Rains Touch Off Selling of Wheat

Prices Drop

Kansas Grain Belt Is Sprinkled, Needs More Moisture

CHICAGO, Nov. 9 .- (AP)-Rains that sprinkled some of Kansas' richest wheat producing land, though apparently light, proved sufficient to touch off a burst of selling in the wheat pit today. Prices dropped as much as 1% cent at one stage and closed at or near the day's lows. Weakness of securities also added to the selling burden.

Partial reports indicated rain was received at several points par-Kansas. However, crop experts ticularly in central and southern said that unless more moisture in larger quantities is forthcoming immediately little or no benefit could be received by weakened wheat plants.

Wheat closed 1 1/4-1 1/4 lower than yesterday, December 87-86 %, May 85 %-14.

C. M. Galvin, crop expert, said reports indicated light rains occurred in south central Kansas and central and northwestern Oklahoma. While coming too late to be of much benefit, they will help some, he said. Good rains still would make it possible to seed wheat in some localities as late as December 1, he said. The official forecast promised unsettled weather over much of the hard winter belt, with possible rains, but predicted clear skies and lower temperatures tomorrow.

Exporters reported approximately 1,000,000 bushels of Canadian wheat were sold to continental Europe on top of 4,000,000 bush-els estimated bought yesterday, mostly by Great Britain. Winning prices were steady. Canadian wheat, according to commercial interests, is only a few cents above an import basis at some eastern milling centers.

Wool in Boston

BOSTON, Nov. 9.—(AP)—(USDA)—
A few mills made inquiries for domestic wools on the Boston market today. Needs for wools in most cases, however, apparently were not very urgent as buyers either would not state the prices they were willing to pay or they made very low hids. Moderate quantities were moved occasionally at prices that indicated an irregular price tendency. Twelve-month Texas wools were sold in moderate volume at $1 to $1.02, scoured basis. Graded combing bright three-eighths and quarter-blood bright fleeces were moved in limited volume at 45 to 45 cents, in the grease. Most of the bids received en domestic wools were rejected because domestic wools were rejected because they were too far below asking prices.

Mart Stock Market

Break in British Pound, Belgian Belga Are Influences

NEW YORK, Nov. 9 .- (AP)-The stock market ran into late selling squall today and leading issues that had managed to rally feebly in the morning dropped fractions to more than 2 points. Some support before the close helped trim extreme declines in many cases, but the comeback was notably lacking in vigor. Dealings during the greater part of the proceedings were relatively small. The liquidating wave at the start of the final hour, however, was of sufficient force to put the ticker tape behind for a brief interval. Transfers amounted to 1,199,430 shares against 1,068,410 the day before.

The Associated Press average of 60 stocks was off .6 of a point at 51.4, the fourth consecutive fall of this composite. The be-lated tumble was touched off when a down sale of 14,500 shares of Curtiss-Wright common was posted. Offerings in other groups quickly followed and the groups quickly followed and the declining trend picked up momentum when a sizeable batch of stop-loss orders was negotiated.

Blame for the reaction was laid principally on dumping by tired holders who, noting the list in the past three or four weeks had been hovering in extremely narrow territory and had been unable to put on any worthwhile recovery swing, apparently decided to unload on the theory a real "correction" of the war boom upsurge of September might be upsurge of September might be in the offing.

A break in the British pound sterling in terms of the dollar and a new slump in the Belgian belga were seen as unsettling in-fluences, possibly presaging the long-feared German drive through Belgium and The Netherlands. Otherwise, though, news of the European conflict was hardly of startling character.
