

"Okies" Story Given Honors

Steinbeck Novel, Paper in Connecticut Receive Pulitzer Prizes

NEW YORK, May 6.—(AP)—John Steinbeck's powerful and controversial story of the "Okies"—the Grapes of Wrath—and the public service performed by the Waterbury (Conn.) Republican and American in exposing municipal graft, were awarded today the highest accolades of the Pulitzer prize committee for 1939.

Steinbeck's novel—said by its publisher, the Viking Press, to have been read in 12 months by more than 4,000,000 Americans—was found to have been the most distinguished of the year and won the $1000 prize.

It deals with the plight of migratory workers, particularly in California.

The Republican and American was saluted for the most distinguished and meritorious public service rendered by an American newspaper, and won the $500 gold medal.

For his dispatches from Berlin, Otto D. Tollman of the New York Times won the $500 award given annually for the most distinguished service as a foreign correspondent.

S. Burton Heath of the New York World-Telegram was awarded the $1000 prize for a distinguished example of a reporter's work domestically—specifically for his exclusive articles which led to the exposure of former US Circuit Judge Martin T. Manton, who now is in prison for accepting bribes.

Other awards: For distinguished editorial writing, limited to the editorial page—Bart Howard of the St. Louis Post-Dispatch, $500.

For distinguished work as a cartoonist—Edmund Duffy of the Baltimore Sun $500. Cited was his cartoon of Oct. 7, 1939, which depicted Adolf Hitler with an outstretched right hand, dripping blood, and labeled "the peace offer."

The left hand held torn papers symbolizing broken promises and treaties and a declaration that there would be no more territorial demands.

For distinguished playwriting $1000—William Somerset Maugham, "The Time of Your Life," a simple play dealing with a group of characters, all of them representing different types of humanity, in a waterfront saloon.

For distinguished writing on the history of the United States, $1000—"Abraham Lincoln: The War Years," by Carl Sandburg.

For distinguished American biography $1000—"Woodrow Wilson, Life and Letters," by Ray Stannard Baker.

For distinguished verse, $1000—"Collected Poems," by Mark Van Doren.

In the newspaper field the San Francisco Chronicle received honorable mention for its "part in the settling of the waterfront and warehouse strike in San Francisco June 22 to Dec. 1, 1939," and Lloyd Lehrbas of the Associated Press for his dispatches from Warsaw, Bucharest and Ankara.

It was the second successive year in which the Associated Press had won the highest award for foreign work, Louis P. Lochner of the Associated Press having been so honored for his 1938 dispatches.

It was the second successive year in which the Associated Press had won the highest award for foreign work, Louis P. Lochner of the Associated Press having been so honored for his 1938 dispatches.

It was the second successive year in which the Associated Press had won the highest award for foreign work, Louis P. Lochner of the Associated Press having been so honored for his 1938 dispatches.

It was the second successive year in which the Associated Press had won the highest award for foreign work, Louis P. Lochner of the Associated Press having been so honored for his 1938 dispatches.

It was the second successive year in which the Associated Press had won the highest award for foreign work, Louis P. Lochner of the Associated Press having been so honored for his 1938 dispatches.

It was the second successive year in which the Associated Press had won the highest award for foreign work, Louis P. Lochner of the Associated Press having been so honored for his 1938 dispatches.

It was the second successive year in which the Associated Press had won the highest award for foreign work, Louis P. Lochner of the Associated Press having been so honored for his 1938 dispatches.

It was the second successive year in which the Associated Press had won the highest award for foreign work, Louis P. Lochner of the Associated Press having been so honored for his 1938 dispatches.

It was the second successive year in which the Associated Press had won the highest award for foreign work, Louis P. Lochner of the Associated Press having been so honored for his 1938 dispatches.

It was the second successive year in which the Associated Press had won the highest award for foreign work, Louis P. Lochner of the Associated Press having been so honored for his 1938 dispatches.

It was the second successive year in which the Associated Press had won the highest award for foreign work, Louis P. Lochner of the Associated Press having been so honored for his 1938 dispatches.

It was the second successive year in which the Associated Press had won the highest award for foreign work, Louis P. Lochner of the Associated Press having been so honored for his 1938 dispatches.

It was the second successive year in which the Associated Press had won the highest award for foreign work, Louis P. Lochner of the Associated Press having been so honored for his 1938 dispatches.

