Oregon Trees and Shrubs in Winter Subject for Interesting Exhibit

For all those grownups who loved winter picnics in Bush's pasture, or in the high hills and remember the thrill of seeing evergreens in a woods of barren oaks will find equal pleasure in seeing the display at the Salem Art Center this week.

There are three parts to the unusually interesting exhibition, but the three combine to make something worth while. First is a display of Oregon trees in winter, collected by the Boy Scouts under the direction of scout masters. The display includes evergreens of many types and various other trees and shrubs including dogwood, willow, oak with mistletoe and less usual branches of trees and shrubs.

The second part of the exhibition is a large display of photographs of trees of Oregon, taken by Oliver Mathews. These are more than ordinary photographs as they combine excellent composition and photography with a certain show of scientific knowledge. Many of the trees photographed were growing in inaccessible spots, perhaps taking several days hiking to reach.

The third portion of the exhibit, and certainly of equal interest, are the pencil drawings of these same trees and shrubs, as they appear in winter. The sketches are for the purpose of identification in winter, corresponding to the often seen botanical drawings of flowers and trees in summer. Mrs. Marion Field, manager of the Salem Art Center made the drawings, and has some 150 on display.

The exhibits at the Art Center are free, and the public is always welcomed.

Don Cossacks to Sing Monday

The original Don Cossack chorus founded under Serge Jaroff's direction in a military camp near Constantinople some 20 years ago will appear in the men's gymnasium at Oregon State college on Monday night, at 8 o'clock.

These 24 men are presenting the second number of the annual concert series offered each year here under the direction of the education activities board of Oregon State college.

The musical corps is the product of diminutive Serge Jaroff's enterprise. His choirmaster training instinctively fashioned a brilliant ensemble out of a horde of bedraggled, homesick prisoners. Leading them in song around the evening campfire he sensed the emotion in their voices and welded them into an artistic aggregation.

Those Muscovite melodists are now in their seventh season in America. Last year they performed in 140 cities in less than five months. They have traveled more than a million miles to sing over 4600 concerts in almost every corner of the earth.

A record of which the Cossacks are proud is that in all their appearances no one has missed a concert and only once was a man tardy for rehearsal. Except for four, the personnel has remained the same.

Dramatic New Gown Peps One up After the Holidays

About the best thing to do for that after-holiday depression is to go out and buy a dramatic formal dinner dress. Three are shown. At the left is Anna Neagle in a very feminine model of pale peach mousseline. It has bishop sleeves, with silver cord detailing the collar, a corselet belt and very full skirt. Center, Kay Francis has chosen a dramatic black and white dress in heavy silk crepe. Brilliant rhinestones sprinkle the white top and combine with silver lame threads to pattern the broad shoulders. Ample gores allow the black skirt to fall into graceful folds. The white dress, right, uses the latest skirt treatment. It is called the "Bagdad Silhouette," with front drapery achieving a split-hemline reaching almost to the knee in front. The material is silk jersey, and it has a heart-shaped neckline and softly draped tiny sleeves.

Pattern

Club meeting . . . luncheon . . . matinee . . . tea-time—this handsome Anne Adams dress will take every activity in its stride. It's Pattern 4628, and quick as a flash to stitch up with Sewing Instructor's aid. The unbroken, flowing lines created by the in-line skirt and center bodice sections are very slenderizing. The darts at each side-waist give smooth fitting, and the curved seams made by the very soft side bodice sections are most decorative. Add a matching or contrasting revers-and-bow trim . . . or just have a collarless V-shaped neck with feminine lace edging and button trim down the center seam. A front-buckled or buckled belt is optional; your sleeves may be three-quarter with dressy gathers or short and tucked.

Pattern 4628 is available in women's sizes 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46 and 48. Size 36 takes 3 1/2 yards 39 inch fabric.

Cheese Subs For Meat Often

Many housewives, planning daily meals, look around for a substitute for that important item, meat. An occasional meatless meal will give pleasant variety.

The most practical and perhaps best appreciated substitute for meat is cheese, which offers wide variety, because there are so many types of cheese.

For instance, to make cheese into a main dish, using eggs for added flavor, cut slices of day-old bread 1 1/2 inch thick, scoop out insides of squares and toast on all sides. Make a heavy cream sauce with cheese added, or melt 1 package processed cheese in 1/2 cup milk. Put a poached egg in each bread croutade and serve with the cheese sauce.

Macaroni and cheese is an old favorite, but it takes on a new appearance when used as a stuffing for green peppers or tomatoes.

A meatless loaf is made by grinding 1/2 pound American cheese with a can of kidney beans, drained, and 1 onion. The mixture is then combined with 1 tablespoon melted butter, 1 cup breadcrumbs and 2 eggs, and is baked for about half an hour at 350 degrees.

Cheese adds interest to a vegetable casserole that includes peas, green pepper, tomatoes, onions and anything left from yesterday's meal. The cheese is sprinkled over the top with breadcrumbs and baked.

Baked potatoes become a main dish when scooped out, stuffed with cheese and browned.

Cheese sauce poured over another vegetable into the meal's featured dish.

Adding cheese to meaty meatless dishes will give it style.

Bran Brittle Is Crunchy

Top-notch crunching for any age at all is bran brittle—and little trouble it is too. Here's the recipe:

BRAN BRITTLE
2 cups granulated sugar
1 cup light brown sugar
1/2 cup light corn syrup
1 cup water
1/2 cup butter
1/2 teaspoon salt
1 1/2 cups cereal

Cook sugars, corn syrup, and water slowly, stirring until dissolved. Continue cooking without stirring until 300 degrees F. is reached (cold water test, very brittle). Remove from heat, add butter and salt; stir only enough to mix well. Add all-bran and turn at once onto greased slab or greased inverted pans or baking sheets. Smooth out with a spatula. After about 30 seconds take hold of edges of candy and lifting it slightly from slab, pull it as thin as possible. Break into irregular pieces. Yield: 1 1/2 pounds.

Mild Soup Goes With Sandwich

A soup, something like cream of potato or cream of corn soup will make a good main dish served with:

PEPPY DRIED-BEEF SANDWICHES
2 ounce-jar dried beef, cut in pieces
2 tablespoons butter
3/4 pound cream cheese
2 teaspoons drained, bottled horseradish
2 tablespoons catsup
Dash of pepper

Slowly sauté dried beef in butter until crisp and browned. Cool. Blend remaining ingredients. Add fried beef. Approximate yield: 1 1/2 cups filling. Spread on white, rye or whole-wheat bread.

Jellied mixed fruit salad
Red flannel hash, poached eggs
Spinach
Apricot whig with Sugar cookies

RED FLANNEL HASH

2 cups finely chopped, cooked corn beef
2 cups chopped, boiled potatoes
1 cup finely chopped, cooked beets
1/2 cup chopped onion
1/2 cup rich milk
4 tablespoons cooking oil

Mix all ingredients except oil well. Add salt if necessary. Heat oil in heavy frying pan. Spread mixture evenly in pan and cook over low heat. Shake frying pan occasionally. When hash is well-browned on bottom, fold like an omelet with the aid of a spatula; turner and carefully turn out on a hot platter. Poached eggs are served around and on top of the hash. Serves 4.
