

Boyer, Davis In Fine Film

"All This and Heaven Too" at Elsinore Is Tale From Best Seller

There's a never-to-be-forgotten experience waiting for you at the Elsinore theatre, where Bette Davis and Charles Boyer have combined their dynamic talents in bringing Rachel Field's novel, "All This and Heaven Too" to glowing life on the screen.

One of the leading best sellers of the past few years, Miss Field's novel comes to the screen with its dramatic essence immeasurably heightened by the brilliant performances of the two great dramatic stars, aided by an outstanding fine supporting cast.

The story of Mademoiselle Henriette Desportes was flash news in the European press of 1847. Its repercussions helped a French king from his tottering throne. Later Miss Desportes came to America and began life anew as the wife of Henry Field, a New England minister, a great uncle of authoress Rachel Field.

Three Face West In Capitol Film

Charles Coburn, Sigrid Curie and John Wayne Star

A slice of realism is brought to the screen in "Three Faces West," which opened last night at the Capitol theatre. It depicts a present-day community in the middle west, where there is no doctor to combat the poverty and disease of a desolate people.

There are many such communities in the United States today which, because of poor housing conditions, lack of modern conveniences and the general apathy of its people towards economic progress, have not attracted the medical men to its fold.

Such a community was Ashville Forks, and only an epidemic served to arouse the settlers to send out an SOS, with the inducement of a free home to any doctor who would come there to live.

Brave idealist, Dr. Karl Braun, a Viennese refugee, portrayed by Charles Coburn, comes and with his modern, scientific methods stifles the epidemic, and in some degree brings order and cleanliness into their midst.

Sigrid Curie, as Dr. Braun's daughter, Leni, who rebels at first against having to live in the desolate dust-ridden town and finally finds a deeper meaning to life in service to humanity, plays one of the strongest and best roles of her motion picture career.

John Wayne, as the town doctor, Myron Derickson, who is appointed to replace Myron Derickson as life guard at the municipal swimming pool, Derickson resigned to enter an aircraft school. Reed completed his tests for life guard at the Red Cross school recently held here.

Life Guard Changed

JEALOUS MARITAL discord between Barbara O'Neil (right) and Charles Boyer involve Bette Davis (center) in a scandal that rocked two continents. Scene is from "All This, and Heaven Too," Warner Bros. picturization of Rachel Field's dynamic novel, now playing at the Elsinore theatre. Plus: Wendell Willkie in "Information Please."

S. VAN DINE'S shrewdest detective brought to the screen again in "Calling Philo Vance" starring James Stephenson and Margot Stevenson. Playing today through Wednesday at the State theatre with "Calling Philo Vance" is "Rebecca" co-starring Laurence Olivier and Joan Fontaine.

Director Has Good Memory

Henry King Astonishes His Cast in Directing "Maryland"

Friends and acquaintances of Henry King, ace director, were amazed by the feats of memory he exhibited during the filming of Darryl F. Zanuck's Technicolor production of "Maryland," now playing at the Grand theatre.

The successful man behind the megaphone has to be a combination of psychologist, diplomat and jack of all trades. In addition to having these qualities, King also possesses an encyclopedic mind.

In fact he can give a good account of himself on any subject because he draws his conclusions from a broad background of practical experience. For example, the day before shooting started on "Maryland," King had a conference with members of the prop department and Technicolor experts on the type of bed linen to be used in the picture.

His wealth of information on weaves, textures, colors and photographic possibilities was startling. Through him the correct material was selected.

When the location department was searching for a site on which to film the thrilling "Maryland" fox hunt he recalled a location that he had not seen in years. He described it in detail and it was found to be the ideal spot for the scenes on which fox hunts frequently are held.

Master psychologist, too, King knows how to get the best performances out of actors and it proved a wise choice when Darryl F. Zanuck selected him for the difficult job of directing "Maryland."

"Maryland" features a superb cast including Walter Brennan, Fay Bainter, Brenda Joyce, John Payne, Charlie Ruggles, Hatlie McDaniel and Marjorie Weaver. The original screen play was by Ethel Hill and Jack Andrews. Gene Markey was the associate producer.

Joan Fontaine Has Unscheduled Bath

Chilling Shower Tumbles About Her on Set for "Rebecca"

Joan Fontaine got more than her share of chilling initiations into screen horror technique during filming of "Rebecca," but it took an event not in the script of the thriller to frighten her half to death. Miss Fontaine is co-starring with Laurence Olivier in "Rebecca" which Duvy O. Selznick produced from Daphne du Maurier's eerie novel, and which is now showing at the State theatre.

The stage was set for bit of spooky business. Miss Fontaine was giving a tense interpretation of a young lady working up to a nervous breakdown, when a terrific crash abruptly halted everything.

As sundry assistants led the trembling Joan to a chair and waved smelling salt, prop men found that some draperies being blown by a large fan had tangled with a five-gallon bottle of water, toppling it over. And a five-gallon water bottle makes a Grade A crash.

The star got over her shakes in about ten minutes—but one of the hard-boiled prop men had to take the rest of the day off.

Alfred Hitchcock, noted master of screen mystery and intrigue, directed "Rebecca" and other important players in the cast include Judith Anderson, George Sanders, C. Aubrey Smith, Reginald Denny, Nigel Bruce, Gladys Cooper and Florence Bates. The production is a United Artists release.

