Local News Briefs

Mxaminations Given-Physical examinations are now being given to food handlers in Salem by the Marion county department of health. Food handlers, who were not examined a year ago, are given special time at the health office on Monday afternoons of each week. Over 600 were examined a year ago and were checked for tuberculosis, syphillis, diphtheria and typhold carriers. The food handlers will not have as extensive an examination this year if they were examined a year ago, unless they need a re-check. Most of the food handlers who are being examined were not checked last year.

Vote on the convention city showed 114 for Salem as against 74 for Vancouver, BC, the only competitor. Earlier , reports had stated that delegates from Chehalis, Wash., were making a strong bid for the convention on their towns behalf.

Thompson Speaks Following the announcement. read by Willard Wirts, presiding officer, Professor Franklin Thompson of Willamette university spoke on personal observations made during an extensive trip through the east during the midsummer months. Professor Thompson described rebirth of national pride and selfconsciousness as the most striking current which he discerned in peoples' thinking the country over, and described its manifestations in New York plays as well as in other forms.

A will to complete the national preparedness program he also described, as well as a prevalent belief among easterners that the suspensions of motor vehicle drivnorthwest, owing to great electric power resources, is on the verge July this year compared to the of great expansion.

Thompson described eastern political sentiment as almost evenly divided among the two major State Earl Snell, parties.
