Cartoon Stars Toil Overtime

Wages and Hours Act Is no Bother to Krazy and His Pals

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 7-(AP)—There are movie producers who can slave-drive their juvenile stars without regard for child welfare groups and who can work their four-legged employees to the bone without a whimper from the SPCA.

James Bronis is one. He's the head of Screen Gems, a Columbia producing organization.

"Our stock company," explains Bronis, "is composed of characters developed in our animated cartoons.

"Our lively juvenile star, Scrappy, often works in 10 or 11 pictures at once, yet the educational authorities never have to reprove us.

No Kats' Guild "Krazy Kat may work in half a dozen of the 27 pictures we have in production now without suffering the slightest physical harm or inciting the anger of any animated animals guild.

"There is no danger of one of our stars being tied up in another picture or at another studio. But we still have casting problems."

The trouble is, says Bronis, you can never tell how appealing a cartoon character, however quaint or humorous on paper, will be when brought to life.

"We give each new character a 'physical' examination, says Bronis.

They Run Gamut

"We try him out in every imaginable acrobatic action, and we put him through dramatic tests—make him run the gamut of pen-and-ink emotions.

"If he passes all these satisfactorily, he gets a special test for the part in mind. If he succeeds in a minor role—if he clicks with the public—then we make him the hero of his own cartoon."

The elf-like beings in "The Happy Tots" passed the tests and are in their second color rhapsody. The Blue Birds, a new "family" group, are in their third cartoon.

But Bronis favors three newcomers in "The House That Jack Built": an ostrich, a beaver and a bear. Especially the ostrich.

"There's one actor," he says, "that won't lay an egg."

BLACK IS the word for Edward G. Robinson as portrayed in this unusual etching. Robinson is now appearing at the Capitol theatre in "Blackmail."

"Golden Boy" Headlines Offerings, Which Include "Captain Fury" and "Thunder Afloat"

Clifford Odets' prize-winning play, "Golden Boy," the story of a fighter who would rather have been a violinist, headlines the offerings of Salem theatres this week.

The Group Theatre success on Broadway, comes to the Grand in its film version with William Holden, hailed as a bright new star in the Hollywood heavens, in the title role.

Like Brenda Joyce, hailed last week as the greatest screen find in five years, Holden, hailed this week as the greatest screen find in five years, was picked off a college campus.

Timely is the Elsinore's presentation, "Thunder Afloat," in which Wallace Beery plays the part of a two-fisted tugboat captain who tries to fight a war against the U-boats single handed.

Victor McLaglen, who never quite comes up again to his superb performance in "The Informer," has one of his best roles in recent years in "Captain Fury," billed at the State. Brian Aherne is co-starred in a story of the adventures of Captain Michael Fury, Australia's "Robin Hood."

Edward G. Robinson appears in another of his criminal roles in "Blackmail" at the Capitol.

Those zanies, W. C. Fields and Charlie McCarthy, cavort through "You Can't Cheat an Honest Man" at the Hollywood.

Grand "Golden Boy"

FEATURED PLAYERS—Barbara Stanwyck, Adolphe Menjou, William Holden.

STORY—Too sensitive to be a great prize-fighter, too poor to be a great violinist young Joe Bonaparte (William Holden), turns finally to fighting. Managed by Adolphe Menjou he climbs fast and on the way falls in love with his manager's girl friend, Barbara Stanwyck. She reciprocates his love when she hears him play the violin and realizes he has the soul of a musician. She agrees to forsake Menjou and marry Joe, but is forced to break the promise when Joe angrily tosses Menjou aside and allies himself with Eddie Fuzelli, a racketeer. When Joe accidentally kills a fighter, he denounces Fuzelli and is reconciled with the girl.

SUPPORTING PLAYERS—Lee J. Cobb, Joseph Calleia, Sam Levene.

PRODUCTION—Based on Group Theatre play by Clifford Odets. Directed by Robben Mamoulian.

State "Captain Fury"

FEATURED PLAYERS—Brian Aherne, Victor McLaglen.

