

Silverton's Police to Wear Uniforms

Council Votes Money Needed

Mayor Zetta Schlador Will Choose Design, Color Of New Suits

SILVERTON — Mayor Zetta Schlador took the woman's privilege of having the last word at the Monday night meeting of the city council, and Silverton's police will wear uniforms.

The men of the council expressed some opposition to the police wearing uniforms, one stating that perhaps the police did not wish to wear them. The mayor replied that it was not in her mind a question of whether the police wished to wear them or not but of whether she wished to have the police wear them. She explained all that she was asking from the council was the transfer of the $50 provided in the budget for each policeman for uniform purchasing. At Silverton the mayor has complete jurisdiction over the city police. The salary, however, must be approved by the city council. Jack Fish finally put the motion as requested by the mayor and L. F. Tucker made the second. No opposition was voiced in the final vote and the mayor was instructed to choose the color and design suit she desired.

Dairy inspection was somewhat questioned when the letter of the dairy inspector dated December 31, 1939, in the street that he had inspected Silverton dairies and found them properly operated. Included on the list of dairies was one which councilmen said had not been operating at all during the past year. The matter was not carried further.

Propose Settlement
Considerable time was taken by explanation of a proposed settlement of old property differences between the city and Edna J. Brown estate. Lowell Brown and his attorney, Ronald Page of Salem, appeared for the Brown estate. Councilman Anderson, Green and Fish were made a committee to investigate the proposal made and report back at a special meeting to be held in the near future.

Applications were made for the vacancy in the street commissioner position created by the death of L. Yates, last week. Making applications were Emil G. Oder, Theodore Grace and Louis Yates. At the mayor's suggestion, the matter was left unfinished at the Monday night meeting. Louis Yates, who has been acting since his father's illness, was asked to continue for the present. Mayor Schlador explained that some consolidation of departments was being discussed and that no decision would be made until the consolidation had been further investigated.

Also attended to Monday night was the formal acceptance of the completed sewage disposal plant units; a recommendation approved for a beer license to Pete Sorenson; determining the ownership of a wood sidewalk on South Third street.

Will Install Officers
CLEAR LAKE — The Brooks Townsend club will meet at the Brooks church Thursday night, January 11. F. G. Delano will be the principal speaker and will install the newly-elected officers.

Bits for Breakfast

ter days fought against the tyranny of the English kings. There are traditions of the family in America for several generations prior to any recorded history of their activities.

"When the records of the Lewellings begin in North Carolina they were not like the chivalrous and warlike clans of Wales. Like William Penn, they had been converted to the peaceful ways of the Society of Friends or Quakers. The grandfather of Henderson Lewelling was a pious, God-fearing man. He named his sons Shadrach, Meshack and Abednego. Meshack was the father of Henderson Lewelling, the Salem pioneer. Meshack Lewelling was a physician and nurseryman; also engaged in farming. It is believed the ancestors of Meshack Lewelling were nurserymen for several generations. They were located in Randolph county, N. C. Many of the finest apples of the world are now being shipped to various markets from that locality; doubtless the foundation stock came from the Lewelling nurseries.

"Contrary to the general rule among the Quakers, Meshack Lewelling was a holder of slaves. When he sold his property in North Carolina, instead of selling his human chattels, he took them with him to Indiana and set them free. Another member of the family inherited two slaves in Louisiana. He went thither, took possession of his human property, took them to Indiana, and gave them their liberty. These acts were consistent with the traditions and spirit of the Lewellings.