Tries His Wings at 81

White-bearded William Clark, 81-year-old retired Tacoma, Wash., pharmacist, hailed at San Diego, Calif., as a formidable contender for the title of oldest flying student in the United States, is shown (right) as he got an approving smile from his instructor, George Hight. Hight says only a flight test and a physical examination are apparently all that separate the octogenarian from a private pilot's license.

White-bearded William Clark, 81-year-old retired Tacoma, Wash., pharmacist, hailed at San Diego, Calif., as a formidable contender for the title of oldest flying student in the United States, is shown (right) as he got an approving smile from his instructor, George Hight. Hight says only a flight test and a physical examination are apparently all that separate the octogenarian from a private pilot's license.

White-bearded William Clark, 81-year-old retired Tacoma, Wash., pharmacist, hailed at San Diego, Calif., as a formidable contender for the title of oldest flying student in the United States, is shown (right) as he got an approving smile from his instructor, George Hight. Hight says only a flight test and a physical examination are apparently all that separate the octogenarian from a private pilot's license.

White-bearded William Clark, 81-year-old retired Tacoma, Wash., pharmacist, hailed at San Diego, Calif., as a formidable contender for the title of oldest flying student in the United States, is shown (right) as he got an approving smile from his instructor, George Hight. Hight says only a flight test and a physical examination are apparently all that separate the octogenarian from a private pilot's license.

White-bearded William Clark, 81-year-old retired Tacoma, Wash., pharmacist, hailed at San Diego, Calif., as a formidable contender for the title of oldest flying student in the United States, is shown (right) as he got an approving smile from his instructor, George Hight. Hight says only a flight test and a physical examination are apparently all that separate the octogenarian from a private pilot's license.

White-bearded William Clark, 81-year-old retired Tacoma, Wash., pharmacist, hailed at San Diego, Calif., as a formidable contender for the title of oldest flying student in the United States, is shown (right) as he got an approving smile from his instructor, George Hight. Hight says only a flight test and a physical examination are apparently all that separate the octogenarian from a private pilot's license.

White-bearded William Clark, 81-year-old retired Tacoma, Wash., pharmacist, hailed at San Diego, Calif., as a formidable contender for the title of oldest flying student in the United States, is shown (right) as he got an approving smile from his instructor, George Hight. Hight says only a flight test and a physical examination are apparently all that separate the octogenarian from a private pilot's license.

White-bearded William Clark, 81-year-old retired Tacoma, Wash., pharmacist, hailed at San Diego, Calif., as a formidable contender for the title of oldest flying student in the United States, is shown (right) as he got an approving smile from his instructor, George Hight. Hight says only a flight test and a physical examination are apparently all that separate the octogenarian from a private pilot's license.

White-bearded William Clark, 81-year-old retired Tacoma, Wash., pharmacist, hailed at San Diego, Calif., as a formidable contender for the title of oldest flying student in the United States, is shown (right) as he got an approving smile from his instructor, George Hight. Hight says only a flight test and a physical examination are apparently all that separate the octogenarian from a private pilot's license.

White-bearded William Clark, 81-year-old retired Tacoma, Wash., pharmacist, hailed at San Diego, Calif., as a formidable contender for the title of oldest flying student in the United States, is shown (right) as he got an approving smile from his instructor, George Hight. Hight says only a flight test and a physical examination are apparently all that separate the octogenarian from a private pilot's license.

White-bearded William Clark, 81-year-old retired Tacoma, Wash., pharmacist, hailed at San Diego, Calif., as a formidable contender for the title of oldest flying student in the United States, is shown (right) as he got an approving smile from his instructor, George Hight. Hight says only a flight test and a physical examination are apparently all that separate the octogenarian from a private pilot's license.

White-bearded William Clark, 81-year-old retired Tacoma, Wash., pharmacist, hailed at San Diego, Calif., as a formidable contender for the title of oldest flying student in the United States, is shown (right) as he got an approving smile from his instructor, George Hight. Hight says only a flight test and a physical examination are apparently all that separate the octogenarian from a private pilot's license.

White-bearded William Clark, 81-year-old retired Tacoma, Wash., pharmacist, hailed at San Diego, Calif., as a formidable contender for the title of oldest flying student in the United States, is shown (right) as he got an approving smile from his instructor, George Hight. Hight says only a flight test and a physical examination are apparently all that separate the octogenarian from a private pilot's license.

White-bearded William Clark, 81-year-old retired Tacoma, Wash., pharmacist, hailed at San Diego, Calif., as a formidable contender for the title of oldest flying student in the United States, is shown (right) as he got an approving smile from his instructor, George Hight. Hight says only a flight test and a physical examination are apparently all that separate the octogenarian from a private pilot's license.

