Opening of "They Shall Have Music" at the Elsinore theatre yesterday brought to Salem in screen person Jascha He etz and his famous violin music. He is accompanied in the picture by music of the California junior symphony orchestra of 45 boys

"They Shall Have Music" is the story of a slum boy, who has inherited talent for music from his dead father. The boy lives his life on the streets, frightened by an irate stepfather, lured by gang stories and anxious to make easy money. Through a series of strange events, he lands in a settlement music school run by an idealistic professor, who takes him under his wing. When the grateful youngster learns of the desperate financial straits of the school, he undertakes to win the patronage of the great Heifetz, who is in New York for Carnegle hall concerts. The picture runs through FriLoses His Ship
