Bassett Held In Contempt

30-Day Jail Penalty Ruled by Court; Appeal Is Undertaken

Order was signed yesterday finding Raymond F. Bassett, defendant in a contempt case arising out of alleged non-payment of $290 in alimony assessments, guilty of contempt of court for failure to pay, and ordering him confined to the Marion county jail for a 30-day period.

The defendant followed the court's action at once by an appeal to the supreme court, accompanied by a bond to cover the costs of the appeal. It remained questionable, however, whether the appeal and accompanying bond would be sufficient to avoid the jail sentence while the supreme court considers the case.

Yesterday's order follows a previous hearing in which the court found Bassett in contempt, and gave him 10 days in which to purge himself by payment of the $290.

Registration Low, Non-Resident Cars

Non-resident motor vehicle registrations in Oregon for June, 1948, aggregated 18,758, as compared to 21,918 for June last year. Secretary of State Earl Bassel reported yesterday.

For the first six months of the year, Charles Ross, manager of the local FSA office, said yesterday. The program was extended Saturday to this county along with Deschutes and Coos counties.

Appointment of a county tenant purchase committee to review applicants, appraise farms and recommend acceptance of qualified tenants will be made within 30 days.

Formerly only chattel loans were made to needy farmers through the local office. The new extension enables farms to be bought and then resold to farmers who do not own their own farms. Payments will be extended over a 40-year period.

With the addition of these three counties, 19 Oregon counties are now included in terms of the Bankhead-Jones act. Others are Clackamas, Llan, Lane, Jackson, Lincoln, Malheur and Wallowa.

For beginners, intermediates, swimmers, junior life saving and senior life saving. Classes will be held

Great enthusiasm is being shown for the seventh consecutive "Learn to Swim" contest, sponsored by the American Red Cross in cooperation with the city schools and the city of Salem. The campaign starts Wednesday morning at Olinger and Leslie pools. Registration will take place Wednesday and classes start Thursday.

The free classes are open to everyone except those who are too young to take care of themselves. Vernon Gilmore, director of the playgrounds, points out that the main idea behind the campaign is to teach safety in water in order to have pleasure with safety. Each successful student will be awarded a Red Cross certificate. Classes will be held

Election Supplies Ordered by State

Ordering supplies for the November election got under way here yesterday through Dave O'Hara, head of the state elections bureau.

O'Hara said a large number of printed forms were required for the election, including poll books and tally sheets. These supplies are furnished to the counties at state expense. The counties provide ballots and voting booths and pay members of the election boards.

The state elections bureau also will direct the printing of the combined voters and measures pamphlets to be issued prior to the general election.
