Probation Office Change Is First Announced by County Judge

work under the direct authority of the court.

In its morning discussions, the new court talked over the problem of inadequate parking space in the vicinity of the courthouse. Commissioner Girod expressed disapproval of use by the public of the driveways leading into the courthouse for all-day parking, a practice which he indicated was followed by persons whose businesses are in downtown Salem.

Commissioner Smith offered as a solution the proposal that triangular areas of lawn between the building and the driveways on the north and south sides of the courthouse be cleared of grass and gravelled during the winter pending the application of oil next summer. The matter was tabled pending a report on the county engineer of the number of cars which could be accommodated should this be undertaken.

The commissioners also brought up the matter of a car to be purchased for the exclusive use of the court in its road inspection and other duty trips.

Says Engineer Not Hired as Chauffeur

Judge Hewlett expressed disapproval of the practice of the previous court of being driven by the county engineer. "The engineer wasn't hired to be a chauffer for the court," the judge said, "and anyway he has a lot of other things to do."

The new court provided for the purchase of copies of the new Oregon code, priced at slightly under $60, for the clerk, the sheriff and for the court, and for the justice courts at Silverton, Woodburn and Salem.

Purchase of codes for other justice courts was delayed temporarily after a showing by the judge that some courts lack judicial business to justify purchase of code books. The justice in the Mehama district, he pointed out, failed to decide a single case during 1940.

In its discussions of mileage allowances for private vehicles, the court heard statements that state mileage allowances are four cents, federal allowances 4½ and five cents, but that the present county alowance is 4½ cents.

Judge Hewlett indicated that requests had come from Sheriff A. C. Burk and from other sources asking that the mileage allowance be increased to five cents per mile for all officials. A decision in the matter was postponed pending further information on the subject of upkeep costs for cars used on county business.

Cabbage Odor and Dirt Due to Go

Among other things, the judge reported that three rooms occupied by the court would receive new coats of paint in an effort to get rid of "cabbage odors and dirt" which he remarked adhered to their walls.

Elsewhere in the courthouse other new officials, including District Attorney Hayden, County Treasurer Sam Butler, and County Recorder Albert Egan went to work for the first time at their new positions.

The district attorney, his office housed for the first time in the courthouse, indicated that he would occupy quarters on the fourth floor formerly held by the probation officer only as an expedient pending improvements in the rooms themselves or the discovery of more suitable quarters elsewhere in the courthouse.

"At present," the new prosecutor said, "these offices appear to be temporary. If they can be made satisfactory in point of light, heat and ventilation, they may become permanent, or some other rooms may become available elsewhere in the courthouse. Should neither alternative be realized, it will be necessary to find quarters elsewhere."

Present budget allowance of $25 monthly for office rent is inadequate for hire of outside quarters, Hayden said.

County Treasurer Butler took over his official duties from Lawrence Rich, erstwhile treasurer, and now Butler's deputy.

Audit of Treasurer

Audit of the treasurer's accounts as of 8 a. m. yesterday disclosed a ledger showing of $290,384.49 on hand, plus 10 cents cash overage, making a total of $290,384.59 on hand in county banks and in other depositories outside. In addition collateral security comprising bonds owned by banks was delivered to the new treasurer in the amount of $41,000 at maturity. Two notes, one in the amount of $35 and signed by Roy Cain, and the other for $50 signed by Harvey G. and Elorae Thomas, were also turned over to the new treasurer.

In the county recorder's office, Recorder Egan was at work despite a recent illness, the marks of which were still upon him. Mrs. Mildred Robertson Brooks, former recorder, was also in the office, and indicated that she would remain for several days until Mr. Egan fully regains his health and until he is wholly instructed in the duties of his new office.

Elsewhere in the courthouse County Sheriff A. C. Burk, Assessor Roscoe Shelton, County Clerk U. G. Boyer, School Superintendent Agnes C. Booth and Surveyor Hugh Fisher continued the administration of offices already held for varying lengths of time. In the sheriff's office alone were three new steel desks to show the arrival of another year, and consequently of another series of budget appropriations.

Increased Planting of Small Seed Crops in Western Oregon Advised At District Grange Meeting Here

Increased planting of small seed crops was recommended by Professor G. R. Hyslop of Oregon State college yesterday at the district grange agricultural meeting before representatives of 12 western Oregon counties who met in session at Cherry City Baking company auditorium.

