Chemawa Indian Youths to Perform Unique Hoop Dance as Salem Entry For Eugene Lion's Den Annual Show

Billed as Prince Thunder Cloud and Suppaha, two Chemawa Indian school students will appear in the Eugene Lions club's annual amateur show to be presented in Eugene April 1 and 2, Barkley A. Newman of the Salem club announced yesterday.

These two boys, William Miller and Roosevelt Suppaha, of the stage were selected as favored entries at tryouts held in Eugene last week. They will perform the original Indian hoop dance, with "Prince Thunder Cloud" dancing and "Prince Suppaha" singing and drumming the accompaniment.

Miller is from Yakima and Suppaha from Warm Springs. The hoop dance originated here in the northwest with the dancers using only one hoop, but the present generation has made the dance even more difficult by adding two additional hoops. This dance requires hours of practice combined with a typical Indian dancing ability. The dance requires a special song which differs from the war dance songs in that it is much faster. The music is played as it was originated for the original dance.

"Prince Thunder Cloud" started hoop dance training in Chemawa three years ago. He had been trained in other Indian dances but never attempted the hoop dance, but after hours and days of long hard practice, he became one of the northwest's outstanding hoop dancers. Likewise, "Prince Suppaha" has outstanding ability which will receive approval as he renders the accompanying Indian song. He is one of many having the necessary tone quality, difficult number, according to ties and control to solo this most Newman.

With this exceptional dance, the Salem Lions club hopes to carry off the grand prize at the grand finale, Newman said.