White-bearded William Clark, 81-year-old retired Tacoma, Wash., pharmacist, hailed at San Diego, Calif., as a formidable contender for the title of oldest flying student in the United States, is shown (right) as he got an approving smile from his instructor, George Hight. Hight says only a flight test and a physical examination are apparently all that separate the octogenarian from a private pilot's license.

White-bearded William Clark, 81-year-old retired Tacoma, Wash., pharmacist, hailed at San Diego, Calif., as a formidable contender for the title of oldest flying student in the United States, is shown (right) as he got an approving smile from his instructor, George Hight. Hight says only a flight test and a physical examination are apparently all that separate the octogenarian from a private pilot's license.

White-bearded William Clark, 81-year-old retired Tacoma, Wash., pharmacist, hailed at San Diego, Calif., as a formidable contender for the title of oldest flying student in the United States, is shown (right) as he got an approving smile from his instructor, George Hight. Hight says only a flight test and a physical examination are apparently all that separate the octogenarian from a private pilot's license.

White-bearded William Clark, 81-year-old retired Tacoma, Wash., pharmacist, hailed at San Diego, Calif., as a formidable contender for the title of oldest flying student in the United States, is shown (right) as he got an approving smile from his instructor, George Hight. Hight says only a flight test and a physical examination are apparently all that separate the octogenarian from a private pilot's license.

White-bearded William Clark, 81-year-old retired Tacoma, Wash., pharmacist, hailed at San Diego, Calif., as a formidable contender for the title of oldest flying student in the United States, is shown (right) as he got an approving smile from his instructor, George Hight. Hight says only a flight test and a physical examination are apparently all that separate the octogenarian from a private pilot's license.

White-bearded William Clark, 81-year-old retired Tacoma, Wash., pharmacist, hailed at San Diego, Calif., as a formidable contender for the title of oldest flying student in the United States, is shown (right) as he got an approving smile from his instructor, George Hight. Hight says only a flight test and a physical examination are apparently all that separate the octogenarian from a private pilot's license.

White-bearded William Clark, 81-year-old retired Tacoma, Wash., pharmacist, hailed at San Diego, Calif., as a formidable contender for the title of oldest flying student in the United States, is shown (right) as he got an approving smile from his instructor, George Hight. Hight says only a flight test and a physical examination are apparently all that separate the octogenarian from a private pilot's license.

White-bearded William Clark, 81-year-old retired Tacoma, Wash., pharmacist, hailed at San Diego, Calif., as a formidable contender for the title of oldest flying student in the United States, is shown (right) as he got an approving smile from his instructor, George Hight. Hight says only a flight test and a physical examination are apparently all that separate the octogenarian from a private pilot's license.

White-bearded William Clark, 81-year-old retired Tacoma, Wash., pharmacist, hailed at San Diego, Calif., as a formidable contender for the title of oldest flying student in the United States, is shown (right) as he got an approving smile from his instructor, George Hight. Hight says only a flight test and a physical examination are apparently all that separate the octogenarian from a private pilot's license.

White-bearded William Clark, 81-year-old retired Tacoma, Wash., pharmacist, hailed at San Diego, Calif., as a formidable contender for the title of oldest flying student in the United States, is shown (right) as he got an approving smile from his instructor, George Hight. Hight says only a flight test and a physical examination are apparently all that separate the octogenarian from a private pilot's license.

White-bearded William Clark, 81-year-old retired Tacoma, Wash., pharmacist, hailed at San Diego, Calif., as a formidable contender for the title of oldest flying student in the United States, is shown (right) as he got an approving smile from his instructor, George Hight. Hight says only a flight test and a physical examination are apparently all that separate the octogenarian from a private pilot's license.

White-bearded William Clark, 81-year-old retired Tacoma, Wash., pharmacist, hailed at San Diego, Calif., as a formidable contender for the title of oldest flying student in the United States, is shown (right) as he got an approving smile from his instructor, George Hight. Hight says only a flight test and a physical examination are apparently all that separate the octogenarian from a private pilot's license.

Cherrians Get Aid for Float

Planning Board Idea Is to Be Investigated by Special Group

(Continued from page 1) and $22,880.60 and general obligation refunding bonds for $58,801.67.

