tations have deployed against the motorized divisions of the red army.
The Finnish artillery, meanwhile, has played an unsung but increasingly important role in keeping the Russian troops where they were at the beginning of the struggle.
With great economy of ammunition, the Finnish batteries have been silencing soviet big guns, a few every day. Finnish officers say this precision is due to a new and improved artillery chart devised by General Vilho Nenonen, in command of Finnish artillery.

The stillness of the western front was broken by a sudden burst of sharp fighting northwest of Saarouis in the Nied river sector on the northern flank. The Germans were said to have retreated before withering French machine gun fire, leaving dead hanging on barbed wire.
The French chamber of deputies ended two days of secret debate with a 543 to 0 vote of confidence in the government of Premier Edouard Daladier. It was the second time in less than three months that Daladier won the backing of the chamber on a question of confidence and now he stands in a stronger position than at any time since the war began.
The unanimous vote came shortly after France semi-officially indicated she would not join any international economic system or disarmament move until the "constant peril" of Germany had been "wiped out."

To Hull's Suggestion
The French statement was an informal answer to suggestions by the United States secretary of state, Cordell Hull, who has called on all neutral nations to join in charting "the sort of world we are going to have after the war" and in formulating plans to guide the belligerents to a peace of economic sanity.

Hull said in Washington that it was his plan to bring proposals concerning armaments and commercial policies to the attention of every government disposed to take an interest in them.
The British air ministry, Sir Kingsley Wood, backed up France's stand with an emphatic declaration in a speech at Bristol, England, that the allies would fight on to "a peace not a patched up pact that would leave Europe once again the subject of assault and violation."
Britain acknowledged the sinking of two armed trawlers Friday with the loss of 22 lives of Germany's latest air assault on North sea shipping. Four other ships were badly damaged.
Germany has claimed two British "patrol" boats were sunk and six other vessels were sunk or destroyed by her bombers in Friday's raid.

mate advantage in the presidency," he affirmed.
The governor denounced the Roosevelt administration's gold policy, which, he said, "stores up countless millions of dollars in gold in a hole in the ground instead of allowing it freely to circulate as the foundation of international monetary systems."
"We republicans will need to revise our tariff policy," he averred in speaking of national economic policy. "We must recognize that we have become a creditor nation, and that imports are as necessary to our economy as exports. If others are to pay their debts to us, we must buy their goods."
Labor, Sprague said, would do well to consider the fate of labor parties in Europe which bound themselves inextricably to a particular political party. "In Russia 22 years ago working people united with a particular political faith, and now the Russian people eat black bread, and pay $14 a fifth for vodka."

1940's Fashions Smart Says Buyer

'Flattering' Is Word Given by Mrs. Bloomberg on Return From East
"1940 spring fashions are definitely the smartest and most flattering shown in many a season and women of Salem should prepare for a real treat when they see the new models in coats, suits and dresses for spring," was the report brought back by Mrs. S. I. Bloomberg, buyer for Milgrim's, upon her return yesterday from an extensive buying trip to New York and eastern fashion centers.
Leading shops on New York's Fifth avenue are featuring navy and black with colorful accessories. Rose and powder blue are also very prominent in the spring fashion picture, according to Mrs. Bloomberg.
Mrs. Bloomberg stated a greater number of buyers than usual converged on the New York market and the feeling was general that a favorable spring business was in prospect, due to more smartly styled merchandise being offered and from the general upturn in business.
Encountering severely cold weather on the entire trip, Mrs. Bloomberg stated it was a relief to return home to the mild climate of the Willamette valley.

the muddy Flint river and mowed a death-pocked path through flimsy houses before it moved on into sullen, rainy skies to the north and east, leaving a swath of destruction roughly 15 blocks long and four wide.
Bodies recovered late this afternoon included those of 17 negroes, most of them killed in their homes near the river, and one white woman, Dora Belle Shiver, 32, crushed in her home in Ogleshorpe avenue.
City Manager C. Q. Wright said he understood three other white persons and another negro had been killed, making a death list of 22, but he had been unable to verify this report late today.

