oysters
- 1 tablespoon minced onion
- 3 tablespoons butter
- 1/4 cup celery
- 1 tablespoon minced parsley
- 1/4 cup water
- 9 rusks, crumbled
- 1 egg
- Salt
- Pepper.

Chop oysters. Lightly brown onion in 2 tablespoons butter, add celery, parsley and water. Cover and simmer until celery is tender. Stir in 1/4 the crumbled rusks, beaten egg, oysters, and season to taste. Put in buttered baked potatoes or toast, or in casserole. Mix remaining rusk fried noodle nests.

crumbs with 1 tablespoon butter, melted and spread on top of oyster mixture. Bake in moderate oven (375 degrees) until crumbs are brown. 6 portions.

Creamed Chipped Beef Time Is Here

Chilly mornings in fall are always a sign to serve chipped beef for breakfast, or if you eat yours at suppertime you'll find the same dish excellent to serve the family. Toast, potatoes or biscuits are a good vehicle for the beef.

CREAMED DRIED BEEF

- 1 medium jar dried beef
- 2 tablespoons butter
- 2 tablespoons flour
- 1 cup milk.

Pour hot water over the dried beef, let stand a few minutes, then drain. Melt butter in the top of a double boiler, add flour and combine. Then add milk gradually, stirring until the mixture is heated and thickened. Add the dried beef and heat. Serve on baked potatoes or toast, or in fried noodle nests.