Saving in Street Lighting Foreseen

The lights committee reported that reductions offered in street lighting rates by the Portland General Electric company were approximately 20 per cent and would amount to a saving of $973.70, based on the old rates. The committee recommended that the council enter into conferences with the power company relative to changes in rate structure and engineering of the street light system. The report stated that the cluster lights downtown are outmoded and that a considerable saving could be effected by installation of modern standards.

The council approved recommendation of the city attorney that Davidson's garage be paid $60 in settlement of a claim of $110.50 for storage of the car of Elbert Bradford, confiscated by police and returned to Bradford when the case against him was dismissed.

Plans and specifications for paving of North 16th street from Norway to the south line of Rockwood were approved.

Hang Bid Is Low on Street Sweeper

A. C. Haag presented low bid of $3360.60 on a pick up street sweeper. Other bids were: Howard Cooper company $5841.15; Columbia Equipment company, $4267.50; Western Road Machinery company, $3930 net.

The Centennial commission was given permission to stretch a sign diagonally across the intersection of Court and High streets.

Traffic committee resolutions approved provided two hour parking on the east side of Front street between Court and State, head-in parking around the Presbyterian church at Chemeketa and Winter streets; stop signs on 21st street at its intersection with Trade and on Broy's at its junction with D street.

A communication from Paul R. Hendricks, representing Mrs. D. J. Fry, urged immediate action in building a wall to protect Mrs. Fry's property between High and Church streets near Fringle creek and Shelton ditch. The letter stated that approximately two lots have already been washed away and Mrs. Fry has a claim against the city of $5300.

A communication from Paul R. Hendricks, representing Mrs. D. J. Fry, urged immediate action in building a wall to protect Mrs. Fry's property between High and Church streets near Fringle creek and Shelton ditch. The letter stated that approximately two lots have already been washed away and Mrs. Fry has a claim against the city of $5300.

A communication from Paul R. Hendricks, representing Mrs. D. J. Fry, urged immediate action in building a wall to protect Mrs. Fry's property between High and Church streets near Fringle creek and Shelton ditch. The letter stated that approximately two lots have already been washed away and Mrs. Fry has a claim against the city of $5300.

A communication from Paul R. Hendricks, representing Mrs. D. J. Fry, urged immediate action in building a wall to protect Mrs. Fry's property between High and Church streets near Fringle creek and Shelton ditch. The letter stated that approximately two lots have already been washed away and Mrs. Fry has a claim against the city of $5300.

A communication from Paul R. Hendricks, representing Mrs. D. J. Fry, urged immediate action in building a wall to protect Mrs. Fry's property between High and Church streets near Fringle creek and Shelton ditch. The letter stated that approximately two lots have already been washed away and Mrs. Fry has a claim against the city of $5300.

A communication from Paul R. Hendricks, representing Mrs. D. J. Fry, urged immediate action in building a wall to protect Mrs. Fry's property between High and Church streets near Fringle creek and Shelton ditch. The letter stated that approximately two lots have already been washed away and Mrs. Fry has a claim against the city of $5300.

A communication from Paul R. Hendricks, representing Mrs. D. J. Fry, urged immediate action in building a wall to protect Mrs. Fry's property between High and Church streets near Fringle creek and Shelton ditch. The letter stated that approximately two lots have already been washed away and Mrs. Fry has a claim against the city of $5300.

A communication from Paul R. Hendricks, representing Mrs. D. J. Fry, urged immediate action in building a wall to protect Mrs. Fry's property between High and Church streets near Fringle creek and Shelton ditch. The letter stated that approximately two lots have already been washed away and Mrs. Fry has a claim against the city of $5300.

A communication from Paul R. Hendricks, representing Mrs. D. J. Fry, urged immediate action in building a wall to protect Mrs. Fry's property between High and Church streets near Fringle creek and Shelton ditch. The letter stated that approximately two lots have already been washed away and Mrs. Fry has a claim against the city of $5300.

A communication from Paul R. Hendricks, representing Mrs. D. J. Fry, urged immediate action in building a wall to protect Mrs. Fry's property between High and Church streets near Fringle creek and Shelton ditch. The letter stated that approximately two lots have already been washed away and Mrs. Fry has a claim against the city of $5300.

A communication from Paul R. Hendricks, representing Mrs. D. J. Fry, urged immediate action in building a wall to protect Mrs. Fry's property between High and Church streets near Fringle creek and Shelton ditch. The letter stated that approximately two lots have already been washed away and Mrs. Fry has a claim against the city of $5300.

