Contempt Jail Order Issued

Bassett Given 10 Days to Pay, Avoid Sentence; Appeal Considered

Circuit Judge Earl C. Latonette of Oregon City yesterday sentenced Raymond H. Bassett, local attorney, to 30 days in jail for contempt of court but gave him 10 days grace in which to pay $200.50 allegedly due Hope Bassett, his former wife, under terms of their divorce decree.

The case may be appealed to the supreme court, Bassett indicated. In a motion for new trial filed after a contempt hearing May 23, Bassett asserted he had given the plaintiff property and money sufficient to meet all decree obligations into 1941, alleged she had instilled disrespect for him into his children and asked the court to inquire into his financial status. The court yesterday denied the motion.
