Outburst Seen as Direct Reply to Wheeler's Speech on Sunday

"I sincerely hope that my statement will prove to be untrue and that the American boys will be plowed under because of this administration's war-minded foreign policy."

"I can think of nothing more unpatriotic than to try to fan the passions of the people of this country to the point that they will accept a program that will send American boys to be killed upon foreign battlefields. See Intimidation Of People in Remarks

"I am not unmindful that the president has said no American boys will be sent abroad, but I submit to the American people that every speech the president has made since election has taken this country one more step closer to the present foreign war. I hope his utterance will not intimidate the people from expressing their opinions."

The exchange between the president and Wheeler overshadowed developments on the congressional front, which included widening moves to compromise some of the more controversial points of the aid-to-Britain legislation.

There was discussion in administration quarters at the capitol of these possible changes in the bill:

- 1. A two-year limitation on the operation of the measure.
2. An amendment designed to convince the public that American defenses would not be impaired by the transfer of naval vessels or war equipment to other nations.
3. Some restrictions of the power of the president to waive all other laws in carrying out the "lend-lease" program.
4. Possible limitation of the contemplated aid to Great Britain and her immediate allies instead of opening it to any nation the president might designate.

Nuisance Charged As Raid's Result

(Continued From Page 1) liquor commission, said yesterday that he would resist the motion to remove the evidence confiscated on general grounds, until such time as Boyd might appear in official capacity.

Although the charge against Maynard and his co-workers was that of conducting a nuisance, it was revealed yesterday that a warrant was issued several days ago out of the justice court by Clyde Doe charging illegal sale of intoxicating liquor at Maynard's establishment, and at the same time a search warrant was issued.

District Attorney Hayden said yesterday that he assumed the search of the club's premises was made on the strength of this warrant.

Wayward and Hawkins and Roberts Building corporation, owners of the building, have been the defendants for some time in an action in abatement, in which the liquor commission has sought to have the establishment declared a nuisance by court order.

(Continued From Page 1) day (October 12, 1946, to be exact) we devoured a newspaper article about how Dr. Noah D. Fabricant of Chicago said that an acid nose was a protection against the common cold. We believe implicitly in Dr. Fabricant, who is a paid-up member in the American Academy of Ophthalmology and Otolaryngology (and you can't get those words for two-bits a ticket), but we can never tell when our nose is acid. Has anybody got a piece of litmus paper handy?

Is there a doctor in the house? Mr. C. C. Chapman's "Who's Who" informs us that there are two doctors in the house, Dr. C. T. Hockett (H-Ester-prise) and Dr. J. F. Hooch (D-Bend), but along with most knowing whether our common cold is acid or base we don't even know whether its republican or democratic.