STORY—Captain Michael Fury, a political prisoner from Ireland, arrives in Australia to discover the land barons trying to oust the settlers and colonists so that they can establish vast estates. Fury is set to work as a sheep shearer on the compound of Arnold Trist, a thorough going villain, who has been terrorizing the entire settlement, a few hundred miles from Sydney. Becoming a sort of Australian Robin Hood, Fury, with the bungling aid of Victor McLaglen as Blackie, outwits Trist and brings peace to the settlers.

SUPPORTING PLAYERS—June Lang, John Carradine, Paul Lukas, George Zuehl, Douglas Dumbrille, Virginia Field.

PRODUCTION—Hal Roach directed it.

ALSO BILLED—Popeye in technicolor in "Aladdin and His Wonderful Lamp."

Elsinore "Thunder Afloat"

FEATURED PLAYERS—Wallace Beery, Chester Morris, Virginia Grey.

STORY—Beery is a tugboat captain who takes the whole war on his shoulders after his beloved craft is sunk by an enemy U-boat. Beery is able to get plenty of two-fisted action in his campaign, especially from Chester Morris, his tugboat rival and later his commanding officer in the navy. The film is remarkable for action sea shots filmed off the Atlantic coast with the remnant of the chaser fleet of World war days, and off the Coronado islands on the west coast with the USS Sturgeon, one of the newest of the navy's submarines.

SUPPORTING PLAYERS—Douglas Dumbrille, Carl Esmond, Clem Bevans, John Qualen, Regis Toomey.

COMPANION FEATURE—"Missing Evidence" with Preston Foster and Irene Hervey.

Capitol "Blackmail"

FEATURED PLAYERS—Edward G. Robinson and Gene Lockhart.

STORY—It's another Robinson character study with revenge providing the dramatic situation.

GOOD SEQUENCE—An oil well fire as background for a dramatic climax in the picture. Twelve thousand gallons of gasoline were used in producing the fire. While it was being shot a great crowd collected in the belief that one of the three hundred working wells in a nearby oilfield had caught fire.

COMPANION FEATURE—"Sky Patrol" of the Tallspin Tommy series with John Trent.

Hollywood "You Can't Cheat an Honest Man"

FEATURED PLAYERS—W. C. Fields, Edgar Bergen and Charlie McCarthy.

STORY—The story is all a hilarious continuation of the famed feud between Funnymen Fields and Dummy McCarthy with Bergen thrown in as a sideline to provide a little romantic interest with Constance Moore, cast as Field's daughter. Fields runs a circus and Bergen and McCarthy are in it and all over it.

SUPPORTING PLAYERS—"Mortimer," Mary Forbes, Thurston Hall, Princess Baba, Arthur Kohl.

COMPANION FEATURE—"Code of the Streets" with the Little Tough Guys, Harry Carey and Frankie Thomas.

Bob Taylor Holds Record for Loves With Film Cuties

HOLLYWOOD, Oct. 7-(AP)—One can't help being a little envious of Robert Taylor.

The dark-haired Bob, who started out to be a doctor and wound up holding the hands of lovely ladies on the screen, sat down the other day and compiled a list of his feminine co-stars.

In five years he's done all right. They ranged from blonde Virginia Bruce to Brunette Hedy Lamarr. The most recent addition is red-haired Greer Garson.

Included are Irene Dunne, Joan Crawford, Janet Gaynor, Barbara Stanwyck, Maureen O'Sullivan, Binnie Barnes, Margaret Sullivan, Eleanor Powell and Florence Rice.

But he strictly steers clear of picking a favorite.

"All of them were very pleasant to work with," he said, diplomatically. Then adds:

"Of course, I married Barbara."

Silverton PTA Has First Meet

SILVERTON—Parent-Teachers association at Silverton opened its year's work Thursday afternoon at the Eugene Field auditorium with Mrs. J. J. Lewis, president elected in late spring, presiding for the first time.

Miss Hannah Olsen presented the winners of the Garden and Hobby show and Mrs. Lewis presented them with awards. Donald Dawson was elected secretary to replace Miss Lucille Henkle, who resigned this autumn to accept a teaching position some place else.

The group voted to sponsor a hot-dish project for the winter for the grade and junior high school. Efforts will be made to obtain a WPA cook.

The program for the next meeting was announced for the night of November 2. Dr. Vernon Douglas will be in charge on a syphilis study at that time. Mrs. Floyd Ellefson is program chairman.