A communication from Paul R. Hendricks, representing Mrs. D. J. Fry, urged immediate action in building a wall to protect Mrs. Fry's property between High and Church streets near Fringle creek and Shelton ditch. The letter stated that approximately two lots have already been washed away and Mrs. Fry has a claim against the city of $5300.

A communication from Paul R. Hendricks, representing Mrs. D. J. Fry, urged immediate action in building a wall to protect Mrs. Fry's property between High and Church streets near Fringle creek and Shelton ditch. The letter stated that approximately two lots have already been washed away and Mrs. Fry has a claim against the city of $5300.

A communication from Paul R. Hendricks, representing Mrs. D. J. Fry, urged immediate action in building a wall to protect Mrs. Fry's property between High and Church streets near Fringle creek and Shelton ditch. The letter stated that approximately two lots have already been washed away and Mrs. Fry has a claim against the city of $5300.

A communication from Paul R. Hendricks, representing Mrs. D. J. Fry, urged immediate action in building a wall to protect Mrs. Fry's property between High and Church streets near Fringle creek and Shelton ditch. The letter stated that approximately two lots have already been washed away and Mrs. Fry has a claim against the city of $5300.

A communication from Paul R. Hendricks, representing Mrs. D. J. Fry, urged immediate action in building a wall to protect Mrs. Fry's property between High and Church streets near Fringle creek and Shelton ditch. The letter stated that approximately two lots have already been washed away and Mrs. Fry has a claim against the city of $5300.

A communication from Paul R. Hendricks, representing Mrs. D. J. Fry, urged immediate action in building a wall to protect Mrs. Fry's property between High and Church streets near Fringle creek and Shelton ditch. The letter stated that approximately two lots have already been washed away and Mrs. Fry has a claim against the city of $5300.

A communication from Paul R. Hendricks, representing Mrs. D. J. Fry, urged immediate action in building a wall to protect Mrs. Fry's property between High and Church streets near Fringle creek and Shelton ditch. The letter stated that approximately two lots have already been washed away and Mrs. Fry has a claim against the city of $5300.

A communication from Paul R. Hendricks, representing Mrs. D. J. Fry, urged immediate action in building a wall to protect Mrs. Fry's property between High and Church streets near Fringle creek and Shelton ditch. The letter stated that approximately two lots have already been washed away and Mrs. Fry has a claim against the city of $5300.

A communication from Paul R. Hendricks, representing Mrs. D. J. Fry, urged immediate action in building a wall to protect Mrs. Fry's property between High and Church streets near Fringle creek and Shelton ditch. The letter stated that approximately two lots have already been washed away and Mrs. Fry has a claim against the city of $5300.

Banker Advanced

Phone Discussion Said Intercepted

Nazis Say Reynaud Heard Talking With British Chief, Balkan Plot

(Continued from Page 1) ly defiant of Italy in the Mediterranean, waited expectantly for the two-day parliamentary session starting tomorrow—a session at which the government of Prime Minister Chamberlain is to reply to the increasingly loud charges of bungling in the Norwegian campaign.

Chamberlain is expected to announce wider powers for the gruff first lord of the admiralty, Winston Churchill, in an endeavor to quiet demands for a new government.

The French announced that they had beaten off, for the third successive day, German slashes at western front outposts in the Saar sector.

Indicative of cases of nerves in Europe were the following items: Rumor of imposed censorship on foreign newspaper correspondents and mobilized for air raid exercises.

An officer described as chief of German military intelligence left Belgrade for Berlin after an air tour of Balkan capitals.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

Phone Discussion Said Intercepted

Nazis Say Reynaud Heard Talking With British Chief, Balkan Plot

(Continued from Page 1) ly defiant of Italy in the Mediterranean, waited expectantly for the two-day parliamentary session starting tomorrow—a session at which the government of Prime Minister Chamberlain is to reply to the increasingly loud charges of bungling in the Norwegian campaign.

Chamberlain is expected to announce wider powers for the gruff first lord of the admiralty, Winston Churchill, in an endeavor to quiet demands for a new government.

The French announced that they had beaten off, for the third successive day, German slashes at western front outposts in the Saar sector.

Indicative of cases of nerves in Europe were the following items: Rumor of imposed censorship on foreign newspaper correspondents and mobilized for air raid exercises.

An officer described as chief of German military intelligence left Belgrade for Berlin after an air tour of Balkan capitals.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.

The Italian minister to Greece flew from Rome to Athens and went into a huddle with Premier John Metaxas.