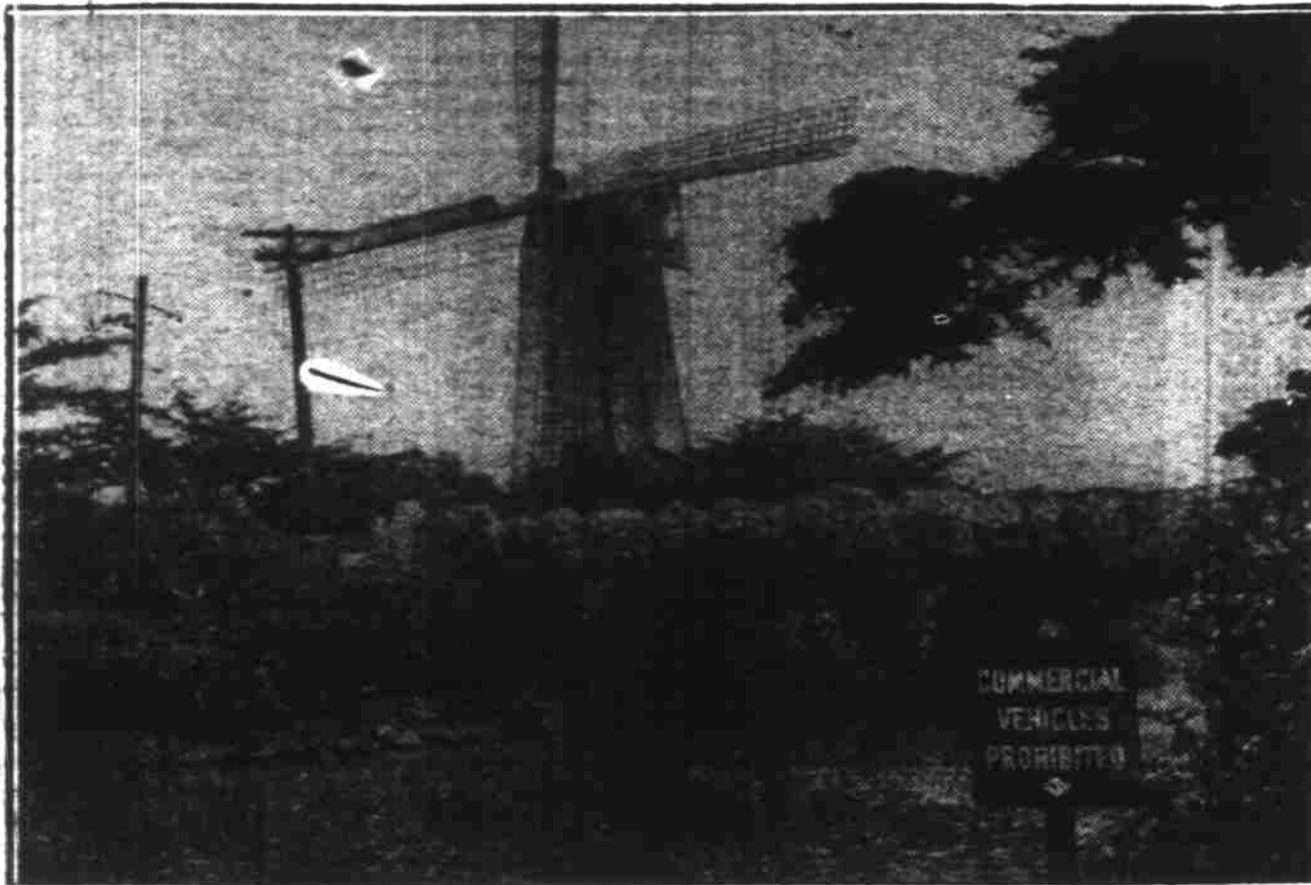

"Henderson Lewelling was 16 when he arrived in Indiana with his father's family. He assisted in his father's nursery and farm. December 30, 1830, when he was 22, he married Elizabeth Prensall, from North Carolina, also a Quaker.

"In 1835, he and his brother John, who owned adjoining land, went into the nursery business together. They heard glowing reports of the Black Hawk purchase in Iowa.

"They moved to that not long since wild country, secured land near the then new town of Salem, and opened up a nursery there. John continued their joint business in Indiana, while Henderson operated the Iowa enterprise."

Coast Storms, Floods Bring Dutch Appearance to SF

Driving rains and gales struck the Pacific coast full force recently centered in the San Francisco Bay area where entire neighborhoods were flooded, trees uprooted in the drenching accompanied by 50 mile an hour winds. Photo shows a blocked road in famed Golden Gate park which takes appearance of a scene in Holland with the Dutch windmill in background.

Party to Benefit Kitchen Project

SILVERTON — An old-fashioned party is being planned by the finance committee of the Silverton Parent-Teacher association. The party will raise funds for the new kitchen project of the PTA. When completed the kitchen will be self-supporting and will furnish one hot dish each noon for children of the Silverton schools. The school board has already provided space for the kitchen in the Eugene Field building.

The party has been set for January 27 and will include a pie social, a program and general amusement. Serving on the committee are Richard McKell, Harry Cameron, Mrs. John Jordan, Mrs. Vera Cox, Louis Bartell, Roy Mueller and Mrs. Fred Baker.

A community program is also being planned for March 1 and 2 with funds going to the same cause. A meeting has been called for January 25 to make further plans.

Spousta Transferred

SILVERTON — J. J. Spousta, formerly of Silverton, is being transferred from Stayton to Medford as salesman for the Shell Oil company. Leonard Maxwell will take Spousta's place at Stayton.

Murphy Feted as new Justice

Frank Murphy

Named to the U. S. supreme court to fill the vacancy left by the death of Justice Pierce Butler several months ago, Frank Murphy is caught by the camera in top hat and tails en route to the White House where a reception was held for the justices. Murphy has been U. S. attorney general.

Legion to Observe First Anniversary

AURORA — Thursday night, January 18, will be the first anniversary of the Aurora American Legion post 110, and the women's auxiliary are giving a no-host dinner and dance for members and friends.

The American Legion is sponsoring the Aurora juniors and seniors from the Canby high school, to serve as city officers for one day, and to perform all duties of the city council. Elected were Phelan Sayre, Jr., mayor; councilmen, Lewis Hill, Lavern Criswell, and Donna Mae Danielson; recorder, Raymond Kiel.

New Camp Planned At Silver Falls

SILVER FALLS STATE PARK — A second camp in the Silver Creek Recreational area will be completed by early spring, according to Harry Buckley in charge of the federal recreational area near here. The new camp will have accommodations for many as the old unit, Buckley said. This will be for 45 people besides the staff in the group.

The new camp, which is two miles from the old one, will be operated in the same fashion as the one completed two years ago which has been under the sponsorship of the Salem YMCA. The camp will be leased to some organization and will be ready for occupancy by June 1.
