

Camera Clicks--Illustrating National and Foreign News Events

Births of two sets of tiger cubs to separate mothers on Roman Proske's animal farm at Rockland Lake, N. Y., amazed wild animal trainers. Tigers seldom breed in captivity. Three of the cubs are living and are shown with Proske above.

Here is a view of Koritza, Albanian mountain city and an Italian munitions depot which has been taken by the Greeks after a six-day siege. According to reports from Koritza, the populace celebrated their "freedom" when crowds filled the streets, burned portraits of Italian King Victor Emmanuel and others and brought out pictures of the Greek leaders, including King George and Premier Metaxas.

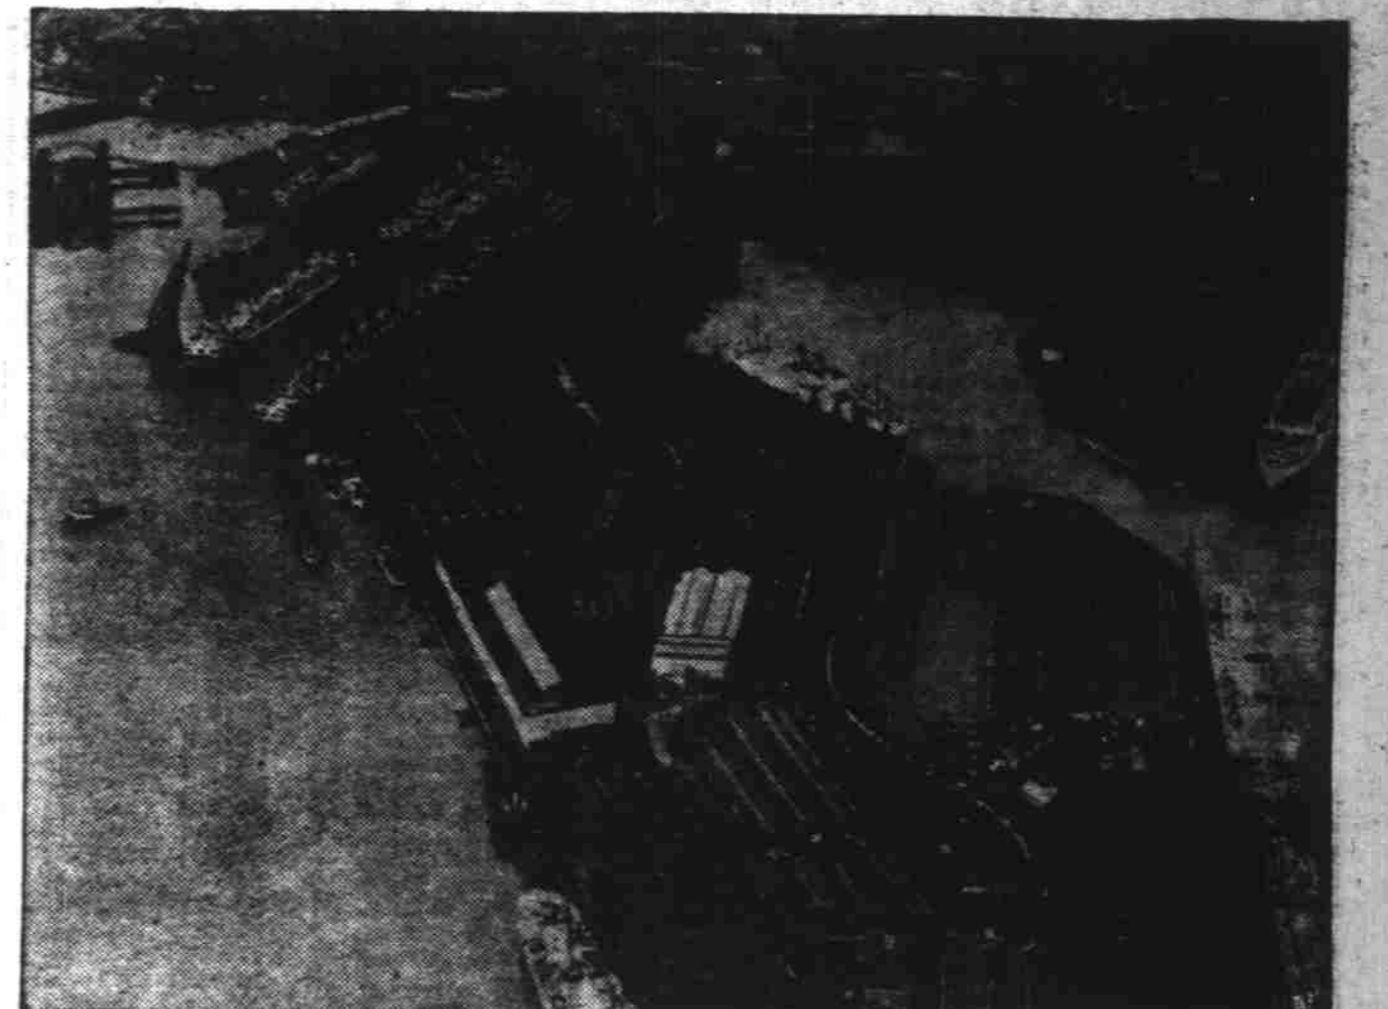

Nevada's new U. S. senator, Berkeley L. Bunker, 34, a Democrat, is shown in his Las Vegas home with his daughter, Lucille, as they opened many congratulatory messages. Bunker was appointed by Gov. E. F. Carville to succeed the late Key Pittman.

After serving seven years in the state prison at Montgomery, Ala., Bill Hathaway, Glenn Davis and Herchell McCarr, left to right, are found to be innocent of a bank robbery for which they were convicted and are given unconditional pardons by Warden R. B. Reeves, right. One of the real robbers recently confessed to the crime, naming two accomplices.

Charging that Major Rahim Shaltchi, head of a military mission in the U. S. for Iran, alienated the affections of his wife, James Lewis Jones, Washington, D. C., engineer, is suing the rich Iranian for $60,000 damages. The complaint said that Jones and his wife lived happily following their marriage in 1937 until Mrs. Jones became a secretary at the Iranian legation. Mr. and Mrs. Jones shown above.

Here is a view of Southampton, well-known transatlantic shipping port, which has been heavily bombed by German air raiders. Harbor facilities, industrial plants and other war essential objects were hit by bombs, according to the German news agency, D. N. E.