Speaking before grange officials from Marion, Polk, Linn, Lane, Clatsop, Columbia, Benton, Yamhill, Clackamas, Lincoln, Multnomah and Tillamook counties, Hyslop suggested greater acreages of orchard grass, chewing fescue, creeping red fescue and vetch. That there is a distinct need of publicizing that Oregon is a first rate grower of the fescue grasses was attested to by the fact that eastern states were of the opinion that the fescues came only from New Zealand, and thought that, now that that country is engaged in war, that there would be distinct shortage of the grass seeds. It should be the function of the Granges, said Hyslop, to see that Oregon gets the proper publicity for this specialty crop.

Production of vetch could be increased five times the amount of the 1940 production, which was 20 million pounds for Oregon, providing the government continued its grant of aid to farmers of the south, Hyslop announced. Austrian field pea production reached its limit for Oregon in 1940 with a production of 45 million pounds, Hyslop said.

Morton Tompkins, Dayton, state grange agricultural committee chairman, was in charge of the meeting. Delegates called on for reports by Chairman Tompkins were Henry Conger, Medford, who talked on agricultural committee conferences; Verne F. Livesay, Portland, who led a discussion on cooperative buying and selling; Ralph Beck, extension specialist, from OSC, who led the discussion on land use and planting; W. L. Baker of Canary and Claude Hanscom of Pendleton, who conducted a general discussion on the agricultural outlook and Ralph Beck, extension specialist of OSC, who said that the number one land problem for Oregon was the use of cut-over land. So far such land is profitable for only two things, Beck said, grasses for grazing or the growing of trees.

Grange officials present other than Tompkins included Roy J. Rice, Marion county Pomona master and Acting County Agent Robert E. Rieder, who is the chairman of the Marion county Pomona grange committee, and Ben Buiman of the Grange Bulletin.

Pioneer Daughter Rites Incomplete

SILVERTON—Valena Davis Cannon, 70, died yesterday at a Salem hospital. She was born near Silverton on the donation land claim of her pioneer parents and had lived around Silverton until the last few years.

Survivors are three brothers, Lincoln Davis of Bend, Grant of Eugene and Forrest of Salem. Several nieces and nephews also survive.

Funeral arrangements are being made by the Ekman Funeral home. Announcements will be made later.

Felton Has First Session in Court

Two Fined for Traffic Violations; Office to Remain Same

Joseph B. Felton, newly-appointed justice of the peace for the Salem district, dealt with three traffic cases and one forgery matter yesterday as the first items of official business accruing to him in his new capacity.

The justice of the peace dealt out a $5 fine to Harold R. Fast on a charge of passing with improper clearance, and assessed Harold J. Whittle $1 for another traffic infraction.

Theodore R. Lord, who pleaded guilty to driving a car lacking license plates, was released on his own recognizance and permitted the case to continue for 30 days.

Malcolm Wulfemeyer, 17-year-old alleged forger, was certified by Felton to the juvenile court and then certified back by County Judge Leroy Hewlett. On the second certification the justice gave the youth 24 hours in which to seek legal advice and decide on a plea and ordered him held in the county jail.

Felton indicated yesterday that he will continue to hold court in the quarters upstairs on Liberty street previously occupied by Miller B. Hayden, who took office yesterday as district attorney of Marion county.

months. At that time he was suspected of having forged checks totaling $180.

He escaped from the training school in September, and since that time has been suspected of theft of a rifle, a shotgun and cooking utensils and food from the home of his uncle and aunt on Garden road near Pratum, as well as other larcenies.

The sheriff reported that Wulfmeyer has been suspected of victimizing small service stations and stores in Marion and Polk counties.

appropriations" for defense, and for lending arms to England, called for higher taxes to defray the bill in part, warned against listening to those who preach the "ism" of appeasement," and as a means of strengthening the moral fiber of the American people in the face of "foreign peril," made four recommendations for domestic action.

Old age pensions and unemployment insurance should be spread to cover a greater proportion of the population, he said, opportunities for adequate medical care should be increased, a better means of providing employment for those deserving or needing it should be devised, and no person should be allowed to grow wealthy out of the defense program.

Insists Peril to Nation Unabated

Under the mass of steel beams and girders erected as a temporary support for the capitol roof, the president addressed a packed house chamber. Members of senate and house, cabinet members and dozens of notables were on the floor. The galleries were jammed with listeners.

After a few preliminary paragraphs he swung emphatically into the main theme of his message that "the aggressors" were still on the march, the "democratic way" was under attack the world over, 16 months of war had blotted out democracy in "an appalling number of independent nations, great and small," and:

"Therefore, I find it unhappily necessary to report that the future and the safety of our country and of our democracy are overwhelmingly involved in events far beyond our borders."

An axis victory, he said, would mean axis domination of four continents, with greater population and resources than those of the United States. No generosity could be expected of a "dictator's peace," he continued, and an attack on the Americas was to be expected if the dictators won, and to speak of immunity from such an attack was "loose talk."

