Evaluating Peril to Civilization

Dorothy Thompson well expressed her current estimate of the Nazi war in her article condemning Senator Borah's contention that this is a war of rival imperialisms which ap- the old missions was begun a peared in Thursday's Statesman.

"This column believes that his (Senator Borah's) premise is wrong," she said. "This is not, as he thinks, a war of rival imperialisms. It is a revolutionary war. Its object is not to effect reasonable adjustments which will give greater justice to na-tions suffering from a lack of raw materials and commercial outlets. Its object is to change the whole structure of human society, to destroy all existing Western forms of political and economic organization and to substitute for them a new model which will not retain a remnant of what since Greece and Rome has been known as western civilization."

Miss Thompson calls the present war revolutionary, aimed to erase all traces of "western" civilization from the minds of Europeans. But in what way is it revolutionary? In its origins, if one takes the Nazi shibboleths at face value, as Miss Thompson usually does, it is a movement which has its the about it for scores and hunalmost too obvious inspiration in certain second-rate nation- dreds of drowsy years, and then alistic writers of the last 80 years, most of whose ideas were taken over from the works of Herder, Hegel and Nietzsche. The race superiority of Naziism is a direct steal from Gobinot, a disappointed Frenchman, and the form of the Nazi state not far from Hegel's perfect Prussian government, in which the idea of "freedom" was considered freedom to do another's will without question.

If history has halls of congress of such men as proved nothing else, it has proved that nothing of human origin remains the same year after year; nor are Nazi slogansmiths more than human.

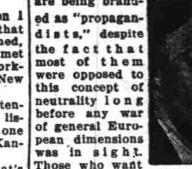

Western civilization is obviously in for a period of wear and tear the like of which it has never known; but that the as well as a Christian missionary day arriving for series. Men's minds might be anaesthetized into a stupor for a time by the vapors of Hitlerism; but that some transcendent mind would not rise to show the path back to a responsible individualism in society is unthinkable. Napoleon I was for long accused of being the anti-Christ and the successor to Attila: but even he, whose genius was infinitely more brilliant than Hitler's, could make no great, fundamental, and lasting change in either the political or the economic structure of the west. Hitler's memory, in future time, will probably be similar to that of Al Capone, though on a greater scale; his influ-- ence will probably not be more lasting.

Salem has needed an adequate protective system for its school children for some time. The city, clearly, is no village; and with its increase in size has come a marked increase in traffic. Nor has the situation, first, of Parrish junior high school, and, later of the senior high school in close proximity to the main north and south highway through the town been much of a contribution toward safety. Police authorities have gon is of little importance; but, already indicated that traffic on Capitol and Commercial relyupon it, THERE IS THE streets is too fast for absolute safety of children crossing them on their way to school buildings.

The organizational status of the present drive for adequate traffic protection for school children is particularly more than anything else, would important, and, if an admonitory word is not out of the way, should be closely guarded in its present purpose by school and police authorities. As the program now stands, school authshall . . . be prepared to hold in orities are making a thorough survey of the traffic protection needs in the vicinity of the different grade and high school buildings; their report will be turned over to school board authorities, who in turn will consult with police and service groups who are interested in furthering the safety program. The outcome should be a well-rounded and complete program which will be sustained at its initial efficiency throughout the school year.

There have been previously, sincere efforts to work out a traffic safety program which, usually through not direct fault of their sponsors, failed to prove entirely adequate for the Jason Lee mission to Oregon. the situation. Now, however, police and school authorities, together with the junior chamber, are confident that they can organize a fully adequate protective system in the schools, especially with the cooperation of civic groups which have assisted in the past. Their progress should be closely watched.

The secretary of state's office has listed Salem as first among Oregon cities in August in its 1939 traffic safety contest. This, obviously, is a cherished position ; and the city must strive to maintain itself exactly where it is. To that end especially, present plans for adequate schoolchild protection in the vicinity of school buildings is to be heartily seconded.

Week-Day Religious Education

Wisely, we have always believed, Oregon law has prohibited the giving of religious instruction by the public school system. Enthusiastic Christians occasionally raise their voices in deprecation of this provision, but their attitude, we have felt, is not based upon an understanding of the law's intent nor upon consideration of all factors involved. The difficulty of reconciling or avoiding differences in belief is the not quite reached; the second year, with outside help eliminprincipal one of these factors. Fundamentally the state law is ated, the campaign "went over the top." based upon that wise policy which has helped America to survive-the total separation of church and state.

The Oregon legislature however adopted nearly 20 years school attendance for a maximum of 120 minutes a week for may be a sign that all of them are already "sold" on the Chest. religious instruction arranged by agencies outside the schools, and a system based upon this permission has been working satisfactorily in Portland. In 1922 a demonstration program place in Salem's welfare setup of each of the seven agencies it was conducted in Garfield school here with success, and the following year a program for the four upper grades outside of school hours, but means for continuing the work were not available.

Steps to introduce such a system were initiated by the school board nearly a year ago and with cooperation from the ministerial association and other groups, the plans are now complete and the program will be put into effect Monday, October 1. All of the necessary safeguards to avoid the dangers foreseen when the prohibitory law was enacted, appear gram and the importance of the campaign's success. to have been provided. It is hardly likely, however, that every prospective giver is fully conversant with the Chest program and with the supports. It is important that everyone in Salem comes to understand these matters. In order that there may be no questions when the solicitor arrives, the Chest speakers, we feel safe in saying, are more than anxious to have questions asked now. Having been rather close to the Chest program since its inception, the writer knows that there is a good answer to every possible question-but don't take our word for it.

At a date nearer to the opening of the campaign, this column will enter more fully into a discussion of the Chest protains that the Russian offer of benevolent aid to Germany, which, with it in his pocket Hitler marched against Poland in full realization that he was starting a general war, was an act of peace.

There is a Nazi organization in the United States. It has many thousands of members and its own press. It, too, has performed a marvelous feat of volte face since the Russian-German pact. According to the "Deutscher Weckruf und Beobachter," Russia has become national bolshevist, and "bolshevist" means majority rule. Through meetings and through its press the Bund and its fellow-travelers are attempting to make a solid bloc of German-Americans and are organizing a letter campaign upon Congress.

Wednesday's issue of the 'Deutscher Weckruf" played up the Lindbergh speech in a headline across the entire front page, "We shall be deluged with propaganda." The implication is that the "Deutscher Weckruf" is not making propaganda. But long before this war began this paper was a pure and simple Nazi sheet, heartily supporting and no doubt part of Fritz Kuhn's organization in the United States.

Nobody who reads the Nazi propaganda here can possibly believe that its readers have American interests at heart-except as they see those interests completely merged with those of Germany. This is not the standpoint of most German-Americans, but the war makes it possible to graft Nazi ideology upon the firm American (Continued on page 7)