As always an early Christmas shopper, Mrs. Franklin D. Roosevelt, wife of the president, already is Christmas shopping in New York. Mrs. Roosevelt selects a toy from a salesgirl for one of her grandchildren.

Ray Atherton

Among those mentioned as possible successors to Joseph P. Kennedy, who resigned as ambassador to Great Britain, is Ray Atherton, above, now acting chief of the European division of the state department.

It won't be long until Christmas, no sir! Christmas trees already are being cut, stacked and tied for shipping to all parts of the globe. This picture was taken at Shelton, Wash., which state is regarded as one of the largest producers of Christmas trees in the world.

Stimson, Hillman and Knox

After discussing with President Roosevelt methods of preventing work stoppages in plants producing national defense materials and of combating subversive activities in general, Secretary of War Henry L. Stimson, left, Labor Defense Commissioner Sidney Hillman, center, and Secretary of the Navy Frank Knox, right, are shown at the White House door in Washington.

Commander Dillon

Among those beaten in the riot with which Almazanites greeted the arrival of U. S. Vice President-elect Henry A. Wallace on his arrival in Mexico City for the inauguration of President-elect Manuel Avila Camacho was Commander Wallace M. Dillon, U. S. naval attaché at the embassy there.

Three members of the youngest generation of Roosevelts are seen at play outside the Hyde Park, N. Y., home of the president. They are Sara Dalano Roosevelt, right, and Kate, left, daughters of James Roosevelt, and Franklin D. Roosevelt, III, son of Franklin D. Roosevelt, Jr.

Virginia Dale, left, and Diana Dale, film players, decided that similarity of names might confuse their public. So they decided to change one by slip of a verb. So, from now on, Virginia will be known as Diana Edwards.

Returning to work after a 12-day strike at the Vulcan Aircraft plant at Downey, Calif., workers are being urged at the production of an army of new planes. The workers were released and signed a 10-month no-strike clause. The plant is among many busy on government defense orders.