"As long as the aggressor nations maintain the offensive," he said, "they—not we—will choose the time and place and the method of their attack.

"That is why the future of all American republics is today in serious danger."

No Disagreement on Defense Need

Quickly, then, he swung into an enunciation of three basic points of "national policy":

"First, by an impressive expression of the public will and without regard to partisanship, we are committed to all-inclusive national defense.

"Second, by an impressive expression of the public will and without regard to partisanship, we are committed to full support of those resolute peoples, everywhere, who are resisting aggression and are thereby keeping war away from our hemisphere.

"Third, by an impressive expression of the public will and without regard to partisanship, we are committed to the proposition that principles of morality and considerations for our own security will never permit us to acquiesce in a peace dictated by aggressors and sponsored by appeasers. We know that enduring peace cannot be bought at the cost of other people's freedom."

Defense production had shown much encouraging progress, he said, but he and his aides were still dissatisfied.

"The men in charge of the program represent the best in training, ability and patriotism," he said. "They are not satisfied with the progress thus far made. None of us will be satisfied until the job is done."

Seeking to Catch up on Aircraft

As he said this, William S. Knudsen, general motors man borrowed to take charge of defense production, slowly nodded his head, and then joined in the applause which swept the chamber.

The president said the nation was behind schedule on airplane production, and the effort was to catch up; ahead of schedule on warship production, and working to get even farther ahead.

Asserting that the time may be near when Great Britain and her allies are unable to pay in cash for their war purchases here, the president said that the United States cannot "tell them they must surrender, merely because of present inability to pay for the weapons which we know they must have." He went on to outline his lease-lend plan of getting material assistance to the British.

Essential Human Freedoms Listed

As he approached his conclusion, the president said the nations must look forward to a world founded "upon four essential human freedoms," and as he detailed them some wondered if, however vaguely, he was suggesting war aims for the British. They were:

"The first is freedom of speech and expression — everywhere in the world.

"The second is freedom of every person to worship God in his own way—everywhere in the world.

"The third is freedom from want—which translated into world terms, means economic understandings which will secure to every nation a healthy peace time life for its inhabitants—everywhere in the world.

"The fourth is freedom from fear—which, translated into world terms, means a world-wide reduction of armaments to such a point and in such a thorough fashion that no nation will be in a position to commit an act of physical aggression against any neighbor—anywhere in the world."

Sprague Occupied With Conferences

Board Chairmen, Group of Indians Present Their Problems

Pre-legislative conferences occupied most of Governor Charles A. Sprague's time here yesterday.

First conference involved members of the state optometry board, of which Dr. Albert Miller, is president. Board problems were discussed.

At another conference, E. E. Wilson, Corvallis, chairman of the state game commission, discussed proposed legislation with the governor.

Willard Marks, Albany, president of the state board of higher education, conferred with Governor Sprague in connection with the board's 1941-43 budget.

A group of Umatilla Indians urged some action by the governor or legislature whereby they may fish and hunt off their reservation without a license.

The Indians contended that they consumed virtually all of the deer, elk and fish they obtain while the whites are wasteful.

Progress Forecast by New President Of Chamber; Reports of Year Given

Progress and prosperity for Salem in the near future were forecast by Floyd Miller, 1941 president of the Salem chamber of commerce, as he took office at the Monday luncheon, taking over the gavel from the 1940 president, E. H. Bingenheimer. Defense contracts awarded and pending for Salem plants and a share in the benefits from contracts awarded elsewhere in Oregon were mentioned by President Miller as the basis for increased business activity in the coming yar.

Th outgoing president referred briefly to his report which had been published in the Sunday Statesman, highlights being an increase in membership, about 20 per cent liquidation of the organization's debt for refurnishing its quarters in the Bishop building, and the year's notable activities including participation in the Centennial program.

Ray Wocom, reporting for the industrial committee which he will head again this year, revealed there had been and will continue to be active efforts to obtain a plywood plant for Salem, but that problems of timber supply and suitable waterfront location in Salem where fire protection would be adequate had not been solved to date.

Other members of the incoming board of directors spoke briefly and the retiring board members were introduced. Also introduced was Leslie M. Scott, who on Monday became state treasurer.

Court Reverses Oiled Road Rule

Commissioners Grant Plea for Log Hauling Made by Donald Citizens

The newly installed Marion county court yesterday violated what has been iron-bound precedent in previous administrations by permitting the Kauffman and Learfield logging company to haul logs over an oiled county road from Donald to Matthews pond.

The permission was granted after a delegation from Donald called upon the court to urge the action on the ground that 14 families are dependent on the operation of the sawmill using the logs.