Epley Is Honored By Pension Group

Regional Meeting Slated Next Saturday Topic, County Gathering
Silent tribute to Senator William E. Borah of Idaho and to Dr. H. C. Epley, late mayor of Jefferson, in recognition of their aid to the pension movement was accorded at the Saturday meeting of the Marion county division of the Oregon Pension Federation.
The meeting was largely occupied with discussion of details of the regional conference to be held next Saturday starting at 10 a. m. at which delegations from Marion, Clackamas, Polk, Yamhill, Lincoln and Washington counties will be present. This region is entitled to eight members on the state board being created at these regional meetings, on the basis of one for every 5000 pensioner-friendly votes registered in the 1938 elections.
At the regional meeting there will be discussion of the coming campaign and of methods for learning the views upon pension issues of all legislative candidates. The county organization took action looking toward such a survey of legislative candidates in Marion county.

Credit two Lives Saved, new Drug

PORTLAND, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Sulfapyridine, a new drug related to sulfanilamide, was credited today by Dr. Adolph Weinzirl with saving the lives of two children.
The youngsters, whose identities were not revealed by Dr. Weinzirl, city health officer, were "desperately sick" with measles complicated by pneumonia.
"The condition of these children on admission (to the city isolation hospital) was so serious that it seemed that only a miracle could save them," Dr. Weinzirl said. "Yet, with medical attention, good nursing care and the use of this new drug, both children are now convalescing satisfactorily."

would eventually become a peace-loving, popular government which would not interfere with the integrity of its neighbors."
Then, as his shivering guests stood aghast, he added:
"That hope is today either shattered or put away in storage against a better day. The soviet union, as a matter of practical fact, known to you and known to all the world, is a dictatorship as absolute as any other dictatorship in the world."
"It has allied itself with another dictatorship and it has invaded a neighbor so infinitesimally small that it could do no injury to the soviet union, and seeks only to live at peace as a democracy, and a liberal forward-looking democracy at that."
Communists Have Rights, Conceded
Agitation in youth congress for expulsion of its communistic elements—one of its 63 affiliates is the Young Communist League—stirred unusual interest in what Mr. Roosevelt might have to say on communism.
The chief executive asserted any communists in the organization had a right as Americans to call themselves communists and to "peacefully and openly" advocate certain ideals of theoretical communism.
But he added, it was the "sacred duty" of such elements to confine their advocacy of changes in law to methods prescribed by the constitution. He said they had "no American right, by act or deed of any kind, to subvert the government and the constitution of this nation."
Applause and whistling greeted this statement. Earlier, in the 3,000-word address, carried by radio across the land, Roosevelt scattered hand clapping when the president mentioned a resolution by one of the organization's affiliated councils opposing American loans to Finland on the ground that such action was "an attempt to force America into the imperialistic war."
It was not clear whether the applause was for the resolution or for the speaker's criticism of it, although one distinct "boo" arose from the crowd when the president declared a "unadulterated twaddle" the reasoning behind the resolution.

Valentine Is Left By Grateful Birds

EUGENE, Feb. 10.—(AP)—Birds she has befriended and fed during the winter left Mrs. Jack Allison an early Valentine token today.
The sparrows and snowbirds which have eaten bread crumbs from her front yard and flew off left one slice when they flew off. They had pecked the spiced slice into the shape of a perfect heart. Always before, Mrs. Allison said, they had made a clean sweep of the crumbs.

Third Term Issue Scanned by CIO denunciation of Mr. Roosevelt, but only of the premature movement on his behalf.

Eccles, Oregon budget director, brought greetings from Governor Sprague. He warned the delegates against too many laws regulating labor.
"I hope that in this country," he said, "Labor will continue to make its gains by the use of its tremendous economic power rather than by a resort to an overdose of laws whose intent may be perverted."
He advised the delegates to keep labor free from domination by "government or any other force." The convention followed up his speech with a rising vote approving on the governor's "fair and impartial attitude toward labor."
A dozen resolutions were quickly approved after matters during the first of the afternoon session. The convention voted to request Secretary Perkins to suspend R. B. Bonham, Seattle, and Roy J. Norene, Portland, immigration officers, for their part in the attempted deportation of Harry Bridges; to request the federal department of justice to investigate C. C. Crow, Portland editor, on charges he had urged violence against unions; to begin initiative proceedings to have the unemployment and workmen's compensation commissions elected rather than appointed.
Also approved were measures condemning seining of pilchard and sardine off the Oregon and Washington coast; advising organization of political welfare committees by locals; approving the 6-hour day and 30-hour week; and requesting legislation requiring lumber companies to post bond for the first month's wages.
