

Third Polk County Spring Lamb Show Scheduled for June First

New Features Being Planned

Commercial Lamb Class, Fleece Exhibit, Ram Division Added

DALLAS—With three new features added, the third annual spring lamb show for Polk county has been scheduled for June 1 at Monmouth. Breeders met last week and made several changes in the show's program which they hope will add to the size and interest.

A fleece exhibit, a class for commercial lambs in which purebreds are barred and two classes for yearling rams are new additions. This year there will be no separate junior breeders' classes.

In previous shows classes have been limited to long wools and medium wools and a grand champion lamb has been selected. This year a new class of commercial lambs, in which purebreds are barred, has been added and the classes for long wools and medium wools admitting only purebreds have been retained in these three classes, pens of three as well as single lambs will be shown.

In the new ram classes only purebreds may be entered. The two groups will be medium wools and long wools. Rams are to be exhibited shorn and will compete for ribbons only.

Among events of interest to the public will be sheep shearing demonstration, a lamb carcass meat cutting demonstration, preparation of fleeces for market and sheep dog trials.

The breeders' committee consists of J. B. Lorenz, chairman; Jack Starny and William Riddell, all of Monmouth, County Agent W. C. Leth is secretary for the committee.