Without them, they implied, the mill would be required to move and the employes would find themselves without work.

County Judge Leroy Hewlett, in granting the license to haul loads of 50 feet overall length, announced that county roads must be protected, but that "we can't throttle industry. When the lumber business is moving in high, we should cooperate in every way we can without damaging the roadways."

Commissioner J. E. Smith pointed out to the court that the concern had previously used the Donald-Butteville road last summer before it was oiled. It has recently moved over light roads without damage to the highway, the court was also told.

Members of the court indicated that the road will be examined after the hauling has been permitted for a short time, and that continuance of the permit will depend on the state of the road.

indefinite period" to be Tony Ramig, the council also decided.

Proposed purchase of a police car was deferred by rejection of all bids. The council decided to sign a contract with the Signal Oil company for the city's gasoline for the next six months.

The council gained three new members, by the 1940 election, and lost one last night, Alderman Robert Forrester, a holdover member, resigned because he had moved outside the city. A successor will be named at the next meeting. The new members are A. T. Hathaway, Dr. A. F. Goffrier and Roy Stevens.

Committee appointments made by the mayor were:

Street and sewer—Hathaway, Joseph E. Berry and Stevens; audit and purchasing — Goffrier, Stevens and Kuhn; sanitation and health—Forrester (to be replaced), Berry and Hathaway; property control—Stevens, Goffrier and Kuhn; industrial—Goffrier, Stevens and Forrester; ways and means—Kuhn, Stevens and Goffrier; police, fire—Stevens, Hathaway and Kuhn; ordinance—Berry, Goffrier and Forrester.

gravest importance and again I recommend that the city council by resolution authorize the mayor to appoint a committee of council members and citizens of Salem to present a revision of the charter to the voters for their approval.

The revised charter adopted by the mayor's previous charter revision committee, incorporating a city manager plan of government, was defeated at the November election.

Employing State's Auditors Is Asked

The mayor again urged that auditing of the city's books be performed by the state department's division of audits. For the past two years the council has engaged a private auditor for the job.

The mayor mentioned the success of the Salem Centennial, urged council cooperation with his ten year plan coordinating committee and asked that the 1941 administration of city government be one of "harmony and coordination."

The council's business, read off for the first time by Hannah Martin, new city recorder, was routine.

Ordinances were introduced providing minor changes in the city's gambling ordinance and changing zone classification of four lots in Simpson's addition from Class 2 residential to class 3 business.

The city recorder was authorized to call for bids for a new truck for the street cleaning department and to purchase 100 standards for traffic signs.

Two of three newly elected councilmen were present. They were L. F. LeGarie of ward two and Tom Armstrong of ward six with Dr. Armin Berger, new councilman from ward seven, unable to attend.

Lawrence N. Brown, city attorney; Dr. V. A. Douglas, health officer; J. H. Davis, city engineer and street commissioner; Batty Cooper, sanitary inspector; H. C. Bushnell, building inspector. Miss Elizabeth Lord was relected for a three year term on the park board.

The city building department reported receipts of $7678.61 from fees in 1940.

The sanitation department reported 199 nuisances abated and 235 food handling establishments registered.

The report of City Engineer J. H. Davis showed 17 WPA grading and graveling projects completed, 25 new sewer lines installed for a total of 3110 feet, six street paving jobs at a total cost of $16,071.70 and six new storm drains for a total of 1912 feet.

The city incinerator report showed 4029 truck loads of garbage received and 18,356 loads of garbage and cans disposed of from private cars and trucks.

tion, imports and post-war reconstruction. Labor Minister Ernest Bevin was charged with the new production set-up the vital import group was given to Minister of Supply Sir Andrew Rae Duncan, and minister without portfolio Arthur Greenwood was delegated to study post-war problems.

The moves apparently were designed to further streamline the nation's war efforts.

British mechanized forces were reported swirling around the outer defenses of Tobruk, 70 miles west of Bardia, but the possibility appeared that the British might sidestep that seaport base and drive across the Libyan desert to attack Bengasi, capital of Cirenaica and more than 250 miles from Tobruk.

Tobruk is the next natural objective for the army of the Nile and Fascist Marshal Rodolfo Graziani has been feverishly preparing there for the next phase of the battle of north Africa.

British military quarters said a "close blockade" of Tobruk has been established, and that one-third of Graziani's original Libyan army of 250,000 soldiers had been captured, killed or wounded. This tally included 20,000 troops and six more generals taken at Bardia, which fell Sunday after a 20-day siege, and some 15,000 casualties. About 40,000 Italian prisoners had been reported before the capture of Bardia.
