Oldest Postmaster Retires

Leonard D. Redfield, who believes his 44 years of service as postmaster of Benson, Ariz., is longer than that of any other postmaster in the country, is now retiring upon reaching the age of 70. He went to Arizona as a child of seven in a covered wagon and carried the mail on horseback on a 218-mile round trip twice a week through Indian-infested country when he was only 12 years old.—AP Telegram.