Barnett Family Reunion at Turner

TURNER—Many of the descendants of the late Mr. and Mrs. J. J. Barnett gathered at the home of their daughter, Mrs. Alice Wippen, for a family reunion and picnic Sunday. The date was chosen as a group of seven family birthdays occurring between July 19 and 21. Five of this group of seven were present and were especially honored by a huge birthday cake which was cut by Mrs. Wippen, oldest of the birthday group and senior member of the entire family circle.

Those present were Mr. and Mrs. I. L. Robertson and Mr. and Mrs. J. H. Smith and Nancy Heath of Milwaukie; Mr. and Mrs. Henry Barnett, Mr. and Mrs. J. E. Whitehead, Jr., Mary and Keith Ball of Turner; Mr. and Mrs. Guy Chapman, Kenneth and Edward Chapman of St. Helens; Mr. and Mrs. Russell Miles and Dale, Lee and Alice Miles of Waldport; Mrs. E. J. Harris and son Jerry of Sheridan; Mrs. Frank Caspell and Dorothy and Dorsey Caspell and Laura McConnell of Salem; Frank Lyle and Jean Lyle of Seattle; Mrs. Fannie Eyston of Portland; Henry Wippen, hostess; Mr. and Mrs. Ben Wippen, Mr. and Mrs. Leo Birmingham and Mrs. Herman Wippen, the hostess, of Turner.

LOVELY ROSALIND Russell and Cary Grant are co-starring in "His Girl Friday" at the Hollywood theatre. Also showing is "Ski Patrol" with Phillip Dorn and Lull Deste.

THREE FAMOUS SISTERS: Lola, Rosemary and Priscilla Lane, stars starring honors in "Four Daughters" starting today at the Liberty on a dual program with "Calling All Marines" starring Don Barry and Helen Mack.

Turner School Janitor Hired

TURNER—John Mickey has been hired the school janitor for the coming year. The usual renovation of school property will soon begin in readiness for the fall school opening.

Aumsville People Enter Exhibits

AUMSVILLE—Aumsville people have been pleased to observe the centennial exhibit in the Salem business house windows, particularly the wedding ensemble of Mrs. C. D. Boone of this place and the photographs of Mr. and Mrs. H. C. Porter, Aumsville pioneers. Mrs. Boone, whose beautiful ensemble is shown at Miller's store, is a daughter of H. C. Porter. She had spent her entire life here, as did her parents before her. The dress being exhibited was designed and made by Mrs. A. F. Blackaby of Silverton, to help his successor with the paper work.

Lebanon Guard Ready for Camp

LEBANON—Preparations for the annual summer encampment of the national guard are being made by the local company. Because of the possibility of the guard's being kept in service for an extended period, sergeants, except staff sergeants, are being discharged. Under this ruling, Everett Campbell and Ralph Gordon have been relieved. So far assignments to their places have not been made. Donald Phelps, staff sergeant, has asked to be discharged. Delivan Childs and Glen Richards are still keeping their ratings.

Movie Cliche Has Defender

Tried and True Situation Saves Hollywood Lots Much in Film

HOLLYWOOD, July 27.—(AP)—A three-times academy award winner comes to the defense of the movie cliche.

"The cliche may cloy," says Director-Producer Frank Lloyd, "but it's economical. It saves Hollywood a million or more a year in film alone, to say nothing of economy in production time and brain fatigue."

Lloyd says the worst cliches have become passe. The movies have been saved by the thousands to signify domestic peace, he says—but they seldom do it any more.

Now and then, though, some producer still uses a dimming candle to indicate death. Lloyd lists as the most annoying cliches the calendar-with-rapidly-turning-pages to indicate quick passage of time. Nowadays it's a bit subtler to show a tree with its leaves drifting to the ground.

In his current film, "The Howards of Virginia," Lloyd was tempted to use a cliche to bring out the fact that Martha Scott was to have a baby.

"I wanted to have the camera steal into her bedroom and catch her in the act of sewing baby clothes," confesses Lloyd. "In the old days that is exactly how we would have done it—in maybe 16 feet of film. An hour of modern dialogue couldn't have been more effective."

"But I knew I'd be criticized for being trite. So I merely put Miss Scott into a maternity dress." Lloyd nominates as the prize cliche in his 25 years in the movies one which was born when a producer discharged his cast and a week later discovered he didn't have the "fadeout cliche"—the old lovers-kiss cliche.

Stuck for cinematic proof that love was triumphant, he took a desperate chance. He hired two extras who resembled the hero and heroine from the back, and had them walk hand in hand toward a rising sun.

This is the beginning of a thousand Hollywood risings or setting suns. Who was the producing genius who started the cycle? Why, Mr. Lloyd, of course.

Mountain Climb Set, Mt. Angel

MT. ANGEL—A group of young people from Mt. Angel have arranged a mountain climbing party for August 4, with their aim the lookout cabin atop Mt. Hood. A final meeting will be held at St. Mary's school here Tuesday night, July 30, at 8 o'clock to make final preparations. Notices will be given at this meeting by all who wish to rent crampons or spikes for their climbing shoes. Shoes or the outline of the sole of the shoes should be brought to the meeting.

Present plans call for the party to leave Mt. Angel Saturday afternoon, August 3, and lodge at Rafferty's hotel at Government Camp. The climb will begin early Sunday morning. Otis Loan, experienced guide, will lead the party.
