Son of 2nd Paul Revere at Dinner — E. M. Umphlette of Amity, son of the "Paul Revere of the Battle of the Abniqua," attended the luncheon for pioneers Friday in the Marion hotel.

His father, Stanley Umphlette, was operating a ferry across the Pudding river in 1847 near the present site of Aurora. He learned that Crooked Finger, a renegade Indian, had organized a band of Indians and was coming into the valley north of Silverton to wipe out all white settlers.

Umphlette first gave the alarm to Ralph Geer, pioneer of the Wald Hills district, and then rode through the area warning all settlers. In the meantime Geer headed a group of pioneers to meet the Indians.

The settlers met the Indian band and at the battle of the Abniqua, decisively defeated them in what was the last pitched battle with Indians in the Willamette valley.

Moore Is Added to Furniture Store

Hurlie L. Moore has become a member of the sales staff of the Gevartz Furniture company, it was announced yesterday by W. D. Gwynn, manager.

Moore previously was with the Stiff Furniture company for 12 years and before that owned and operated Moore's Music house.

Addition of Moore to the Gevartz personnel, according to Gwynn, was made necessary in order to more adequately serve the steadily increasing patronage the Gevartz Salem store is enjoying.

Camping Season Is Ended at Pioneer

Executive Ruddiman Notes Largest Attendance, No Sickness

Completing a successful five-weeks season at Pioneer, the Boy Scout camp on Pine lake in the high Cascades, closes today.

Scouts of troop 53 at Woodburn and troop 52 at Silverton have had the camp the past week on "troop camping" basis, bringing their own food and doing their own cooking. The troop leaders in charge were Perry Williams, scoutmaster at Woodburn, and Lyle Pettijohn of Silverton.

Scout Executive Ronald Ruddiman, director of Camp Pioneer, reports the largest total attendance for the season that the camp has ever had. 194 scouts attended for a total of 239 weeks.

Ruddiman also noted a particularly good season from the standpoint of health and safety. There was no sickness and only a few minor cases of first aid.

The recent rainy days in the mountains did not dampen the high spirits of the campers. The mountain hikes this year were all successful and well attended. The camp is beautifully situated in the heart of the mountain country with Mt. Jefferson, 10,800 feet, just a few miles to the northeast.

"The improvements made in the camp water supply and in sanitary conveniences this summer before the camp opened added greatly to the health and happiness of the campers. Already we are planning and hoping for some additional improvements for next year to make the camp more 'waterproof' in case of wet weather," says Ruddiman, "though we will take care to always keep it rugged and primitive in place, the kind of a camp that boys like."

Pendleton Remains In Placement Lead

Pendleton, for the fourth consecutive week, led the 21 Oregon state employment service offices in placements, Director L. G. Stoll announced yesterday. Placements there during the week aggregated 1711, which was only slightly lower than the 1977 reported the previous week.

Second to Pendleton last week was the Portland office with 1684 placements, 1463 of which were casuals. Salem reported 689 placements, Eugene 482, Klamath Falls 171, Newport 140 and Astoria 124.

For the entire state 5628 new jobs were reported, of which 4386 were listed as casuals.

Placements in fields and canneries in western Oregon were expected to increase during August.

Oldest person attending, Mrs. Mary Littler, 101 years old, $5.

The judges were Mrs. Defta Mack, Mrs. Maude Sanford, Dorothy Pearce, Paul Jackson, Frank Bennett and William McGilchrist.

Agate Forest To Get Visit

U of Michigan Scientist Coming to Proposed State Park

Dr. Chester A. Arnold, paleobotanist for the University of Michigan, will visit among other places in Oregon the noted Sweet Home petrified forest, near Sweet Home. The Sweet Home petrified forest has not as yet been studied in a scientific manner and Dr. Arnold will visit the region early in August with the idea in mind to carry on some scientific work there.

The Sweet Home forest is one of the most interesting areas of its kind in the entire world. Growing directly over the ancient forest, now turned to solid agate, is a modern day "mixed" forest of conifers and hardwoods. The ancient forest is some 50,000,000 years old while the modern forest is no more than 200 years in age.

Preliminary investigation indicates that the Sweet Home forest may comprise the "missing link" between the very ancient fossil forest and the better known Miocene forests of Oregon and Washington. The Miocene petrified forests are considered to be about 15,000,000 years of age.

Dr. Arnold has previously done considerable scientific work in the far eastern part of Oregon, where he made extensive studies of the fossil leaves found there. If the preliminary investigation of the Sweet Home forest warrants, it is likely that the University of Michigan expedition will spend some weeks in carrying on field work in that area.

Before visiting the Sweet Home region, Dr. Arnold will examine and study several of the petrified wood collections made by Portland collectors including that of Dr. E. C. Dakin, V. D. Bill of Salem and Dr. Dakin will act as field guides for the University of Michigan expedition.

An effort is being made by many people to have part of the Sweet Home petrified forest preserved as a state park. The region is well adapted to this and the portion of the petrified forest which is the most important is on unimproved land and not far from the main highway.

Other petrified forests situated in various parts of the country attract numerous visitors. Attention is called to the fact that the Ginkgo petrified forest (state park) in central Washington, registered 55,782 visitors during 1939. The Ginkgo petrified forest contains only about 15 exposed trees. In an area of just few acres in one part of the Sweet Home district there are 20 trees exposed.

There are perhaps more petrified forests in Oregon than in any other state in the union. The eastern and midwest states are practically devoid of petrified forest areas, the principal ones in the country being situated in the western states.

Puerto Rico Has Epidemic of Flu

SAN JUAN, Aug. 3.—(P)—La munga (influenza) has swept over this island possession of the United States, taking 300 lives and putting perhaps 100,000 of the 1,800,000 inhabitants to bed with chills and fever.

More than 60,000 cases of influenza have been recorded in the present wave and private physicians say that much illness has not been reported, making a total of nearly 100,000 cases a possibility. Governor William D. Leahy announced Friday afternoon that he had been assured by both insular and federal health authorities that the epidemic is letting up.
