"I hope I never have to spend another night in Jane's guest room. It's Nothing more than a clothes closet that made good!" Speaking of clothes closets, none is complete these days without a plaid swag coat. This one has enormous splashes of red, black and grey, is collarless, and worn with a grey tailored frock showing unpressed pleats all around the skirt. Beaver collar and cuffs embellish the black cloth coat on the left. Note the slender princess lines—the double-breasted closing.

Miss Corning Married on Wednesday

Miss Ruth Corning, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Corning of Salem and Mr. Waldo D. Kleen, son of Mr. and Mrs. A. H. Kleen of Pratum were married Wednesday night at the Methodist church parsonage. Rev. Wilson of Pratum officiated.

The maid of honor was Miss Pauline Corning, sister of the bride.

Mr. Wesley Corning served as best man for the bridegroom.

Mr. Kleen is connected with Sears Roebuck, Co. and the couple will make their home in Salem.

Proof of the Pudding is in the making and serving as well as in the eating, when you have the magic of gadgets like these on your side. From soup to nuts (Item N will take care of these) you'll not only find new fun in entertaining, but your guests will be so fascinated, they'll vote you No. 1 hostess. We warn you, when you come to look, you'll stay to buy. But don't worry—the prices won't even put a dent in your pocketbook.

Miller's Gadget Shop

A. Here's a bottle opener that's so amusingly quaint you'll want to keep it right out in plain sight all the time—bottles or no bottles. Hand-carved and hand-tinted by Italian wood carvers.

B. This gadget was devised for extracting olives from their cramped confines. Easy to work and a pleasure to use. Watch out you don't open extra bottles just for the fun of exercising the gadget.

C. Here is a minute-minder you can't afford to be without. Devised originally for timing eggs, you'll find it mighty handy for timing your long distance telephone calls as well.

D. A canape cutter that will bring you as much pleasure making canapes as it does eating them. Stainless steel blades; allows four cuts to one slice of bread. You can turn out canapes like lightning with the aid of this handy gadget.

E. It's an easy matter to serve decorative butter nuts when you have this handy mold. Dig out a wedge of butter with this gadget and presto—it appears with an intaglio design.

F. This gadget was designed primarily to help you do the right thing by your grapefruit—coring it, separating membrane from rind, and garnishing the edge to make it more attractive. But you'll find it equally effective at coring apples, pineapples and peppers.

G. Here is a gadget that is just the thing for solo tea brewers. Will give you the maximum of goodness in your cup with a minimum of effort. Plenty of perforations to allow the water to get at the tea leaves.

H. A chromium plated fork that makes short work of spearing pickles, lemon slices, hors d'oeuvres, and even butter pats. A versatile gadget. Equipped with a release that makes it just as simple to drop it as it is to pick it up.

I. Here is a curler that miraculously shaves off a layer of butter and turns it out in spiral shape. Looks nice and is economical, too, because you serve less without looking stingy.

J. A cheese slicer that meets every demand. Will carve nice thick pieces for you or will peel off slices so thin that your guests can't eat you out of house and home.

K. This Springlerie rolling pin will make a good impression on your pies and cookies. A turn of the wrist and your dainties will have fancy designs imprinted on their facades. Try it if you've a cookie-conscious or pie-eyed household.

L. The perfect instrument for decapitating your morning egg. Relieves the egg of its top expertly and relieves you of the danger of burnt fingers and bits of shell for breakfast.

M. A shell dish that will provide the perfect background for jelly, butter, cheese, or what have you.

N. Nut and Lobster Cracker. This gadget will crack down on the nut with little effort on your part. Plays havoc with the shells but never mangles the meats.

O. A bacon server that will really hang on to your bacon from platter to plate. Also suggested for toast and baked potatoes when there's no bacon around.

P. Here is a gadget that's amazingly handy for handling asparagus, broccoli, waffles and dozens of other items. You'll find plenty of uses for it when you add it to your list of gadgets.

Q. A natural pick-up for cakes, tarts, pastry, et cetera. It's useful for so many things that come to mind—or go on your plate.

R. These poultry shears have been designed just to help you with that de-legating and de-winged process. No more wrestling with the fowl. No more need for one knee on the table. A chrome plated and good-looking instrument.

S. & T. Here is a salad set that would be a welcome addition to any salad bowl. An indispensable item and as good-looking as it is useful. Made of olive wood with the natural grain.

Here are only a few of the wide variety in our Gadget Shop—all equally fascinating, all equally inexpensive. Come in and see them today and you'll wonder how you ever got along without them. GIFT SHOP, MAIN FLOOR.
