

Dasch to Head Liberty Union

Vice-Presidency Given to J. M. Rickman; Job of Secretary Unfilled

LIBERTY—The Liberty Farmer's Union local held the annual election of officers at the Tuesday night meeting. John Dasch was elected president. The incumbent, John Crabtree, declined nomination for reelection. Mr. Dasch served several terms as local president preceding Crabtree's term.

Other officers named were: vice president, J. M. Rickman; chaplain, V. A. Ballantyne; conductor, A. Shuttlesworth; door-keeper, Oscar Dencer.

Mrs. John Crabtree, who has served several terms as secretary, declined reelection and the position was not filled during this meeting.

Membership obligation was given by Louis Johnston of Roberts local to Mr. and Mrs. C. H. Ringwald and Dr. and Mrs. L. C. Marshall. Application for membership by Ernest Iufer received favorable ballot.

Oscar Dencer reported on the matter of installing dial telephones on rural lines, stating the telephone officials wished to meet with the personnel of each line rather than a mass meeting as before proposed. Each rural line will arrange a future meeting.

The convention of the Oregon Commonwealth Federation in December was announced. John Dasch was elected delegate and Fred Salsbury alternate, to the convention.

Louis Johnston spoke about the cooperative warehouse in Salem and its growth in business handled. Lewis Judson spoke on the milk situation.

Mrs. Guy Williams, state junior leader was present and spoke on junior work and introduced Mrs. A. J. Taylor, the leader recently selected for the new Liberty junior local. As the Liberty Juniors were in session Mrs. Taylor presented junior president Murray Baker, who made a short talk, as did also Mary Jane Taylor.

The evening's program was given by Jacqueline and John Van Loh, Jr. The program was a 15-minute radio play with Mrs. D. C. Clark, Fred Ramey, H. G. Newkirk.

Dayton Readers Meet
DAYTON—Sixteen members and one guest, Miss Johanna Jost, attended the Dayton P.T.S. and N.E. Hour Reading club with Mrs. D. C. Clark hostess at the home of

Gives Blood to Save Life of Child

Responding to a mother's nation-wide radio appeal, Mrs. Joseph Root, Jr., 66, of Westport, Conn., submitted to a blood transfusion in a Philadelphia hospital in an effort to save the life of Kathryn Felt, 7, critically ill of an unusual blood disease. Physicians have said the child's case is hopeless. Mrs. Root and the child being removed to the hospital for the transfusion are shown above.

Rare Furniture Wood Is Discovered Near Brownsville; Will Go to Norway

LEBANON—Two olive ash cluster logs left Lebanon this week to be delivered at the Alfred A. Loeb veneer plant in Portland, which will ship them to Norway, where they will be made into some of the world's finest furniture. Found near Brownsville, these are the first cluster logs to be discovered in this vicinity, and are among the most valuable veneer woods. Cluster ash, a figured wood, is rarely found, most ash having a straight grain. One of the logs weighed 3500 pounds.

Mr. and Mrs. Cecil Enaley of Lebanon, who discovered the logs, will send two more ash clusters to Portland soon, discovered in the same place as the first ones. Occasional ash burls, less valuable, are found. Maple burls, walnut claronas, maple fiddle backs, are among the veneer woods hunted by the Enaleys. "Burl diggers" work in districts, and cover between them the full length of the coast, hunting for such woods as myrtle burls from southern Oregon, and madrona burls, some of which are found in the Willamette valley.

The Enaleys hunt veneer wood between October and April, as wood is then free from sap discolorations. Their biggest shipment was 13 tons of veneer wood taken out in two weeks last April. Maple burls occasionally weigh three tons, the largest received at the Loeb company having come from Albany. Black walnut in the Willamette valley is generally found to be deficient in heart wood, the part used in making veneer.

Mrs. Jennie Murphey, Mrs. J. L. Sherman was lesson leader, Mrs. Clark gave several Hawaiian guitar numbers and Judith and Phyllis Todd sang. Mrs. O. H. Perkins had charge of the Better English lesson.

Help for Soldiers

During the World war more than 30,000 British soldiers were blinded by shell fragments. To help soldiers save their eyes, a chain visor has been designed and improved by Sir Richard Cruise, eye specialist for Queen Mother Mary. The visor, shown in the raised, or unneeded position, can be pulled down when the wearer is advancing in the face of an artillery barrage.

Old Watch Shown At Lebanon; Good Time Still Kept

LEBANON—An ancient watch, calculated to be 125 years old, and three inches in diameter, has been on display in the jewelry shop of T. J. Vogel for several days, arousing much interest. It is the property of A. N. Anderson of Corvallis, who bought it in 1905 from a man in St. Paul, who had owned it for 15 years.

It came to St. Paul from Norway, and was made in the days when Norway and Sweden were under one government. The seal of that government is etched on the back of the case. Made in Switzerland for some very wealthy man of Scandinavia, it has a stem wind, which was unusual and expensive in those days of key winds. The watch is still keeping accurate time. It has a sterling silver case, and a 19 jewel movement. The hands are delicate bits of gilt tracery, and include an accurate minute hand.

Missionaries Will Stay at Silverton

SILVERTON—Rev. and Mrs. O. P. Stavvas of Tacoma will arrive at Silverton Friday afternoon and will be house guests of Rev. and Mrs. J. M. Jensen until after Sunday. The Stavvases, who are missionaries from Madagascar, will conduct the mission services at Immanuel church beginning Friday night and continuing through Sunday.

For the past several months the Stavvases have been at Parkland, Wash., with their two daughters, who are attending the Pacific Lutheran college there. Because of unsettled conditions they have been unable to return to Madagascar and may decide to settle in the west.
